So that there will be no misinterpretation or confusion as to remarks made by Governor Reagan at the Sacramento airport today, the following was transcribed from a tape recording of the interview:

"Well, I never set out to make a career of public life. I was coming about to the end of a career and looking forward to sitting on the porch in a rocking chair and I still haven't changed that. I did what I'm doing because I had some strong beliefs and thought that circumstances had put me in a place where I could be of some service."

Any implication that the governor is considering retiring from public life is in error. His reference to "end of a career" was to his career as an actor and not as governor.

The renewed request from the governor came as a result of newspaper ads in the Antelope Valley which said Valdez is associated with a Reagan for President committee.

was issued today:

"To: Heads of Agencies, Departments, Major Units and Other Key Personnel

Funeral services for the Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., will be held the week of April 8, 1968. Exact day and hour are now unknown, but will be made public as soon as possible.

Addressees of this memorandum will allow employees informal time off to attend memorial services as the employee may desire.

Widest possible dissemination of the information contained in this memorandum will be the responsibility of the above addressees."

The following is the text of a message from Governor Ronald Reagan that was delivered by Paul Beck, press secretary, to a group meeting at the State Capitol to pay tribute to Dr. Martin Luther King:

"A piece of our nation died last night. It started dying and Dr. Kings' murder began with our first acceptance of compromise with the laws of the land. That compromise ranges from our indifference when some would apply the law unequally to those today, black or white.

"The American dream that we have nursed so long is not that every man be level with every other man, but that every man be free to become whatever God intended he should be. Keeping this dream and this promise is our responsibility and we can do no less than to make sure that we pass it on to our children.

"One problem overshadows all others in this land and the cowardly hand of an assasin laid that problem on America's doorstep last night. No American should ever again have to tell his child he is denied some of the blessings of this land because he is in some way different. You and I can make the difference. We must insure equal rights and equal opportunity and equal treatment for all our citizens, and we can do this only be becoming involved ourselves."

Meanwhile, Governor Reagan's Executive Secretary William P. Clark Jr. restated the contents of a directive issued Friday permitting State employees informal time off to attend such memorial services as the employee may desire. The directive, which applies to all state employees, regardless of race, color or creed, was sent to heads of state agencies and departments and other key personnel.

Governor Ronald Reagan today issued the following statement regarding the opening of the major league baseball season Wednesday.

"The opening of the major league baseball season Wednesday will be most welcome to a nation beset by trouble and strife. I am hopeful it will presage a return to normalcy among our people and turn our minds to the better side of our national life.

"Baseball not only is a symbol of competition without rancor but also in recent years has offered Negroes of athletic ability unparalleled chances for fame and success.

"California in the last few years has become the major league baseball capital of the nation.

"With the addition of the Oakland Athletics we now have four teams, two in each league, more than any other state.

"I want particularly to welcome the Athletics to California and to Oakland and wish them the best of success in their league and with their fans. They are a great new asset both to California and to the bay area.

"I am pleased they chose California and I know they will get the support they deserve.

"I am pleased, too, that it is time now to play ball. The nation will be the better off for it."

Governor Ronald Reagan, contacted in Phoenix, Arizona, today and informed that the Parents' Patrol headquarters building in

Del Paso Heights, destroyed by an arsonist last night,

immediately issued the following statement:

"I am heartsick and angered to learn of this vicious and irresponsible act which is obviously intended to cripple the dedicated efforts of the Parents' Patrol program.

"Arson has always been an attack against the defenseless. This time it is an attack against the very fiber of the community itself. Those responsible must be apprehended and punished.

"But mere punishment of those who perpetrated this deed will not mitigate its effects.

"What is needed--and needed immediately--is a response by all the decent citizens of Sacramento which will tell those who have worked so hard to make the Parents' Patrol program a success, that their efforts have not gone unnoticed and have not been in vain.

"Community action by responsible citizens is basic to the solution of community problems. The Parents' Patrol has been solving problems in our Negro area since this program began last summer. But all of us, black or white, have profited by their work and all of us have a stake in seeing it continued and expanded.

"For this reason, I am today sending a personal letter to the news media and the civic organizations in the Sacramento area appealing to them to lend not only moral but also financial support to the Parents' Patrol program.

"If this program fails, if those who would rather burn than build can succeed in destroying programs like this, then they will be the victors and those who believe in brotherhood and in working together for the common good will be the losers.

"We cannot let this happen. I urge with all my heart that Sacramento prove that efforts and programs such as the Parents' Patrol are worthwhile and can work to the benefit of all our people."

Governor Ronald Reagan announced today that the federal government has granted funds to the State Department of Employment with which to resume payment of federal unemployment benefits to federal employees and ex-servicemen for weeks of unemployment beginning April 7.

The funds were made available from next fiscal year's appropriation to finance the federal benefit program. As agent for the federal government, the Department of Employment will now be able to resume payments Monday, April 15.

