SUMMIT SECTION

The main themes of this Summit will be similar to and will build upon those of Williamsburg. However, unlike last year, there will be no debate about the fact that recovery has occurred. The fundamental, long-term programs that you have put into place since Ottawa have led the United States and its Summit partners to economic recovery and strengthened security cooperation. The London Summit thus provides an opportunity to further your twin goals of peace and prosperity through increased Allied support and cooperation in achieving both.

Starting from an agreement that recovery has occurred, the purpose of this Summit is to express the leaders' confidence that recovery can be sustained through policies which, in large measure, echo the themes you first advanced in 1981 at Ottawa and which, today, have been accepted by all. Discussion will focus on ways to ensure that our recovery is spread to other countries, especially the developing countries with serious debt problems. Our main objectives are to confirm that our strategy for managing debt problems is working and will continue to be relevant in the years ahead; that it has a medium-term dimension which should be stressed at this Summit; and that we need to put in place now an action program to enhance the openness of the international trade and financial systems during the rest of this decade and beyond.* This is a transition summit, validating the policies you have implemented during the first term and laying the foundations of your strategy for international economic policy for your next term.

The political agenda is yet to be prepared. However, we expect to stress the need for closer cooperation in combating state-supported terrorism, the value of the trilateral North American-Europe-Japan relationship, to continued prospects for peace in freedom and the need for the Soviets to respond positively to our desire for a more stable and constructive relationship.

- * With the continued threat of escalation of the Iran-Iraq War, you may also wish to call attention to the importance of U.S. led initiatives within the International Energy Agency to coordinate oil stock policies in the event of an oil shock.

CONCLUSION

--Highlight a year of success.

--Continuity of policy.

As you take off from Europe, Mr. President, it will conclude not only your European trip, but a year of successful foreign policy initiatives -- including the Williamsburg Summit, critical economic and security agreements; your visit to Japan and Korea and most recently your successful trip to China.

(Feel free to elaborate on/edit the above)

MEMORANDUM FOR WILLIAM F. MARTIN

FROM: TYRUS W. COBE TC
SUBJECT: Naval Assistance for Normandy

I understand from Phil Dur that the U.S. Navy is interested in providing the CVN "Eisenhower" for use during the President's visit to Normandy. The rationale would be that the ship could provide a logistics/communications base to support the trip. Further, it could add a nice touch to the ceremonies, given Ike's identification with the D-Day landings. Apparently, the only thing the Navy would want is a certain visibility; e.g., the President helicopters from England to the carrier and then to Normandy.

Does this seem to be of any interest? If so, to whom would the recommendation be sent?

MEMORANDUM FOR: Allen Wallis
Under Secretary of State for Economic Affairs

SUBJECT: CIA Support During the London
Economic Summit

1. In response to your request for ~~CIA~~ support during this year's Economic Summit, the Agency has designated Messrs. [REDACTED] as briefing officers to provide on-site briefings for senior U.S. Delegation members, or their assistants, at London. Messrs. [REDACTED] are seasoned briefing officers. As you may recall, they performed the same function at last year's Williamsburg Summit. They are fully familiar with the Summit issues and are working closely with Summit preparatory officers in the Department and on the National Security Council Staff.

2. I would appreciate your forwarding a copy of this memorandum to the White House officials responsible for obtaining appropriate credentials for access to the London on-site delegation. All portions of this memorandum are CONFIDENTIAL.

TO THE WHITE HOUSE

~~C O N F I D E N T I A L~~ 191845Z MAR 84 VIA PRIVACY CHANNELS

FROM AMBASSADOR PRICE - LONDON
FOR MR. MICHAEL DEEVER - THE WHITEHOUSE
SUBJECT: THE ECONOMIC SUMMIT: PUBLIC AFFAIRS FOCUS FOR THE PRESIDENT
MIKE, FURTHER TO OUR CONVERSATIONS WHILE YOU WERE HERE, I RECOMMEND GOING FOR A CLEAR, SIMPLE SUMMIT MESSAGE THAT WILL CUT THROUGH THE MEDIA NOISE AND ASSERT THE PRESIDENT'S LEADERSHIP. IF YOU WANT TO HOLD A DISCUSSION IN WASHINGTON, WHICH I THINK IS HIGHLY DESIRABLE TO FURTHER REFINE OUR APPROACH, MAY I SUGGEST THE WEEKEND
OF APRIL 7-8 SO I CAN CLAIM MY CAMP DAVID JACKET.

