The Honorable Ronald Reagan
President of the United States
The White House
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. President:

Within the last several years, the Department of Justice, through the Office of Special Investigations, has intensified its efforts in "uprooting" and "bringing to justice" alleged "Nazi war criminals" presently residing within the United States.

Such an effort, albeit noble in motive, nevertheless, by the very admission of the Office of Special Investigations, has been fueled almost exclusively by the Soviet Union's willingness to cooperate. Thus, evidence admitted at trials against American citizens invariably consists of several video tapes taken within the Soviet Union in accordance with Soviet law (or within any one of its satellites) or "ancient documents" from Soviet archives, the authenticity of which is certified by Soviet officials and accepted on its face by OSI attorneys. The Office of Special Investigations has in fact confirmed that cases under investigation are initiated predominantly on the basis of some evidence furnished by the ever helpful Soviet procurators. In a recent interview, the former director of the OSI, Allan A. Ryan, Jr., when asked how cooperative the Russians have been, replied, "Very cooperative. We've spent hundreds of hours there getting witness depositions. Imagine! We were importing American legal procedure into Russia".

In effect the Soviet Union and specifically its KGB agents garnering evidence against innocent Ukrainian-Americans have become investigators for the United States of America. Their remuneration is the virtual obliteration of "hateful bourgeois Ukrainian nationalists" presently residing in the United States. Incredibly, American justice seems impervious to Soviet disregard for human life and Soviet propensity for fabrication so evident in the recent Korean airliner massacre, certainly not an isolated event. Would a system which deems it appropriate to murder 269 innocent men, women and children with one push of a button hesitate on moral or other grounds to fabricate evidence for use in American courts!

To: The Honorable Ronald Reagan
President of the United States

From: Ukrainian Congress Committee of America, Inc.

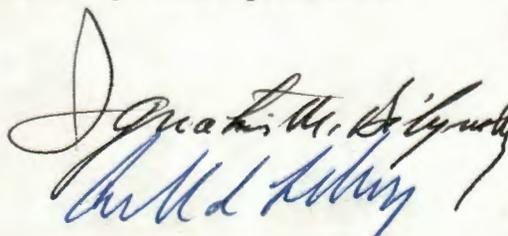

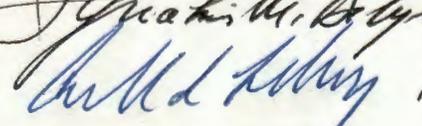

August 12, 1983

The gamut of allegations against individuals stretches from the incredible to the ridiculous. Perhaps the most ridiculous is the OSI's position with respect to the Organization of Ukrainian Nationalists. We shudder at the implications of OSI attorneys' assertion that membership or cooperation with the Organization of Ukrainian Nationalists constitutes grounds for denaturalization. The Ukrainian Congress Committee of America, as the representative of the Ukrainian ethnic community in America, is cognizant of its constituent makeup as well as of the historical circumstances surrounding the Ukrainian immigration into the United States following World War II and has little doubt but that a large majority of Ukrainians entering the United States in the post World War II period were supportive of the Organization of Ukrainian Nationalists. For that movement represented the hopes and aspirations of the Ukrainian people during the war. Consequently, for OSI justice to be accomplished, a significant portion of the Ukrainian ethnic community in the United States would be threatened with denaturalization and subsequent deportation.

In the recent past, Mr. President, this organization has contacted the United States Department of Justice, specifically the Attorney General's office, requesting a forum for scholarly dialogue both in history and in the law, regarding the aforesaid problems. Unfortunately, to date, the Attorney General has not been receptive to our requests. We feel that further dialogue is absolutely necessary. Unwittingly, America has forged a new dimension to Soviet expansionism - one within its own borders.

Your consideration of this problem, Mr. President, is practically indispensable.

Respectfully yours,

 Ignatius Bilynsky-Acting President
 Askold S. Lozynskyj-Legal Counsel

Office of the Director

February 21, 1984

1606

Dear Mr. President:

In January 1982 you and Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of the Federal Republic of Germany launched an initiative to strengthen bilateral ties through increased contacts.

