My dear Mr. President:

I was honored to receive your invitation to dinner on October 21, 1986 for Chancellor, Helmut Kohl.

I regret very much that I cannot be at the dinner. My doctor has advised me not to travel at this particular time.

Given the importance of this political moment, I know this meeting will be valuable for you and the Chancellor.

With warmest best wishes to you and Mrs. Reagan.

Kohl Visit: Presidential Remarks SUBJECT:

Attached are State's draft Presidential remarks for Chancellor Kohl's October 21 visit. The President will be making two sets of remarks: an arrival statement (Tab A) and a dinner toast (Tab B).

Both remarks need to expand on the results of Reykjavik. And we would like to see a little more emphasis on the benefits of a close U.S.-German relationship in the arrival statement.

Presidential Arrival Statement Visit of Chancellor Helmut Kohl October 20, 1986

Chancellor and Mrs. Kohl, Mr. Foreign Minister and Mrs. Genscher, and Distinguished Visitors:

On behalf of the American people, Nancy and I welcome you back to the United States. We have always enjoyed your visits and the opportunity they give to exchange our views and deepen our friendship.

We will be discussing many questions during your visit, Mr. Chancellor. Surely the most important among these is our desire -- which I know you share -- to forge a more secure world. In addition, as two of the most developed and prosperous countries in the world, we must seek to ensure that our policies contribute to economic growth and the free flow of goods and services worldwide. A reduction in tensions between the West and the Soviet Union is a special aim we have in common. I have only recently completed a series of frank and candid discussions with General Secretary Gorbachev directed to that goal. As we prepare for further serious discussions on the central issues of the East-West relationship with the Soviet leadership, I look forward to hearing your views on the common challenges we face.

Our talks together will indeed be talks among friends. Mr. Chancellor, you and I know NATO must stand united. We cannot hope to deal seriously with our adversaries if they feel they are succeeding in their tireless efforts to sow discord and misunderstanding among the Allies. Your visit is timely, Mr. Chancellor, and I look forward to consulting with you on measures to ensure a more peaceful world.

On behalf of all Americans, I bid you and Mrs. Kohl welcome to the United States.

Presidential Toast for State Dinner in Honor of Chancellor Helmut Kohl October 21, 1986

Mr. Chancellor and Mrs. Kohl, Mr. Foreign Minister and Mrs. Genscher, Distinguished Guests:

I am delighted to welcome you back to the United States. I am always pleased to talk with you, Mr. Chancellor, and to renew and strengthen the friendship we have enjoyed over these many years.

In a very real sense, our friendship symbolizes the historic and continuing friendship between the American and German people. Germans and Americans share common values and common goals. One of the most important of these goals is the deep desire of both our peoples to achieve a more peaceful world. I have long valued your advice, Mr. Chancellor, on ways in which we can move toward this goal; and in our conversations today, I was once again deeply impressed by your strong commitment to a world blessed with peace in freedom. The Federal Republic of Germany today is a living symbol of the victory of the human spirit. From the destruction and desolation of World War II, a new Germany has arisen. Germans are once again in the forefront of literature, the arts, music, business, and sports. The people of the Federal Republic of Germany are proof of man's determination to live in freedom and resist tyranny.

- 1

Next year we will celebrate the 750th anniversary of the great and proud city of Berlin. Berlin has a special meaning for me and all Americans. It is the living symbol of the divided world in which we live: in the west, a free, dynamic metropolis whose citizens enjoy the fundamental rights and freedoms of the Western democracies; across the infamous wall, a city whose people live under the heavy hand of totalitarianism. Berlin is a constant reminder that we must strive to overcome barriers to the free flow of ideas and people, and to the right of the individual to choose his own path and live his own life. We look forward to joining with you and contributing to the 750th birthday celebrations of this great city.

The United States is proud of its enduring commitment to the people of the Federal Republic of Germany. In the forty years since the ending of the Second World War, Americans and Germans have faced many common challenges. These have included economic reconstruction, the Cold War, the Berlin Wall, and the challenges of providing for the common defense of the West while pursuing a policy of dialogue and constructive engagement with our adversaries. We have faced these challenges together with mutual trust and in close cooperation. We both know that whatever future challenges we face, we will do so in a spirit of friendship.

I therefore propose a toast to you and Mrs. Kohl and to the Federal Republic of Germany.

CJ 💥

The President and Mrs. Reagan have asked me to convey their delight and pleasure that you are able to perform for the dinner honoring His Excellency the Chancellor of the Federal Republic of Germany and Mrs. Kohl at the White House on October 21, 1986.

The following points will hopefully clarify some of the details, and I will be happy to go into further detail with you at your convenience:

1. Air Transportation

The White House will reimburse you for first-class domestic transportation to and from Washington, D.C. for you and for coach to and from Washington for two members of your accompanying party.

2. Ground Transportation

The White House will also be responsible for ground transportation for you and your accompanying party. This is normally limited to and from airports and to and from the White House.

3. Hotel Accommodations

The White House will confirm hotel reservations for you for two nights at the Madison Hotel, which is very convenient to the White House and for one member of your accompanying party. The cost of these rooms will be the responsibility of the White House. This unfortunately does not include any incidentals charged to the room. We will need your full name, date of birth, and Social Security number, as well as that of your entire accompanying party.

4. Rehearsal

We normally rehearse around 2:30 p.m. the afternoon of the dinner.

5. Dress

The dress for the evening is black tie.

6. Dinner

Mr. Rick Miller has explained that you may not wish to attend the dinner, which is very understandable. Should you decide to attend the dinner, you should plan on arriving at the White House at 7:30 p.m. If you wish, we can take you to a holding room following the toasts allowing you a chance to freshen up prior to your performance. This allows you approximately 20 minutes. We will, of course, facilitate all of the arrivals and departures with White House vehicles.

