Dear Mrs. Reagan:

Because President Reagan is the country's foremost jelly bean connoisseur we wanted to send you a couple of the jelly bean related items we manufacture. We hope you'll enjoy passing the beans in our mini-tote and that the Oval Office staff will enjoy tossing the bean bags before consuming the contents.

With best wishes,

Dear Mr. McDermott:

I want you to know how much I appreciate having the inscribed copy of Harp and Sword: 1776 which you thoughtfully sent following the Saint Patrick's Day luncheon at the Embassy of Ireland. I look forward to reading this work and have placed it on my nightstand for easy access. Thank you very much.

I, too, enjoyed the luncheon immensely and am grateful for your kind remarks. It was indeed a memorable Saint Patrick's Day.

With warm personal regard,

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. President:

Having just returned from the most enjoyable luncheon in your honor at the Embassy of Ireland I wish to compliment you both on your presence, which means so much to the American-Irish, and on the eloquence of your remarks. It truly made this St. Patrick's Day the most memorable in the experience of those of us privileged to be present.

In your present responsibilities you need no more reading material but, for some relaxed moment, I enclose a copy of HARP & SWORD, researched and published by The American Irish Foundation as part of its bicentennial activity, which chronicles the contribution of the American Irish to the Revolutionary War. Since you had a reference to that period in your most appropriate remarks, I thought you might like to have a copy.

With best wishes and expressions of continued support, I am

Sincerely,

Edward A. McDermott

My dear Mr. President:

Heartiest congratulations and support are extended to you at this very special time.

Our four-year-old son, Ted, can scarcely believe the President and he share in the loyal following of Jelly Bellies. He's thrilled!

The television was on all day January 20 and your birthday was mentioned frequently. Ted decided he very much wanted to show some of the affection he was feeling on that special day; consequently he wanted to share his favorite Jelly Belly!

Happy birthday and high hopes and prayers for a very successful administration.

Dear President Reagan,

May God Bless you on your 70th Birthday!

The number 7 is symbolic of the union between Heaven and Earth and/or mind and body. On this foundation of unity, a new beginning is possible, symbolized by the number 8, and here we are - in the 1980's.

Things are looking good for the renewal of this nation!

"Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the Sons of God."

"Where there is unity and harmony, the love of God is present and the ideal can be realized."

May God's love and inspiration be with you always -
