February 9, 1981

Mr. Ronald Reagan
President of the United States
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

To re-introduce ourselves attached is a letter you sent me some time ago.

When my wife, Pat, and I were having lunch at the Dearborn Inn here in Detroit we spotted the enclosed gift and immediately knew it was made for you. We realize you have a very large jar of jelly beans for your oval office but we felt you might like to use it in your private den or elsewhere in your home.

You have made a great beginning. If people will follow your ideas of February 18th I know we will have a great future.

There is a tremendous amount of waste going on in the country and particularly in the City of Detroit.

I would like to talk to some one about it!

Sincerely yours,

"Jim Motschall"

MEMORANDUM FOR GREG NEWELL

FM: Amy Harvey AH

This may be old news by now but following up on your May 19, 1981 letter to Senator Quayle regarding EHD's acceptance of a bronze statue intended for the President, I was advised that the donor (Brian Bex) was not satisfied with Mrs. Dole's participation. Quayle's office further advised that Bex had or would be writing to you again indicating his desire for the President's participation.

As a background note, this artist personally presented a piece of his work to the President as recently as 11/3/80 in Portland, Oregon.

Dear Max:

I am writing on behalf of Mr. Brian L. Bex of Haggerstown, Indiana, who would like to personally present President Reagan with a life size bronze statue of an American Bald Eagle. Enclosed is a picture of the master-piece created by wild life artist Lorenzo E. Ghiglieri.

If you feel that President Reagan would be interested in receiving the gift, please contact Dave Adams on my staff to arrange the details. I have enclosed a copy of Mr. Bex most recent letter on this matter which explains his wishes for the possible presentation.

Thank you for your assistance on this matter. I am anxiously awaiting your reply.

Sincerely,

Dan Quayle
U.S. Senator

Goodmorning Sen. Quayle:

Re: Your correspondence of March 12, 1981

Appreciate your offer of assistance -- let me give you some specifics and get your thoughts on the same.

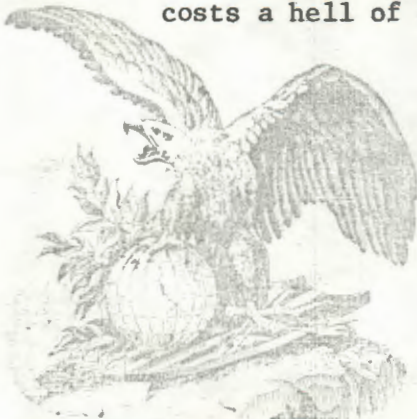

I specifically commissioned wildlife artist Lorenzo E. Ghiglieri of Portland, Oregon, to create the life-size bronze American Bald Eagle (President Reagan already has in his personal collection at least one piece that this artist has done) -- Remember, this is a life-size eagle, approximately four feet tall with an actual wingspan in excess of five feet and weighs almost 200 pounds.

Dan -- it is a magnificent piece and will take me a couple of months to obtain one from the foundry. It was my idea that perhaps we could present the same to the President on or about July 4. It just seemed to me that with the theme "America: A New Beginning," that this piece is most appropriate.

I will personally make the same available -- I want nothing in return except that we figure out how to arrange that President Reagan will personally accept the same.

Do we give it to him personally? -- Do we give it to "the people of America" received by President Reagan? -- We do need to get a bit of planning done ahead of schedule -- How do you go about guaranteeing that President Reagan will accept the bronze and accept it personally?

Due to the size of the same, it seems to me that some preliminary "set up work" should be done with the assistance of one of his aides. All I am telling you is that this piece is magnificent and big and costs a hell of a lot of money, and I want to present the same without any potential interpretation of commercial consideration.

Gail and I will simply bring the piece to Washington and hopefully with and through your assistance and guidance we can then present the same to the President.

What about presenting the same from "the people of Indiana"?

Let me know at your earliest convenience the "modus operandi" you feel we should follow to be able to in fact personally present this bronze to President Reagan -- I will then order the casting from the foundry.

I respectfully await your reply on the aforementioned.

I remain

Respectfully yours,

Brian L. Bex
President
