MEMORANDUM FOR MICHAEL K. DEEVER

FROM: Biff Henley

SUBJECT: President Reagan's Library

Thank you for the opportunity to share my thoughts on the President Reagan Library.

The goal will be to project President Reagan's interest in providing the facts and historical record of his Administration quickly and accurately to the scholarly community. Opening the Library the day after the President leaves office may be optimistic but not unrealistic. Opening within two years would be unrepresented and lauded by historians. I came to the White House 24 years ago and, in my opinion, the Reagan Administration is the most completely documented with the papers located in one central place, Records Management (RM). Past Administrations found that 50% of the papers were in RM while the other 50% were either in offices or members had removed them after resigning their position. Three advantages this Administration has are the Presidential Records Act, effective January 20, 1981, President Reagan's strong belief in an archival system, and a staff which ensured proper maintenance and control of material.

The majority of the work that has to be accomplished can be done at the White House by following a plan as outlined.

1. Create a "working group".

The Hoover Institute, the National Archives, the White House and the Attorney General have interest in the Library. A representative of each office would be appointed to the "group".

Objectives

a. coordinate activities

It is a waste of time and money to start a task and discover that another office is working toward the same goal. As examples, Hoover Institute is working on an Oral History project, are they aware that RM does exit interviews? National Archives is collecting books about the President and his Administration, is the Hoover Institute collecting the same books? The Attorney General has solicited papers of Cabinet and former Cabinet members, is the Archivist of the U.S. soliciting the same papers? The answers will be there with the "group".

- b. be communication links with the principle offices
 - c. perform duties as outlined by the principle offices.
2. Prepare papers for viewing by the researchers.
- a. This can only be performed physically within the RM office area by Archivists and Archivist Technicans from the National Archives.
 - b. Funds that have been set aside for the President Reagan Library Liaison Office, which doesn't exist (the funds are now being used to purchase books and gift packing supplies), should be used for these activities.
 - c. Archivists can begin immediately with the first term papers, Technicans make papers ready for review.
3. Prepare an index of negatives.
- a. Work with the Photo Office to prepare this index.
 - b. Complete identification will require two and one-half persons, volunteers from the Comments Office can assist.
 - c. Create a form to be used that will require staff offices to identify individuals in each frame.
4. Prepare an index of audio/visual materials
- a. Work with the Audio-Visual Section index to make it compatible with the Library's.
5. Prepare Museum items for display.
- a. Secure a Curator who is familiar with exhibits at existing Presidential Museums to identify, from printouts, display items. Gifts are computerized and well inventoried.

These ideas are only a beginning but one in the right direction.

Dear Mr. President:

I am very sorry I can not be with you at the Founders Dinner of the Ronald Reagan Presidential Foundation. Bill Clark invited me to join the Trustees of the Foundation, which I am pleased to do, but unfortunately, before I knew the schedule of this dinner I had made a prior engagement which I can not change. I wanted to give you my personal apology that I can not be there, but assure you I am very enthusiastic about the important opportunities for the Ronald Reagan Presidential Foundation.

Sincerely,

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: DROPHY MEETING OF THE RONALD REAGAN
FOUNDATION BOARD OF GOVERNORS
SUNDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1985

Thank you very much. Thank you Ed Meese, Glenn Campbell, and Mike Deaver.

It's so long since I've seen all of you -- how the heck have you been? Even though we met last night I hoped you'd be able to come in today and see the East Room at its best, all dressed up for Christmas. I always think this is the jolliest room in the White House. Teddy Roosevelt's portrait is here, with all its happy dynamism -- and here, of course, the portrait of Washington that Dolley Madison smuggled out of the White House before it was burned down in 1812.

This is the room where Harry Truman played the piano and where the Kennedys danced; this is the room in the White House that has been the scene of much music and laughter, and so it's good to see so many ~~of my~~ old friends here today at this time of year.

As I said last night: Thanks for serving on the Board of Governors. Nancy and I thank you for your help and leadership in raising funds for the Library and the Center for Public Affairs.
Some months back, when I spoke at a fundraiser for the John F.
Kennedy Library, I mentioned that there's nothing so bracing as the truth, and it's the job of every presidential library to see that the truth of an administration is preserved for future sailors on the sea of scholarship. This has been a dramatic time in the Nation's life, the 1980's, and it is good that we will be preserving so much that went into the great decisions of these days for our children and grandchildren.