THE BASIC ECONOMIC AND POLITICAL THEMES SHOULD BE SOUNDED WELL
IN ADVANCE IN WASHINGTON, AND REPEATED OFTEN ENOUGH TO SINK IN HERE
AND AT HOME BEFORE THE SUMMIT OPENS. EVEN THOUGH THE SUMMIT IS AN ECONOMIC ONE, WE BELIEVE THE MOST MILEAGE CAN BE MADE FROM THE PRESIDENT'S POSITIVE APPROACH TO DEALING WITH THE USSR AND ARMS CONTROL.

A. ECONOMIC THEME

THE PRESIDENT'S POLICIES HAVE PRODUCED A STRONG AND SUSTAINED DOMESTIC RECOVERY THAT IS PROVIDING STIMULUS TO BRING THE
WEST OUT OF RECESSION. WITH SUPPORT FROM COUNTRIES FOLLOWING
SIMILAR POLICIES, WE CAN LOOK FORWARD TO INTERNATIONAL PROSPERITY
AND SECURITY IN THE YEARS AHEAD. IN PARTICULAR, THE U.S. EXPERIENCE

IN EXPANDING EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES (CONTRASTING SHARPLY WITH THE EUROPEAN EXPERIENCE) SHOWS THE IMPORTANCE OF REMOVING IMPEDIMENTS TO STRUCTURAL ADJUSTMENT.

HOW TO DEVELOP IT

THIS SIMPLE MESSAGE (ALREADY ADOPTED BY THE NSC) SHOULD BE SOUNDED REPEATEDLY BY THE PRESIDENT AND HIS SPOKESMEN IN THE RUNUP TO THE SUMMIT.

IN LONDON, THE PRESIDENT CAN REPEAT IT IN HIS INTERVIEWS ON TELEVISION.

B. POLITICAL THEME

THE PRESIDENT, WHILE MAINTAINING EFFECTIVE DEFENSES, IS TAKING A POSITIVE APPROACH TO DEALING WITH THE USSR AND THE PROBLEM OF ARMS CONTROL.

HOW TO DEVELOP IT

THE PRESIDENT'S JANUARY 16 SPEECH SET THE BASIC TONE.

AT THE PRESIDENT'S MEETING WITH ALLIED FOREIGN MINISTERS AT THE MAY 29-31 NATO MEETING IN WASHINGTON, THE PRESIDENT CAN REAFFIRM THE THRUST OF HIS JANUARY 16 SPEECH IN A FORCEFUL WAY THAT WILL BE ECHOED AND SUPPORTED BY THE NATO MINISTERIAL COMMUNIQUE. HE SHOULD STRESS TO MINISTERS THAT THE SOVIETS BEAR THE ONUS FOR THE LACK OF PROGRESS; WE REMAIN COMMITTED TO NEGOTIATIONS.

IN LONDON, THE SUMMIT CONSULTATIONS ON ECONOMIC ISSUES, AND THE PRESIDENT'S BILATERAL VISITS TO IRELAND, NORMANDY, AND LONDON, CAN BE SUPPLEMENTED BY A HALF-DAY MEDIA FOCUS, SAY ON JUNE 7, ON THE PRESIDENT'S STANCE TOWARD THE USSR.

IN EUROPE, THERE WILL BE KEEN INTEREST IN THE OUTLOOK FOR U.S. RELATIONS WITH THE USSR. THE QUESTION WILL BE WHETHER THE PRESIDENT'S JANUARY 16 STATEMENT WAS "SINCERE" OR DESIGNED TO MEET ELECTORAL PRESSURES.

