QUOTE

Dear President Samaranch:

I am delighted to congratulate you on the success of the Eleventh Olympic Congress at Baden-Baden and applaud the great strides taken on behalf of the Olympics under your firm leadership.

I want you and all the leaders of the Olympic family gathered with you today to know that my Administration and the American people strongly support the principles of the Olympics.

We look forward to greeting participants and spectators from all of the Olympic nations in Los Angeles in 1984. It is my sincere desire that the Games of the Twenty-Third Olympiad will greatly enhance mutual respect, friendly competition, and the cause of international understanding. If these goals, as stated by Baron Pierre de Coubertin, are realized, the 1984 Games will help make our world a better place for everyone.

Dear Mr. Samaranch:

It was a pleasure visiting with you and President Reagan last week at the White House.

Pursuant to the conversation regarding the issue of security at the Olympic Games of 1984, I have discussed this matter with Mr. Edward V. Hickey, Jr., who has been designated to coordinate the role of all federal law enforcement agencies in support of the games.

Please be assured that the United States government, as host country for the 1984 Olympic Summer Games, acting within the scope of its responsibility to the games, is prepared to provide whatever assistance is needed by state and local governments to conduct their security requirements to insure the safety of the 1984 summer games in Los Angeles.

Again, many thanks for what you are doing and we look forward to a very successful 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles.

Sincerely,