In 1983 the centerpiece of the Contacts Initiative was the Tricentennial of German immigration to America. The anniversary gave us an opportunity to emphasize shared values and heritage at a time when German-American relations were under severe stress.

Now that the year is over, we can see that the Tricentennial was a success. It had four important results:

- increased knowledge of German contributions to America
- greater awareness of American contributions to rebuilding and protecting Germany in the postwar period and today
- a heightened sense of shared values, challenges, and opportunities
- creation of permanent structures to strengthen bilateral contacts.

The Contacts Initiative will continue beyond the Tricentennial. Our mechanism to carry on the momentum is the Steering Committee for U.S.-German Contacts. The Committee staff will continue to design exchanges, encourage bilateral activities of government agencies, organize press briefings for German journalists, publicize public and private contacts programs, and facilitate completion of the Friendship Garden. We are confident that the Steering Committee can build on the success of the Tricentennial and continue to strengthen this crucial relationship.

For your perusal I have attached a brief wrap-up of the Tricentennial year.

Sincerely,

Charles Z. Wick
Director

The President
The White House

THE GERMAN AMERICAN TRICENTENNIAL

TRICENTENNIAL ACTIVITIES

United States

- Presidential Commission for the German American Tricentennial established under the leadership initially of Richard Allen, later of Co-Chairmen Horst Denk and Kenneth Rush
- Tricentennial proclamations issued by President Reagan and governors of 30 states
- Commission identified 1,000 events during 1983 in all 50 states
- Shared values and security ties highlighted by October state visit of the Federal President Karl Carstens to Washington and nine other cities
- Major academic programs sponsored by Smithsonian, University of Pennsylvania, University of California System, Library of Congress, National Archives, National Gallery, and others
- Wide media coverage of Carstens visit and EURONET satellite hook-up linking President Reagan, Chancellor Kohl, and German astronaut aboard Spacelab-1

Federal Republic

- Approximately 400 Tricentennial events reported in Germany
- Postage stamp issued by German government
- About 300,000 people turned out for visit of space shuttle "Enterprise" to the Bonn-Cologne airport
- Visit of Vice President Bush to Krefeld marked 300th anniversary of immigration
- Tricentennial message delivered by President Reagan over Voice of America on 300th anniversary
- Senator Richard Lugar visited Bonn and Rhineland-Palatinate as the President's representative
- Extensive media coverage of official visits and NASA events, in addition to Tricentennial television documentaries and print features

PERMANENT STRUCTURES FOUNDED

- A Friendship Garden on grounds of Washington Monument, for which nearly $400,000 of necessary $500,000 has been raised by Tricentennial Commission; contributors include several German states and Chancellor Kohl.
- The Inter-Agency Steering Committee for U.S.-German Contacts, established by Secretary of State Shultz to share old ideas and consider new ones to enhance bilateral contacts; Steering Committee facilitated USG participation in over 100 Tricentennial programs, including issuance of a postage stamp and the EURONET coverage of Spacelab-1.
- New USIA exchanges of young politicians, congressional staff, journalists, and teachers
- Major new youth exchanges -- the Congress-Bundestag Exchange and the German segment of the President's Youth Exchange Initiative -- totalling $3.5 million per year
- New institutions founded at Johns Hopkins University and University of Wisconsin for research on contemporary Germany and on Germans in America

June 1, 1984

Dear Senator Quayle:

This is to acknowledge your May 21 letter on behalf of Ms. Irene Robb, regarding a recent newspaper article concerning a war story told by the President.

The story as told by the President differs from the newspaper account. President Reagan has stated he never left the country during the war. He served in an Army Air Corps motion picture unit which produced movies for the wartime effort. One of the films the unit produced dealt with wartime atrocities in Europe, and because he didn't want these atrocities against the Jewish people to be forgotten, he saved a copy of the film. Later when a friend wondered at the accuracy of wartime atrocity reports, the President showed him this film.