THE PRESIDENT, BUILDING ON HIS EARLIER PRESENTATIONS HIGHLIGHTING HIS CONSTRUCTIVE POSTURE TOWARD THE USSR, EVEN IN THE FACE OF SOVIET INTRANSIGENCE, WILL EVOKE A WARM AND SUPPORTIVE RESPONSE IN EUROPE THAT WILL PLAY BACK TO THE UNITED STATES. THE ALLIES WILL BE SEEN TO BE WITH HIM.

NO OTHER NON-ECONOMIC ISSUE (MIDDLE EAST, AFRICA, CENTRAL AMERICA) WOULD HAVE THE SAME BROAD IMPACT AND APPEAL.

RECALLED

WHITE HOUSE SITUATION ROOM

DTG: 191845Z MAR 84 PSN: 052368

THE PRESIDENT'S STRAIGHTFORWARD MESSAGE CAN BE DEVELOPED UNILATERALLY: THERE IS NO NEED FOR CONSULTATIONS WITH ALLIES WHICH WOULD LEAK. A FORCEFUL STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT WILL ACCOMPLISH NINETY-EIGHT PERCENT OF OUR OBJECTIVES IN TERMS OF PUBLIC IMPACT. EVEN A SUPPORTING AGREED STATEMENT BY THE ALLIES WOULD BE DULL NEWS THEREAFTER. SO WE NEED NOT TRY TO EVOKE A POLITICAL SUMMIT STATEMENT FROM THE ALLIES, WHO WOULD HAGGLE AND THEN COMPLAIN IF THE PRESIDENT DEPARTED IN HIS OWN COMMENTS FROM AN AGREED SUMMIT STATEMENT LINE.

SPECIAL MEDIA OPPORTUNITIES IN LONDON

TO EMPHASIZE THESE THEMES. I RECOMMEND BEFORE THE SUMMIT: A TV INTERVIEW. WITH A DISTINGUISHED. COOPERATIVE BRITISH INTERVIEWER, LIKE ALISTAIR BURNETT.

POSSIBLY A MEETING WITH BRIGHT HIGH-SCHOOL STUDENTS AT A SUITABLE SCHOOL IN LONDON NEAR WINFIELD HOUSE. THE EIGHTEEN-YEAR-OLDS IN BRITAIN ARE PRO-U.S. AND PRO-NATO, FOR THE MOST PART: AN UNTELEVISED, SPONTANEOUS MEETING WITH SUCH YOUNGSTERS WOULD SHOW THE PRESIDENT REACHING-OUT TO THE NEXT GENERATION IN EUROPE. TO GIVE IT EXTRA IMPACT, THE ENCOUNTER SHOULD NOT BE FIXED IN ADVANCE WITH THE PRESS; RATHER, IT SHOULD APPEAR A SPUR-OF-THE-MOMENT MEETING, SHOWING THE PRESIDENT CONSCIOUS OF THE NEED TO BUILD BRIDGES TO EUROPE'S NEXT LEADERS.

MEMORANDUM FOR BILL MARTIN

FROM: STEVE STEINER SES
SUBJECT: President's Trip to Europe

*Wait - Any further thoughts?
Steve*

I have read your excellent memo with great interest. I think this is a very good start in putting together what we want to do for the trip.

I have only a few suggestions in regard to public handling of the trip.

-- A very good link between the Summit and the Normandy visit is to put the present success of Western institutions, including the Summit 7, OECD and NATO, into certain historical perspective. For example, Normandy symbolizes on the one hand the great losses that we and the other Western nations suffered in World War II. But the President's visit there and his participation in the London Summit, as well as in the Williamsburg Summit and NATO Summit earlier, show how well the Western democracies have worked together after the War to build an international structure of peace and prosperity. Our NATO deterrent strategy is a time-proven formula which has kept the peace and needs to be preserved.

o In careful ways, we can also make the point that we learned well from the historical mistakes made after World War I when we disengaged too quickly from the Continent.

o We have three major audiences in all of this: the Europeans, whom we want to keep their U.S. orientation; the Japanese, whom we want to work more closely with Europe and the U.S.; and the U.S. public, with whom this will prove useful in demonstrating why we must maintain our commitment to Europe and Japan.

o In the Normandy ceremonies, we must be cognizant of German sensitivities. I think, however, that the themes above are all broad enough to encompass Germany as part of the new, prosperous and secure West without labelling them or Japan as former enemies.