I used to think presidential libraries were just monuments for whatever president was involved. But now I'm President...so I've changed my mind.

Seriously, when my work here is done I'd just as soon relax and enjoy my retirement. But there will still be work to do. There's no disputing the fact that what we're involved in here every day is history -- and we owe it to the future, to posterity, to keep the record of this time in history. And so the library, and the necessity to dedicate ourselves to it.

You good people are the ones who have to do most of the work, though. And all Nancy and I can say is thanks, and let us know, any time, what we can do to help.

Thank you again. Please have a good time while you're here, and take a look around. I have to go earn my keep, but you stay on if you can. And God bless you all.

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: DROBY MEETING OF THE RONALD REAGAN
1985 DEC 12 4:30 PM FOUNDATION BOARD OF GOVERNORS
SUNDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1985

Thank you very much. Thank you Ed Meese, Glenn Campbell, and Mike Deaver.

It's so long since I've seen all of you -- how the heck have you been? Even though we met last night I hoped you'd be able to come in today and see the East Room at its best, all dressed up for Christmas. I always think this is the jolliest room in the White House. Teddy Roosevelt's portrait is here, with all its happy dynamism -- and here, of course, the portrait of Washington that Dolley Madison smuggled out of the White House before it was burned down in 1812.

This is the room where Harry Truman played the piano and where the Kennedys danced; this is the room in the White House that has been the scene of much music and laughter, and so it's good to see so many of my old friends here today at this time of year.

As I said last night: Thanks for serving on the Board of Governors. Nancy and I thank you for your help and leadership in raising funds for the Library and the Center for Public Affairs.
Some months back, when I spoke at a fundraiser for the John F.
Kennedy Library, I mentioned that there's nothing so bracing as the truth, and it's the job of every presidential library to see that the truth of an administration is preserved for future sailors on the sea of scholarship. This has been a dramatic time in the Nation's life, the 1980's, and it is good that we will be preserving so much that went into the great decisions of these days for our children and grandchildren.

I used to think presidential libraries were just monuments for whatever president was involved. But now I'm President...so I've changed my mind.

Seriously, when my work here is done I'd just as soon relax and enjoy my retirement. But there will still be work to do. There's no disputing the fact that what we're involved in here every day is history -- and we owe it to the future, to posterity, to keep the record of this time in history. And so the library, and the necessity to dedicate ourselves to it.

You good people are the ones who have to do most of the work, though. And all Nancy and I can say is thanks, and let us know, any time, what we can do to help.

Thank you again. Please have a good time while you're here, and take a look around. I have to go earn my keep, but you stay on if you can. And God bless you all.

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: DROBY MEETING OF THE RONALD REAGAN
FOUNDATION BOARD OF GOVERNORS
SUNDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1985

Thank you very much.

It's so long since I've seen you -- how the heck have you been? Even though we met last night I hoped you'd be able to come in today and see the East Room at its best, all dressed up for Christmas. I always think this is the jolliest room in the White House. Teddy Roosevelt's portrait is here, with all its happy dynamism -- and here, of course, the portrait of Washington that Dolly Madison cut out of a frame and rolled up and smuggled out of the burning White House in 1812.

This is the room where Harry Truman played the piano and where the Kennedys danced; this is the room in the White House that has been the scene of much music and laughter, and so it's good to see so many of my old friends here today at this time of year.

As I said last night: Thanks for serving on the Board of Governors. Nancy and I thank you for your help and leadership in raising funds for the Library and the Center for Public Affairs. Some months back, when I spoke at a fundraiser for the John F. Kennedy Library, I mentioned that there's nothing so bracing as the truth, and it's the job of every presidential library to see that the truth of an administration is preserved for future sailors on the sea of scholarship. This has been a dramatic time in the Nation's life, the 1980's, and it is good that we will be preserving so much that went into the great decisions of these days for our children and grandchildren.

I used to dismiss presidential libraries as just an ego trip for whatever president was involved. But now I'm President and it's no longer convenient for me to hold that view so I've changed my mind. Seriously, the fact is I'd just as soon walk out the way I walked in and relax and enjoy my retirement. But there's no disputing the fact that the work we're involved in here every day is history -- and we owe it to the future, to posterity, to keep the record of this time in history. And so the library, and the necessity to dedicate ourselves to it.

You good people are the ones who have to do most of the work, though. And all Nancy and I can say is thanks, and let us know, any time, what we can do to help.