I hope this information is helpful to you in responding to your constituent.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

M. B. Oglesby, Jr.
Assistant to the President

Dear Senator Quayle,

Your communication on ⁱⁿ the deficit was very explicit, well analyzed and informative. I have studied it carefully,

I am enclosing a copy of an article from the Washington Post Weekly Edition (in case it has escaped your attention) which has upset me to no end. I don't know what to make of it. But I think further investigation is warranted.

Yours truly,

IRENE B. ROBB

"Ronald Reagan and The Techniques of Deception"

by James Nathan Miller

I thought perhaps you would like to know about it.

I.B.R.

Have You Heard the One About Reagan and the Nazi Death Camps?

By Lou Cannon

When Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir visited the White House last Nov. 29, he was impressed by a previously undisclosed remembrance of President Reagan about the Nazi extermination of Jews during World War II.

Repeating it to his Israeli Cabinet five days later, Shamir said Reagan had told him that he had served as a photographer in a U.S. Army unit assigned to film Nazi death camps. Shamir said Reagan also informed him that he had saved a copy of the film because he believed that, in time, people would question what had happened. Many years later, as Shamir recalled being told, Reagan was asked by a member of his family whether the Holocaust occurred.

"That moment I thought," Shamir quoted Reagan as saying, "this is the time for which I saved the film, and I showed it to a group of people who couldn't believe their eyes. From then on, I was concerned for the Jewish people."

Shamir's account appeared Dec. 6 in the Israeli newspaper Maariv. It was confirmed recently to Edward Walsh, The Washington Post correspondent in Jerusalem, by Israeli Cabinet secretary Dan Meridor.

On Feb. 15, famed Nazi-hunter Simon Wiesenthal met with Reagan in the White House and heard a similar story. Wiesenthal told Washington Post reporter Joanne Omang that he and Reagan had held "a very nice meeting," during which the president related "some of his personal remarks from the end of the war."

By Steve Mendelson—The Washington Post

Rabbi Marvin Hier, dean of the Simon Wiesenthal Center in Los Angeles, also was present.

He told Omang that Reagan said he was "a member of the Signal Corps taking pictures of the camps" and that he had shown a copy of the film a year later to a person who thought the reports were exaggerated.

"He said he was shocked that there would be a need to do that only one year after the war," Hier said.

There is no reason to doubt Reagan's concern about the plight of the Jews in World War II. He has spoken out consistently about the horrors of the Holocaust and has supported Israel since its founding.

It is equally indisputable that Reagan never filmed a Nazi death camp. Reagan, who had a commission in the cavalry reserve, was called to active duty in April 1942. After brief service at Fort Mason in San Francisco, he spent the war with the First Motion Picture Unit of the Army Air Corps, making training films in Hollywood and living at home.

Over the years, other dramatic accounts related by Reagan have been questioned. The best known is a story of a pilot who rode down in his B17 bomber with a wounded gunner rather than bail out and save himself.

But a more curious story, which Reagan used to tell about himself, is of a high school football game between his Dixon, Ill., team and rival Mendota. Reagan's account is that Mendota accused Dixon of committing an infraction and that the referee asked Reagan if he had committed it. "I told the truth, the penalty was ruled and Dixon lost the game," Reagan used to say. There are no other known accounts of this incident. The only game that Dixon lost to Mendota when Reagan played was by a 24-0 score.

The White House, ever sensitive to suggestions that Reagan embellishes, did not react lightly to queries about the Shamir and Wiesenthal accounts. Robert Sims, a normally mild-mannered deputy press secretary, said, "There's no story here—the only story is that The Post is out to make Reagan look bad."

Subsequently, White House chief of staff

James A. Baker III asked Reagan about the meetings with Shamir and Wiesenthal. Reagan told him that he "never left the country" during World War II and "never told anyone that he did."

The president's account was that he had seen a film of the death camps while working on a training movie, remembered that World War I atrocities had been questioned and "didn't want atrocities against the Jewish people to be forgotten." So he kept a copy of the film and, when "a Jewish friend" questioned him about it a year or two later, showed him the copy.