-- We need more themes to link the three major components of the Western democracies, i.e., North America, Europe and Japan, all coming closer in a spirit of cooperation.

-- I think there is room for more emphasis here on the shared democratic values of all the countries with whom the President will be involved on the trip, and of the need for all of us to promote the forces of democracy around the world.

-- There are some places where in discussion of the Summit you need specific mention of Japan, for example, second full tic on page 3. Comments concerning the NATO Allies do not always cover Japan, and could sometimes cause problems there if Japan is implicitly included.

-- On page 4, IV, I think we should refer to the Landing in Normandy rather than the "Invasion." Today's public perception is that invasions are performed by aggressors.

-- On page 6, VI, under Germany, we should strike the words "and nuclear" in the third to last line. The reason is that we are not really encouraging the Allies to do more in the nuclear area. That has largely been our role. What we want from the Allies is to do more in the conventional area, particularly with advanced technology.

All of this is important in trying to solve our present public diplomacy problems. The public tends to view war and peace as complete opposites and as the only alternatives facing our country. We should learn from history, however, that our commitments in countries of importance to us are going to have to be sustained over a long time. We have to make the public more aware of this, give the public a more basic understanding of the complexities we face and instill greater public patience.

Thank you for sharing this with me. I would appreciate it if you could include me as part of the regular process in planning for this trip as well as for the President's trip to China, as the public diplomacy dimensions of both trips will be vital.

I am passing a copy of your memo and of my comments to Walt, who may have additional thoughts.

FROM: BILL MARTIN<sup>T</sup>
SUBJECT: The President's Trip to Europe

Cathy Torgerson has prepared the attached scene setter piece on the President's trip to Europe this June. It draws heavily on our discussion of last month plus input from State and the NSC from a variety of sources. I would welcome your comments on the paper. I would hope that Doug could pay special attention to the Summit section. Ty, Gaston and Peter's comments would be welcome on the European bilaterals. Gil and Ollie should pay special attention to the sections on space and terrorism. I would like Roger to take a crack at the final editing.

It is my hope that we can provide this paper to Bud by the end of the week, so I would urge that you provide comments to Cathy or me by noon Thursday. Thanks.

I.

The Setting

Since the President's last visit to Europe during the 1981 Versailles Summit, he has made successful trips to Japan, Korea, China and effectively chaired the historic Williamsburg Summit. This trip to Europe is an opportunity to build upon these past successes.

The President's June trip, although centered on the London Summit, presents a unique opportunity for him to focus American and European attention on a broader theme - the strength, endurance and democratic focus of the Atlantic Alliance. Atlantic solidarity and American preparedness, which this Administration has strengthened, now place the United States and the Europeans in a position to pursue vigorously a curb in the arms race and a reduction of global tensions.

In addition, the ties between the West and the Pacific are growing. By June the President will have made two trips to East Asia, thereby opening new avenues for cooperation between the Allies in contributing to the peace and prosperity of the region. Implementation of the Pacific Basin Initiative, which was developed as a element of the November trip, is also proceeding smoothly.

Despite optimism about continued world economic recovery and allied relations in general, the President will again face questions and some criticism of US policies at home and abroad. The deficit, the US stance in Lebanon and Central America, relations with the Soviet Union -- all will be on the minds of the 8 leaders he will meet during his week visit. During the bilateral and multilateral discussions, the President will have the opportunity to explain our position and discuss other key issues with our closest friends.

The settings for the visits to Ireland and Normandy are colorful and dramatic. The simple countryside of Ireland, the stark beaches of Normandy and the historic splendor of London provide the President with a perfect backdrop for his themes of peace and prosperity, and the importance of Allied support and cooperation to both. This is also an excellent opportunity, as the President's last trip overseas before the election, to build upon his image as a powerful and strong leader of the Western world.

