Dear Bill:

The President has asked me to thank you for your April 30 letter on behalf of Skip Wilkins, and for your very fine comments about the President's speech last Tuesday night.

I very much appreciated knowing about Skip Wilkins and the tremendous strength and perseverance which he has displayed since his water-skiing accident left him a quadriplegic. Please know that I have contacted the President's Scheduling Office on your behalf, and asked that they consider your request for a meeting between the President, Skip, and his coauthor, Mr. Joseph Dunn.

You will be contacted as a determination can be made.

With cordial regard, I am

Sincerely,

Max L. Friedersdorf

Dear Mr. President:

Permit me to say at the outset what a superb speech you made on Tuesday evening. All of us on your team were enormously proud of you, and delighted to see you looking so well.

The main purpose of my letter today, however, is to request an appointment with you, for myself and a young man from my District named Skip Wilkins. Skip is an outstanding person, and I know you would find meeting him to be a real inspiration. He has been a quadriplegic since a water-skiing accident in 1967 after he graduated from high school, but he has nevertheless finished college, and holds a BA in Psychology from Virginia Wesleyan College. He has been active in civic affairs, and served on the White House Committee for the Handicapped in 1976. In addition, he has received a great many awards, including the 1980 Jack Gerhardt Award as the nation's Athlete of the Year in wheelchair sports; he has been selected to the United States Wheelchair Team five times. Skip is a deeply religious young man, and he is married to a lovely lady.

Skip has been writing his autobiography, entitled THE REAL RACE, and I would like to bring him and his coauthor, Mr. Joseph Dunn of Virginia Beach, with me to present you with a copy of this heartwarming book, one that is particularly appropriate at this time, given the interest in the International Year of the Handicapped.

In your Inaugural Address you talked about heroes. Skip Wilkins is unquestionably one, and I know you would thoroughly enjoy meeting him. Certainly it would be a high honor for us if we might have a few minutes of your time to make this presentation.

Thank you very much for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Bill Whitehurst

Dear Lindy:

Please accept my sincere thanks for your kindness and patience in attempting to help honor my request for a handwritten letter from the President. Should it take until January 20, 1985 (I hope it won't be that long) I'll understand.

If you knew the extent of my collection, which comprises a handwritten letter of every President in office with the exception of William Henry Harrison (who only served 30 days) you'd realize why I never give up.

To impress upon you the true zeal with which I approach the hobby, perhaps you may have read the story in the Post roughly a month ago in wherein was detailed my purchase of the infamous Libya letter from Billy Carter. There's little I won't do to obtain what I need and therefore implore you to ask Mr. Reagan to write out the enclosed letter which I sincerely appreciate, but which was autopenned.

My sincere thanks once again for your assistance.

Looking forward to your reply, I remain,

Cordially yours,

Dear Mr President & Nancy:

I am
retired and had a hobby as my letter head will show. after working with clocks for years I decided to create my own. My present to you is probably my most out standing clock. It is a Mahogany Case with a quartz movement. It has no door (doors make for a clumsy look)
I have made this for less than a year and have them in four states Florida Texas Ill. and Iowa and no advertising. Just word of mouth.
people who have bought them have coined a phrase. "The clock you don't get tired of looking at"

To operate unscrew the 4 bronze balls on top. remove from case.
Flip little brass swivel and let back fall out. Set hands with knurled knob inside. and turn switch to on.

EDWARD C. WILL
ANTIQUE CLOCKS & HOROLOGIST

DAVENPORT, IOWA 52803

replace clock in case, and replace clock in case, replace brass balls. There is a figure 4 on bottom of case and figure 4 on underside of top part. These should match. Be careful when removing clock from case and replacing not to disturb hands. Clock should run a year on battery and not gain or lose a minute.

Incidentally on the underside of the top you will notice this clock has my Trade mark, and is signed

I hope you like it
yours Truly

Tony Spina who has been at the Detroit Free Press for 35 years (most of those years as chief photographer) is a superb photographer and a fine human being. I'd like to share his talents with you.

Tuesday, Jan. 20, was a special day for all of us in this country. To make sure that Free Press readers got that story, we dispatched Mr. Spina to Washington to cover your inauguration pictorially. I thought you and your family might like to have several examples of photographs he took that day -- as well as a copy of the following morning's Free Press.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

PAKISTANI "AJRAK" FOR PRESIDENT RONALD REAGAN FROM
MR. BHALE DINO, S/O HAJE ALLAHDINO T.I., AJRAK
HANDPRINTER, TANDO MOHAMMAD KHAN, SIND, PAKISTAN

When Mrs. Arthur W. Hummel, Jr., wife of the United States Ambassador to Pakistan, was visiting the village of Tando Mohammad Khan on January 24, 1981 to visit a demonstration of Ajrak production, she was given this Ajrak with the request that it be sent to President Reagan.

The accompanying text taken from Threadlines Pakistan explains what an Ajrak is.