7. Performance

You should plan on a 20-minute program, a copy of which we will need as soon as possible to be printed in our program. We will also need your biographic information for press and speech purposes. In the meantime, please do not hesitate to call (202/456-7064) as you have questions. We are greatly looking forward to your performance and want to do everything possible to make it a memorable occasion for you.

Sincerely,

Lerda Faella

MEMORANDUM FOR DONALD T. REGAN

FROM: ALFRED H. KINGON

SUBJECT: Stoltenberg Meeting

I had a debrief from Darman this morning on the state of play with the Germans.

They have been polite but adamant that under the current circumstances they will not move the discount rate down.

- A. While they concede slow growth in the first quarter, they had very strong growth in the second quarter (both factually correct). They insist they are on a 3% real growth path which, with their declining population, is their potential. (They do not comment on their 9+% unemployment.)
- B. They point out that their monetary growth exceeds their targets.
- C. Their inflation is at zero, having been negative in the next quarter. They believe it is extremely important for them economically not to be seen to be fine tuning. They claim their financial markets are somewhat nervous and they shouldn't do anything to suggest in any way that things are not excellent -especially with their elections coming up in January. They cannot in any way appear to be discatisfied.
- D. They do concede that if there is a softening of significance they will commit to review the situation and determine if it is better to lower the discount rate or accelerate their tax cut but it is their preference not to do anything now or before January.

Our response has been that (a) while the second quarter growth is good, it doesn't appear sustainable; (b) that a U.S. recession would be very bad for the whole world and the risks of such are far higher than the risk of inflation resuming in Germany. A discount rate cut is a small thing for them to do to instill world confidence. The Germans were unresponsive to this argument but the talks were amicable.

The Germans are looking to you to see whether it is just the Treasury that feels this way or whether the whole Administration is supportive of the Baker argument.

There is an additional important side-light which I will impart to you in private tomorrow morning.

GERMANY: Outlook for 1986-87

Real German economic growth rebounded sharply in second quarter, up 14.3% (saar), after a 4.3% (saar) decline in the first quarter. However, real growth in first half 1986 rose only 0.3% over previous six months but second half is forecast to rise some 3.5% over first half 1986. We forecast 3.3% average growth in 1986 (4.8% on a 4th/4th basis), compared to the official forecast of 3%. For 1987 we forecast a marked deceleration in real GNP during the year, resulting in only 1.7% (4th/4th) growth. For the year as a whole we foresee 3.7% above the year average 1986 level, which is pulled down by the weak first half. Germans forecast 3% growth again next year.

- -- Consumption, public and private, has replaced exports as main force to growth.
- -- Equipment investment forecast to continue strong this year and next.
- -- Decline in housing construction halted this year, with 4% real increase expected in 1987.
- -- By end 1987 growth will have decelerated markedly, raising doubts as to sustainability of expansion into 1988 and beyond. Second stage tax cut in 1988 not adequate to significantly raise growth expectations. Planned tax reform not likely to be implemented before 1988.

Inflation performance excellent, August rate down 0.4% from the year earlier month. Zero inflation forecast for 1986 and a minor rise to 1.5% for 1987.

Despite half million new jobs created in 1985-86, unemployment remains high at 8.8% (sa) in August, with 9% average forecast for 1986, declining to 8.7% in 1987.

Current short-term interest rates at 4.5% down slightly over past twelve months; real interest rates high; discount rate last cut by a half point to 3.5% in March. Monetary growth at 7.1% in August continues well above upper end of 3.5 - 5.5% target range.

Government expenditure is rising less than increase in nominal GNP. Federal deficit estimated at 1.2% of GNP in 1986 and 1987.

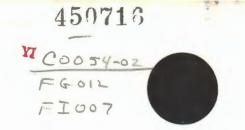

1986 current account surplus forecast to more than double in dollar terms to $29.4 billion (3.4% of GNP) and decline slightly to $26 billion (2.7% of GNP) in 1987. Trade surplus forecast to rise from $25 billion to $51 billion in 1986 and drop slightly to $49 billion in 1987.

MEMORANDUM FOR DONALD T. REGAN

FROM: ALFRED H. KINGON

SUBJECT: Gerhard Stoltenberg Meeting

I had a debrief from Darman this morning on the state of play with the Germans.

They have been polite but adamant that under the current circumstances they will not move the discount rate down.

- A. While they concede slow growth in the first quarter, they had very strong growth in the second quarter (both factually correct). They insist they are on a 3% real growth path which, with their declining population, is their potential. (They do not comment on their 9+% unemployment.)
- B. They point out that their monetary growth exceeds their targets.
- C. Their inflation is at zero, having been negative in the next quarter. They believe it is extremely important for them economically not to be seen to be fine tuning. They claim their financial markets are somewhat nervous and they shouldn't do anything to suggest in any way that things are not excellent -especially with their elections coming up in January. They cannot in any way appear to be dissatisfied.
- D. They do concede that if there is a softening of significance they will commit to review the situation and determine if it is better to lower the discount rate or accelerate their tax cut but it is their preference not to do anything now or before January.

Our response has been that (a) while the second quarter growth is good, it doesn't appear sustainable; (b) that a U.S. recession would be very bad for the whole world and the risks of such are far higher than the risk of inflation resuming in Germany. A discount rate cut is a small thing for them to do to instill world confidence. The Germans were unresponsive to this argument but the talks were amicable.

The Germans are looking to you to see whether it is just the Treasury that feels this way or whether the whole Administration is supportive of the Baker argument.

There is an additional important side-light which I will impart to you in private tomorrow morning. 2