II.

Results/Headlines

The public diplomacy efforts should be similar to those developed for the President's trip to Japan and Korea and China. It should unfold in three phases:

-- first, the lead-in to the trip, demonstrating the continuity of the Summits

-- second, the trip itself, highlighting events, agreements, speeches and meetings

-- third, the follow-up consolidation of the results and successes of the President, such as the Allies' participation in the fight against terrorism and the space program.

While the President is travelling in Europe, we can expect the following headlines at home:

--President Reagan Warmly Welcomed by Thousands of Irish; Pledges Continued Close Relations between the US and Ireland. The President will begin his trip to Europe in Ireland, and it will be a very upbeat and positive stop. Themes of peace, within Ireland, Europe and the world will be emphasized.

--Allies Return to Normandy 40 Years Later and Reconfirm Commitment to the Western Alliance and Peace. During ceremonies the President and other leaders will focus on the immediate past and the bright prospects for the future, as well as the invaluable role the Alliance has played in the improvement of the military, political and economic conditions within Europe.

--At London Summit Leaders Reaffirm Linkages between Economic Recovery, Free Trade and Financial Stability; Agree to Hold Round of Multilateral Trade Negotiations in Coming Months. The Allies will recommit themselves to the successful policies of Williamsburg and continue with their implementation.

-- Communique Soundly Condemns Terrorism and Allies Initiate Joint Action Against Groups. In addition to economic initiatives, other cooperative efforts may be undertaken at the Summit. The Bonn Summit, at which the leaders spontaneously condemned terrorism, sets a precedent for such action.

--Alliance Enters the 21st Century: Europeans Join the U.S. in the Manned Space Station Program. An agreement reached at the Summit would be especially dramatic within the historical context of the trip. This initiative will symbolize to the world how far the Alliance has progressed: from the beaches of Normandy to the frontiers of Space.

--Nakasone Pledges Acceleration of Trade Liberalizing Activities. During conversations with Prime Minister Nakasone, the President will have the opportunity to follow-up on the initiatives undertaken as part of his trip to the Far East in 1983.

III. Overall Objectives and Themes

--Promote American foreign policy objectives. The President should use events during this trip to reconfirm our commitment to close Allied cooperation on political and economic issues throughout the world including, European economic recovery, a strong NATO, a democratic Central America and the LDC debt problem.

--Recommitment to the successful policies adopted in the "Spirit of Williamsburg". Our strategy is to build upon the consensus begun during the Ottawa and Versailles Summits, and cemented during the Williamsburg Summit. The Allies have successfully worked together to promote sustainable, non-inflationary growth. In addition, they have forged a consensus on East-West economic relations. Our goal is not only to continue in this spirit, but to go beyond it through the advancement and consolidation of gains made in the areas of economic growth and trade.

How we all worked together after the war - organized right for peace + prosperity. Don't throw away successful formula.

Need something showing the 3 components of "West" all coming closer, shared values, etc.

Shared democ. values shd also be emphasized.

--Reaffirmation of the Role of the United States in Leading the World Recovery. The strong US recovery, which began last year as a result of policies espoused by the President, is fueling growth in other Summit countries and the world. The President's continued leadership is essential to consolidate and build upon the economic gains made since Williamsburg.

--Strengthen bilateral political and economic relations with key allies. This will be accomplished through the visits to Ireland, Normandy and the bilaterals in London. These events will build upon initiatives undertaken during the President's Far East Trip and meetings in Washington in March with Fitzgerald, Kohl and Mitterrand. Leaders will recommit themselves to the basic policies of the Atlantic Alliance, and specific goals such as the curbing of the arms race and a reduction in global tensions.

Need sent on Japanese

--Pursue new cooperation in space. The leaders of the OECD community should be urged to join with the United States in this exciting frontier effort for the 1980's and 1990's.