Sims said that the recollections of Secretary of State George P. Shultz, who was present at the Shamir meeting, and Marshall Breger, an administration official who attended the Wiesenthal meeting, support the president.

How could Shamir and Wiesenthal, fluent in English and known for their grasp of detail, have misunderstood so completely what Reagan said to them in two different meetings more than two months apart? What Jew would doubt the existence of the Holocaust?

The story in any of its versions was new to this reporter, who, in the course of preparing two biographies and interviewing many persons who knew Reagan during his World War II days, had never heard it. There is no reference to it in any other Reagan biography nor in his autobiography. It is a story that no one seems to have heard. ■ says that he was in an Army Air Corps motion picture unit during the war.

- He "never left the country, while in the service, and has never told anyone that he did."
- His unit produced movies for the war effort.
- One of the films the unit had (or produced itself) dealt with wartime atrocities in Europe.
- The President was "deeply moved" by this film.
- He remembered that some World War I atrocities had been questioned in later years because of lack of documentation.
- He "didn't want atrocities against the Jewish people ever to be forgotten."
- "At the end of the war, as his unit was being disestablished and things were being thrown away," he "kept a copy of the film."
- Later when a ~~friend~~ friend wondered aloud about the accuracy of wartime atrocity reports, the President showed him the film.
- The President has told this story several times.
- George Shultz heard the President tell the story to Shamir consistent with the version outlined above.
- Marshall Breger heard the President tell the story to Simon Weisenthal, consistent with the version outlined above.

The White House
Washington, D.C. 20025

Dear Mr. President:

Now that the Pope has forgiven his murderer and the United States has established diplomatic relations with the Vatican, may I ask you to use your influence to free one of the last German prisoners of war in Italy.

The man I am talking about is:

Major Walter Reder
Castello Angioino
I-04024 Gaeta - Italy.

He has been held in prison for 39 years and even the Italian left-wing press admits that it is a scandal for a democratic and Christian country to keep a German officer, decorated with one of the highest medals of honor the German Army could bestow, imprisoned, while Red Brigadists, who have committed many murders, are being released after a short time.

A priest, Don Dario Zanini, from Sasso Marconi (Marzabotto) visited Major Reder in the Spring of 1983 and wrote a 28-page long article about the case which was published under the title "I Matiri di Monte Sole (Marzabotto)", published in Bologna. I am sure the U.S. Embassy in Italy could provide you with a copy of this article.

Millions of Christmas bells have just proclaimed the message of Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Man. Don't let these be empty words fading away into nothingness, but let the spirit of German-American friendship, so boldly proclaimed during 1983, prevail. It would indicate your humanitarian concern and I am sure the German people would be grateful.

Respectfully yours,

Walter M. Baker

Dear General Knowles:

Thank you for your thought-provoking letter to the President of January 14, to which I have been asked to reply.

We agree with you that a divided Germany remains a source of tension in Europe; the U. S. Government continues to support the goal of peaceful German reunification.

The important question is how best to keep the peace for the U.S. and its friends in Western Europe until this peaceful reconciliation can be worked out. We and our allies adhere firmly to NATO as the best way yet conceived to achieve this goal. None of our Allies is in favor of withdrawing US forces from Western Europe, which would place Europe under an unacceptable threat from the Soviet Union. In such an event, U.S. forces would withdraw thousands of miles across the Atlantic while Soviet forces would only withdraw to Soviet territory in Europe. The Western Europeans rightly believe that under such circumstances, the Soviets would consider Western Europe a proper subject for intimidation. It is also doubtful that the Soviets would seriously consider at this time ending their control of Eastern Europe.

We appreciate your excellent points about the heavy cost of maintaining U.S. troops in Europe, and we do not underrate the political irritations that can arise over time from this situation. The simple fact is that the alternative would be much more damaging to U.S. national interests.

