THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

June 15, 1984

Your Majesty:

Nancy and I wish to express our thanks for the gracious hospitality extended to us by you, Prince Philip and your family. We consider ourselves most fortunate to have had another opportunity to visit the United Kingdom and particularly enjoyed seeing you and Prince Philip at lunch, a very happy occasion indeed for us.

The summit meeting was a most useful and memorable occasion. I was heartened by the cogent and frank discussions which took place at Lancaster House and appreciate your government's willingness to host such a major undertaking, and to do it so graciously.

Our visit has reminded me yet again of the importance of the alliance between our two nations; and I know I speak not only for myself, Nancy and the official party but also for the American people when I say how pleased we were to join with you once again to reaffirm our close friendship.

With warmest thanks and best wishes,

Sincerely,

Ronald Reagan

Dear Charlie and Carol:

Nancy and I want to express our thanks for your warm hospitality and strenuous efforts to make our visit to London a success. We know it took a great deal of work to ensure that everything went so smoothly. You and the entire Embassy staff are to be congratulated.

I was most satisfied with the results of both the Summit and our bilateral meetings. Charlie, your assistance and counsel are greatly appreciated. Nancy and I are so pleased that both of you are such effective representatives to the Court of St. James.

With warm regards and best wishes,

Sincerely,
