Dear Claire,

I was pleased to write a letter on your behalf to the world Bank, and hope it will help.

While my schedule does not include any travel in the near future, I do hope to get to Atlanta one of these days.
Perhaps by then you will be in Washington!

It is a pleasure to hear from you and I appreciate your kind comments.

With warm regards

Dear Lydia,

I don't know how long your memory is: I was a student at Duke J st ahead of you. I have watched your meteoric rise to fame and fortune with considerable gratification; it is such a pleasure to see cohorts, especially women, make something of their lives.

I write to ask you if you could possibly find the time to do me a small favor. I would like to move from academia and Atlanta (because of divorce) to some new, challenging position. Could you write a word or two in my behalf (it you remember who I am to:

Executive Director

February 26, 1981

Dear Mr. President:

On January 20, 1981 I tendered my resignation to be effective at your pleasure and upon the appointment and qualification of my successor. Although my successor has not been appointed, the designation of senior Treasury officials to handle the international responsibilities of the Treasury Department makes it possible for me to tender my resignation to be effective at the close of business on March 31, 1981.

It has been an honor for me to represent the United States at the World Bank since December 1979 and a personal pleasure for me to have assisted your Administration during this transition.

I understand that your Administration will conduct a long-term policy review covering the United States' role in the World Bank which will consider, among other issues, the appropriate rate of growth for the multilateral development banks and the direction of U.S. contributions in the future. I hope and trust that as a result of this study, you will agree that it is absolutely crucial for the United States to continue its strong support for the World Bank. The American people must understand that the Bank and development assistance directly support the vital long-term economic, foreign policy, and humanitarian interests of the United States. Now is not the time to undermine our influence in the World Bank and global economic development. I am confident that your study will demonstrate that the stakes, quite simply, are too high.

With best wishes,

4