Tando Mohammad Khan is the center for the best quality of Ajrak produced in Sind. Sixteen processes are involved in production (all by hand) and twenty-five days required - to allow for drying time. The founder of this particular workshop, now deceased, was awarded the "Pride of Performance" Medal by the Government of Pakistan a few years ago for his efforts in promoting this traditional craft. The donor is the son of the founder and is energetically carrying on the family industry.

This Ajrak is an exceptional piece in size and design. Estimated cost in Pakistan: $30-35.

Ajraks

Ajraks preserve the most ancient techniques of block-printing and are now exclusively crafted in Sind. Instead of printing the colours directly as in later techniques of block-printing, either a mordant or a resist is stamped on the cloth which is then dipped into a dye-bath. If a resist is printed the pattern remains white and when a mordant is used the dye only adheres to the print. This very technique was used in the earliest prints exported from the Subcontinent to China and Egypt.¹⁰

Although the historical evolution of ajraks is undocumented there is evidence to suggest that this sophisticated technique of printing cotton was known to the Sindhis at least two thousand years ago. Its traditional colour combination is red, blue, white and black and the dyes were once derived from madder root and indigo. Yellow and green are also added especially in Tando Mohammad Khan, and were derived from pomegranate rinds. In the 2nd century Pliny described a similar technique of dyeing cloth in Egypt. They applied different mordants to a piece of cloth which consequently picked up different colours from one dye-bath.¹¹ The same process utilizing one dye-bath to create red and black from madder root is a part of ajrak printing. Since the use of mordant dyeing with madder was known in Sind by 2500 B.C. and finely printed cottons are recorded since 140 B.C. in the Subcontinent, it seems most probable that this technique was used in Sind at least as early as in Egypt. Further strengthening this hypothesis is the fact that, at that time, there was an established sea trade and exchange of knowledge between Sind, the Arab World and Egypt. Therefore, since ajrak is an Arabic word meaning blue, the inclusion of indigo as part of the traditional colour scheme may have also been established by that time. This also indicates that the Arabs were familiar with ajraks and that they were articles of trade between Sind and the Arab World.

In 1973 there was a comprehensive study of the ajrak printers in Sind.¹² Workshops were visited in Sekhat, Khebar, Matiari, Tando Mohammad Khan, Matli, Thatta and Hyderabad in the Indus Delta and in Ghulam Nabi Shah and Umarnkot in the Tharparkar District, but the main producing centres of Badin, Hala and Mithi were not covered. The traditional floral and geometrical patterns were locally distinct but the general techniques were common to all these centres.

The intricate process is a combination of mordant and resist block-printing. The mordants are combined in a gum base and printed on cotton cloth which is first washed, softened and conditioned with local 'sakun seeds', oils, soap and soda ash. Three patterns are then printed: first a resist composed of a solution of chalk and gum; secondly a resist containing the iron sulphate mordant; thirdly a resist containing the alum mordant. The cloth is then covered with powdered cow dung or rice bran to fix the three mixtures. It is then dipped into a cold bath of indigo to pick up the blue colour in the exposed areas. Afterwards the cloth is dyed in a simmering madder bath. The first resist becomes white, the black colour is created by the iron sulphate and printed alum becomes the red tone. The resists are reprinted on the same areas and the process is repeated for added depth of colour which is characteristic of the finest ajraks. The process is completed by a final washing in soda ash and soap and then beating to soften the cloth. Other methods, confined to specific localities, are sometimes employed. The dyeing stages are reversed or the number of processes or colours is reduced but all ajrak printers remain faithful to the basic concept.

The wooden blocks used by ajrak printers are carved in Radhan in the Dadu District and in Hyderabad. Copper pots are used for the preparation of mordants and madder dyeing and earthenware pots are used for resists and the indigo dye. Madder and indigo are now imported synthetic dyes and the mordants, once prepared from local materials, are also purchased chemicals. The remaining ingredients are indigenous.

Dear President Elect. Reagan:

I have been successful in obtaining one of cartoonist Frank Miller's Reagan Series works.

It shows you in a directors chair in front of a battery of cameras and lights. Apporaching you at stampeed velocity is a herd of mean Texas longhorns. The leader is smoking out of it's nostrals, and horn contact is very close. The lead animal is labeled, "INFLATION" and the caption that the artist has given it is "It's really a simple script!"

I am hoping it will graphically portray the task ahead. I believe it's naturally up for consideration for the oval office but would be happy is itg hung anywhere you can see it!

Knowing that you will be receiving tons of Christmas and well wibher gifts, I await some instructions or code to affix to the box that might assure some chance that you even get to see it!

I liked the Time cover and enjoyed seeing the intimate shots of your mountain retreat. I still think you would make a ~~big~~ big hit taking the horses to Rancho David!

Your Davenport friend,
Joe Kimmel, Jr.

$ tip for the mail staff!! My former letters over the years have carried a "Dear Joe" salutation. The recent one came % Dear Mr. I think someone might want to computerize a list of former before the fame correspondents that were on a more intimate basis. Just a thought that might have merit.