--Take joint action against terrorism. During the Summit, the allies will announce the results of current intergovernmental negotiations on measures against this dangerous and unacceptable threat to democratic institutions.

--Encourage prosperity and democratic institutions in developing nations. Developing nations have greatly profited from the OECD countries work toward non-inflationary growth and the opening of world markets. The economic and political growth of Third World countries is dependent upon continued effective cooperation between developed and developing nations in the areas of trade and investment. New trade liberalizing initiatives, for which the Summit could lay the groundwork, are essential for their economic health in the 1990's. The Allies can also play a positive role through private investment and participation in the CBI and Central American Initiative.

IV.

Ireland

Objective: The President's visit to his ancestral home reemphasizes our historic and cultural ties to Ireland, and offers a chance to acknowledge the contributions the Irish-American community has made to the growth of our country. Themes such as freedom, support for European integration (Ireland will assume the EC presidency less than a month after the visit) and Atlantic solidarity can be emphasized. In addition, this stop will provide a unique opportunity for a personal glimpse at the President during a trip in which he will primarily play the role of the Leader of the Free World.

Issues: The Irish view this stop as a symbol of the friendship between our two countries, and as a chance to promote Irish tourism and private investment. Opportunities for private and public political discussions are limited, therefore the President will be able to confine his remarks on Northern Ireland to a rejection of violence and a call for a peaceful solution to the tragedy. Other issues that could be raised during discussions with Irish leaders are the importance of resolving the EC's budgetary and financial problems and our efforts on arms reductions.

Events: The President will visit his paternal grandfather's home of Ballyporeen, tour the Irish countryside, and proceed to Dublin for a State Dinner, a call upon President Hillery and a short meeting with PM Fitzgerald.

IV.

Normandy

Landing in
Objective: On the 40th Anniversary of the Invasion of Normandy, the President will pay tribute to the Americans and other allies who gave their lives in the fight for liberation. In addition, D-Day will be heralded as the beginning of the transatlantic relationship which has brought an unprecedented period of peace and prosperity to Europe. This could be the major public diplomacy event of the trip. The beaches of Normandy provide a dramatic setting for a theme that will recur throughout the trip: the importance of Atlantic cooperation and American initiative in the political, military and economic well-being of the West.

Issues: While events during the day will necessarily involve tributes to the military, reconciliation should be emphasized.

Careful re Germans
Events: The President will make a day excursion from London to Normandy. He will speak at Utah Beach at the Ranger Memorial, as well as participate in events with other European leaders. His speech on the beach should be forward-looking and upbeat: historical references to the importance of transatlantic cooperation in the economic revitalization of Europe and reintegration of Germany into the West introduce themes regarding the bright future of the Alliance.

V.

London Economic Summit

Objectives:

People want get to "peace time normalcy" & forget the war but learn from hist
--Carry on the Spirit of Williamsburg. The purpose of this Summit is to strengthen and spread world economic recovery, through the continued opening of trade and financial markets. The Allies will review actions taken during the past year in five main areas: convergence of the performance of their economies; reversal of the trend toward protectionism, perhaps through a new round of multilateral trade negotiations; a continuation and strengthening of coordination among trade and financial policies; confirmation of the consensus on East-West economic relations; and a review of the successful implementation of the international debt strategy.

Secret

--Portray role of the U.S. economy. The health of our economy is our best defense against European attempts to blame the US deficit and monetary policy on their slow economic recovery. The U.S., however, is in a strong economic position, and can afford to make magnanimous gestures and symbolic compromises on several issues in order to bolster their slow economic recovery. This strategy is a wise public affairs move and would protect the President's overall economic policies from challenge.

careful re Japan --Strengthen the political will of our Allies. The leaders should pledge to work for the continuing improvement of the Alliance, and be prepared to cooperate on initiatives such as counterterrorism, the manned-space station program and the development of a strategy to deal with a crisis in Persian Gulf.

Issues:

--Non-inflationary growth. This was the basic goal of the Williamsburg Summit and the successful strategy adopted domestically. The industrialized nations must ensure that non-inflationary growth is sustained through macro-economic policies and encouragement of investments.