Sincerely,

January 14, 1985

Dear President Reagan:

It has been almost forty years since the end of the war in Europe. In spite of the many accomplishments in progress since that struggle, one overriding failure nags at all of us: the political division of Eastern and Western Europe, culminating in a prolonged anxiety that eventually something foolish may happen to trigger a devastating nuclear war. In general, we have hoped that the status quo would in some way take care of itself in time, so that we could all go back to enjoying the peace that we all pray for. This problem will not go away as long as the communists control Russia. Unless we are willing to wait indefinitely, we must make a strong, positive effort to resolve it peacefully, realizing that we cannot get something for nothing, especially peace. My proposal is offered to you as a loyal citizen to a respected President, not as a pasteurized retiree to his commander-in-chief. It probably will stir much controversy during analysis, but that prospect never stopped Americans in the past who wanted to do what they felt was right. With prejudice toward none and with apologies to those who may misunderstand my motives and react accordingly, here is my thesis.

if we are to untie our Gordian knot differently from Alexander the Great, who was definitely not a peacemaker, we must examine all the little ties to find out where to start. Europe is half slave and half free- fact not rhetoric. We cannot relieve the plight of any of the satellite countries without gambling that we may help create a near-war crisis, with one obvious exception: Germany. If we could somehow reunite the two Germanys, we would be starting to loosen the knot, which has been more like a tourniquet. There have been many discussions in many countries, none of which has resulted in the bold offer needed to overcome this impasse.

You have been working diligently to reduce the threat to peace while not making us vulnerable to an aggressor. Like your predecessors, you face a stand-off with no relief in sight. Arms control is a wonderful theory, if we are dealing with honorable adversaries, but the days of chivalry are over. If we truly want something, we should be willing to pay any honorable and reasonable price short of war. My suggestion is to propose to Russia that we withdraw all our armed forces from Europe and that Russia withdraw their forces in Europe to Mother Russia, leaving the satellites without military oppression. This is not an original idea. I believe that Russia made a similar suggestion many years ago. In addition, we would withdraw Allied and Russian control of Berlin, the inescapable key to this puzzle.

we may receive flak from many expected areas, especially from those who say we are abandoning our allies, but in light of our past history, they echo the motives of people whose slants are basically negative, not constructive. For example, time has made most of us forget that the French asked us to leave their soil in the 1950's and even withdrew their armed forces from NATO control. Their motives, primarily nationalistic pride, were honorable, but their timing was definitely questionable. If we had not had Germany and England to rely on for hosting our troops, we could have lost more of Europe by now to communist aggression. Today, modern technology has shrunk our world to the extent that we do not need to be physically in Europe to show force, provided Russia likewise stays home. There are many military solutions to such an arrangement, and you have many dedicated advisors to help you find them. It sure beats starting a war.

Speaking of our allies, they really do not want us in their countries any more than the satellites want the Russians, but they need us there as long as Russia stays too. Your most favorable rapport with the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom and with the Chancellor of West Germany should give you two strong endorsements among our friends. Germany, particularly, would welcome a solution that would ultimately reunite Germany. In fact, the anticipated delays with Russia would give the two Germanys more than ample time to straighten out their affairs. They would probably be ready before we are.

One final consideration should not be overlooked. As has been our custom after each war, we reduced our armed forces but were forced to reverse ourselves later because of the Russian threat. We have now a permanent active force much larger than any peaceful nation could ever imagine. It has cost us money, time, friendships, and respect, because we are now equated with the bad guys, unfortunately. Our military budget is prohibitive for the long pull. We have needed to retain an adequate defense because we have not resolved the European problem (I defer to your many other advisors how to do the same in the Orient, where Korea is really the only thorn in everyone's side). If our armed forces were stationed at home, we could devise appropriate strategies and plans to ensure adequate defense with less expense. Thank you for your indulgence and for the great service you have been providing to our country. I hope that my candid comments are accepted in the same sincere spirit in which they have been written.

Good luck. May God bless you.

Respectfully,

HAROLD F. KNOWLES

A New Step
on the Way to World Peace

L. Kijalis
Dear President Reagan:

Thank you for your supportive greeting which I received earlier this month.

Since then, new developments have taken place as indicated in the enclosed copy of my letter delivered today to the ambassadors of both Germanies. The letter is an invitation to the two neighbors to join the way to World Peace through Nationally Based International Action Against Physical Injury.

