ANNEX

Contents on UNCTAD VI Trade Resolution

The UNCTAD VI trade resolution (Document TD/L 259) covered five areas: (1) protectionism, (2) structural adjustment, (3) the international trading system, (4) GSP, and (5) services. With the exception of services, the resolution was adopted without dissent (although with two important Group B reservations on the TDB's review of the resolution and its study of the international trading system). The services portion of the resolution was adopted by vote, with the U.S. voting against it and the rest of Group B giving an interpretive statement for their affirmative votes.

The section on protectionism adds very little to the Manila commitments on resisting protectionism, on standstill and rollback. The only potentially troublesome element on protectionism is the reference in paragraph 6 (a) for the TDB in its annual review of protectionism "to monitor the implementation of this resolution." Group B stated at the time of adoption that "...the TDB should monitor only the general situation and should not involve itself in the consideration of individual countries' implementation of the various commitments in this resolution. Recommendations by the TDB should, moreover, relate to the general problems of protectionism." The sections on structural adjustment and GSP involve no substantive change from pre-UNCTAD VI commitments. The section on the international trading system authorizes nothing more substantive than already is contained in Manufactures Division Director Figueredo's previous presentations to TDB meetings. Nevertheless, there is a danger that the Secretariat will use this small opening to push ahead on its objective of establishing new rules for the trading system and new principles for multilateral trade negotiations, both outside the GATT. It was for this reason that Group B made its statement in the final plenary that "any review or study by the TDB should be of a general character and should not be aimed at establishing a new set of rules for international trade."

The section on services calls on UNCTAD to continue its studies, which have been undertaken pursuant to UNCTAD's charter and TDB resolution 250 (XXIV). While the resolution contains no language that is prejudicial to the GATT's work on services, it does not contain an explicit acknowledgement of GATT's competence in services; this omission is the reason for the negative U.S. vote.