--Multilateral Surveillance and Convergence Consultations. The multilateral surveillance process established at Williamsburg is partly responsible for the convergence of inflation rates, at significantly reduced levels, and generally strong growth rates among SDR countries. The OECD leaders will review the performance of their economies in the past year and predict their future outlook, as well as endorse the success of the consultative process and reaffirm their commitments to it.

--Trade. The need for a new multilateral round of trade-liberalizing negotiations, in an effort to contain protectionism and produce an open trading environment, is recognized by our Allies. The President should call for affirmative steps in organizing these talks at the Summit. He must reconfirm his belief in the separation of government and the marketplace in order to reassure our trading partners that the protectionist mood within the US will not overcome our international economic initiatives.

--North-South: The President will emphasize the benefits the LDC's are gaining from the policies adopted by the industrial nations which have led to World economic recovery. In addition, a discussion of the role of private investment in development as found in CBI and the Central American Peace Initiative, and discussed at the Cancun Conference would be appropriate and beneficial.

--Finance/Debt: The allies will review the success of the Williamsburg strategy: the adjustment programs adopted by debtor nations, increased private and official financing, the opening of markets, and the beneficial results of dealing with the LDC debt problem on a case-to-case basis.

--Monetary: The Allies, focusing on their slow recovery and high unemployment, may blame the US budget deficit, interest rates, and dollar for their economic woes. The US must be ready to refocus the leaders attention to trade liberalization and coordination of trade and financial policies.

--Economic rigidities. The importance of lessening fiscal, financial, regulatory and other rigidities within national economies, which prevent adjustments to change and lead to unemployment will be discussed. Within this context, leaders could discuss the acceleration of the adaption of high-technology by the industrial economies.

--Energy: We must work to ensure that Summit nations are adequately prepared individually and collectively to meet the challenge of an expanded war in the Gulf with subsequent disruptions in the West's flow of oil. Technical details will be developed during the spring within the International Energy Agency (IEA).

--East-West: Allies should reconfirm their commitment to a dialogue aimed at maintaining a close consensus on East-West economic relations. They may also examine the results of work programs undertaken by the OECD, IEA, COCOM and NATO during the past year.

--Terrorism: A statement of mutual concern over terrorism could be incorporated into the final Communique. The substantive depth of the announcement depends on the progress made in negotiations between the governments which have begun outside the Summit process.

--Manned Space Station Program: After an assessment of the Allies interest in participation, an announcement (broad or substantive) could be made at the Summit.

VI.

Bilaterals

During his stay in London, the President will meet in private with all the other leaders.

Germany: Chancellor Helmut Kohl will probably push for American initiative toward the new Soviet leadership in order to improve the political climate and the chances for arms control. The President should make it clear to him that he is ready to meet with Chernenko whenever such a meeting would have the prospect of accomplishing something tangible. In this context, the President can reaffirm our commitment to European security as well as the need for greater Allied contributions to improving NATO's conventional and nuclear deterrent. Improvement and support of projected German economic recovery produced by the market-oriented policies adopted by Kohl may also be discussed.

France: During his meeting with the President, President Francois Mitterrand may reiterate his support for the US role in the defense of Europe, including our firm position on arms negotiations. The leaders may also emphasize the importance of continued US-French cooperation and coordination on key regional issues, such as Lebanon, Chad and the Gulf. Another possible topic for discussion is the progress the two governments have made in coordinating activities against terrorism. In recent months, the French appear more aware of the terrorist threat they face, and more willing to act. We may be able to reach further understanding of bilateral and multilateral efforts against terrorism. While the French will highlight the health of the relations between our two countries, they may decide to use this opportunity to voice disagreement with US policy in Central America.