Also enclosed are copies of my recently revised professional resume in which I dedicate myself to continued leadership on the proposed action.

I hope that everything goes well on your visit to Germany to mark the end of World War II in Europe. The public reaction has revealed that work is needed for old wounds to heal and for new ones to cease to be created. The need exists in all parts of the world among all people.

Looking forward to the day when I am allowed to explain my initiative to you in person,

Sincerely yours,
Eira Mattson

A New Step
on the Way to World Peace

To the Governments and People of Both Germanies
through Their Embassies
in Washington

Dear Friends:

The awakening of painful memories of World War II and compassion for all concerned move me at this time to extend an invitation to you and your nations to join the Way to World Peace through already proposed Nationally Based International Action Against Physical Injury.

Others who are already considering the proposal include the governments of the United States and the five Scandinavian countries - Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway, and Sweden - to whom I presented it in 1983; India, to whom I presented it in 1984; and the Soviet Union, to whom I presented it last month.

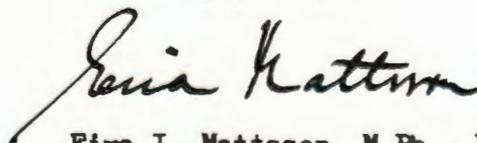

Healing of old wounds is necessary for the prevention of new ones. It can be achieved effectively only through all-encompassing action against all injury in all parts of the world.

The sooner we begin the proposed action, the sooner we shall be able to bring the problem under control on a worldwide basis. With the healing of wounds and the end to all war and injury, the world will be able to attend more effectively to other basic survival needs: food, clothing, and shelter.

For your convenience, copies of my professional resume are enclosed.

I shall be happy to discuss my proposal with you at any time and hope that you will support my action.

Sincerely yours,

Eira I. Mattsson, M.Ph., Ph.D.

Dear Mr. Rosemann:

Thank you for your letter of March 15, addressed to Mr. Deaver, with a copy of your letter to the IMF Executive Director and Letter of Intent attached.

We share your view that foreign private direct investment can provide important benefits to developing countries. Our government has certain programs to encourage such investment and will, for example, participate in the proposed OECD direct investment dialogue with selected developing countries. American corporations, of course, are present in many LDCs.

We thank you for letting us know about your center's efforts in the investment field and wish you the best in this endeavor.

Sincerely,

LETTER OF INTEND

To whom it may concern

In order to promote economic development around the world to an fro on a long term bases, from now far into the next century, we endeavour: to promote direct investment into developing countries for basic, advanced and luxury production- and service-facilities.

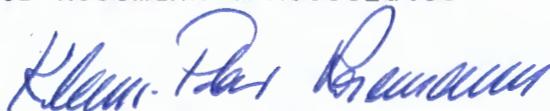

This, with the understanding, that any profits arrived at in the respective ventures, into which direct investments have been engaged from Europe or North-America, are to be reinvested in the developing countries, be it the country in which the profits are realized or in a neighbouring country or in another developing country. Take for instance the ECOWAS OR MANO RIVER UNION, where a company may spread in another country with its production and/or service facilities.

This type of effort creating for the European or American investor an ever increasing value of his original investment inside the developing country, only limited by taxation and opportunities, due to the reinvestment of the profits by the company producing them, and in order for him to realize this added value together with his original investment, he is to transfer the ownership within Europe or North-America, leaving the invested money and profits in the developing country, for at least 10 to 20 years, and thereafter just to draw the dividends, leaving the principal investment indefinitely in the developing country.

It is intended, with this type of effort, to advance and excel the speed of economic development of developing countries beyond the present acceleration towards a new economic order in the world, and to secure income for European and North-American investors from the developing world in the distant future, in order that they may pay from this future income: rawmaterials, products and services required from the developing world, among them the services of the tourist industry.

You, that is the readers of this letter of intend, are hereby invited to join the effort with money- and/or mind- and/or moral-support and to make this known to the world in general, and us in particular in order that we may co-ordinate potentials and forces towards a better and new economic order for the world.