Japan: This meeting with Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone is a follow-up to the President's Far East trip last November. During the President's state visit to Japan, the two leaders discussed issues involving trade, finance, energy, security assistance and defense. Officials from both have been working since November, and the two leaders will review their progress in the following areas:

- Trade: The President should seek further opening of the Japanese market.
- Finance: He should build upon the Foreign Ministers agreement to internationalize the yen, thereby improving the yen/dollar exchange rate.
- Energy: Building on his agreement with Nakasone in November, he should acknowledge the Japanese agreement to buy a minimal amount of metallurgic coal and encourage them to expand purchases of U.S. steam coal and gas.
- Defense: The President should praise Nakasone's action to increase defense spending.

This meeting is also another chance for the President to convey directly to Nakasone and the world that close relations with Japan and other nations of East Asia and the Pacific region are a high priority for the United States.

United Kingdom: The President will meet with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher during a private dinner during which strategy and issues will be discussed in a relaxed and friendly atmosphere. This dinner affords the President the opportunity to discuss a widerange of bilateral and multilateral issues, as well as glean Thatcher's perspective on the Summit. (Sommer to expand).

Other: The President will also meet with the leaders of Canada, Italy, and the EC. These meetings, as well as those described above, should be viewed not as an occasion for negotiation of detailed new agreements or dramatic breakthrough, but as an opportunity for the Heads to meet together and review what has been accomplished since they last met, to refine their thinking on the directions they have separately and collectively traced for their governments to follow and to discuss possible new avenues they wish to explore together.

Within the context of these bilaterals the President must also be prepared to discuss various foreign policy issues, such as Lebanon and the Middle East, Central America and relations with the Soviet Union. The topics raised will depend on world events prior to the Summit.

VII. Preparations

The following is a chronological listing of benchmarks in the preparations for the President's trip to Europe.

- A. Deaver Survey Trip (March 11 - 13)
This visit has determined the broad parameters of the President's schedule and narrow the choice of Presidential events.
- B. Henkel Advance Trip (March 25 - April 1)
This mission will determine the final schedule for the President's visit. Plans for logistical support, such as security, communication and transportation, will also be developed.
- C. Annotated Agenda (April)
The NSC staff, in close coordination with State, the Advance Office and Speechwriters, will produce an annotated agenda, including a perspective on key meetings, events and Presidential statements. This will be provided to the President to give him an early indication of the substantive challenges of the trip.
- D. Sherpa Process (McMinn to provide)
- E. NSC Meetings (late April - June)
There will be an intensive series of NSC meetings briefing the President on his trip, with particular emphasis on the Summit. The format will be similar to the pattern followed for past trips. In addition to highlighting substantive issues, several of the briefings will focus on a meeting-by-meeting review, which should be especially useful for the bilaterals.
- F. Briefing Book (late April - May)
The NSC, in close cooperation with State, will provide a briefing book to the President well in advance of his departure. An updated version, taking account of the briefings, will be issued shortly before departure.
- G. Public Statements (May)
It is essential that the drafts of the President's major addresses be provided to the NSC and speechwriters well in advance of the trip.
- H. Public Statements (late May - June)
In the weeks prior to the Summit, the President and other members of the Administration should make statements regarding our goals for the trip, and the prospects for their achievement.

SUBJECT: ANNOUNCEMENT OF PRESIDENT'S VISIT TO IRELAND

1. IRISH MEDIA OVER PAST FEW DAYS HAS BEEN REPORTING
GENERALLY ACCURATE STORIES REGARDING PRESIDENT'S ITINERARY IN IRELAND. CERTAIN OF THESE STORIES INCLUDES STOPOVERS IN PLACES SUCH AS KILLARNEY AND CORK WHICH HAVE, AS YOU KNOW, ALREADY BEEN RULED OUT. DFA SECRETARY DONLON AND I DISCUSSED THESE STORIES AND HE HAS SUGGESTED THAT IT WOULD BE MOST DESIRABLE IF THE USG AND GOI COULD AGREE ON THE EARLIEST POSSIBLE JOINT ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE
PRESIDENT'S GENERAL ITINERARY HERE IN IRELAND. 7
SUCH AN ANNOUNCEMENT WOULD HAVE TWO IMMEDIATE BENEFITS. FIRST, IT WOULD TAKE SOME OF THE PRESSURE