Payments were suspended with the close of business March 15 when the federal appropriation for the fiscal year 1968 was exhausted.

Payment for the weeks of unemployment ending on March 16, March 23, March 30 and April 6 will be made when a supplemental appropriation now before the Congress is approved.

"California cannot legally loan the federal government the money necessary to pay these benefits from its own state unemployment insurance fund," Governor Reagan pointed out.

Three weeks ago he sent a telegram to members of California's congressional delegation asking them to do their utmost to obtain a resumption of benefits.

In the wire, he noted that the suspension in funds was "having a detrimental effect on the morale of our Armed Service personnel returning from Vietnam and on California's economy.

"This is not the first time the state has been forced to suspend these federal benefit payments because of the failure of Congress to approve a timely appropriation," the telegram said.

He asked the state's representatives and senators to do all in their power "to break this log-jam" by bringing about early agreement on the final version of the supplemental appropriation bill, HR-15399.

In February, federal unemployment benefits in California totaled about $2,325,000.

Regular state unemployment benefits were not interrupted.

Governor Ronald Reagan today sent a telegram to the Secretary two of the Army requesting authorization to organize/new National Guard units in the state to replace those which will enter federal service in May.

He called the restoration of this troop strength in California "of immediate and critical importance."

The governor's wire was sent following an announcement that two National Guard units from Southern California will enter federal service on May 13. The announcement was made by General Glenn C. Ames, the state adjutant general and commander of the California Army National Guard.

The telegram said:

"Request authorization to organize units to replace the 1st Squadron, 18th Armored Cavalry, and the 40th Aviation Company entering active federal service May 13. The crises in our cities mandate that we retain at the present level our capability to render support to our communities when needed. The activation of these two elements represents a reduction of 1,012 troops in Southern California. I regard the restoration of this strength of immediate and critical importance. Therefore, I respectfully request authority be granted and funding provided for the activation of the Armored Cavalry Squadron and an aviation company."

Acting Governor Robert H. Finch joined with Governor Reagan in expressing "a deep sense of pride in the competence and proficiency selected" of the units which have been / for military service in the active Army.

The lieutenant governor said:

"I am both pleased and proud that our national leaders have recognized the quality of training and degree of combat readiness which these two elite California National Guard units possess. The dedicated men who serve in them will surely bring honor to our state and nation."

He reiterated that "all necessary steps are being taken to insure that the activation does not adversely affect the state's capability for meeting any emergency which might arise in California."

General Ames said the two units which will be pressed into service are part of the Selected Reserve Force which has been undergoing an intensified training program for the past two years in preparation for a possible federal call-up. The units have been manned and equipped at 100 percent and have been given priorities posture was maintained. He said that advance elements of these organizations will depart within the next few days for their mobilization stations to make final arrangements for the arrival of the main body of troops which will occur not later than May 13. These units have been called for a 24 months period of federal active service.

Governor Ronald Reagan today issued the following Easter message:

"On Easter, we honor a man who lived and died like no other the world has ever known. To those who believe in His triumph over death, He brought renewed hope, a living faith.

'Yet, His message of love and human brotherhood is one for all men, everywhere--regardless of religion or creed. For His life was spent in the service of His fellow man, no matter how lowly. He was truly His brother's brother, a leader, yet a servant, one who sought to change the hearts of men.

"Is it any wonder, then, that the Prince of Peace should be the architect of the peace we seek? Is it at all strange that His life should be such an example for us to follow in these ways of strife and turmoil?

"If true human understanding and brotherhood are to prevail in our land, we, too, must be about His business--that of changing the hearts of men.

My best wishes to all Californians for a joyous and meaningful Easter."

Governor Ronald Reagan announced today that the administration has begun implementation of a series of task force recommendations which "will achieve significant operating economies in state government during the years ahead through the creation of an integrated warehouse system using stringent inventory management controls."

He said the action will enable the state to reduce its continuing inventory investment from $30 million to $17.5 million annually, thus freeing some $12.5 million for essential alternative uses. The plan will also reduce overall operating costs by $3 million per year, from $8.7 million to $5.7 million.

"By combining an integrated, centrally managed warehousing program with aggressively applied statewide inventory management policies," he said, "we will be able to avoid duplicated inventories, lack of product standardization, unnecessary staff and warehouse facilities, and uneconomical distribution practices."

The governor said he has signed an executive order authorizing General Andrew R. Lolli, director of the Department of General Services, to proceed with plans to centralize the operations of eight key expendable goods warehouses. The warehouses, which have been operated by individual state departments, will now come under the control of General Services. The eight facilities redistribute supplies to departmental warehouses at or near the point of use.

The state's continuing expendable goods inventory is stored in 1,473 different facilities at 646 separate locations and represents a running investment of $30 million, Lolli said. Over 3,000,000 square feet and approximately 1,000 man years are now required to service this investment at a direct ownership cost of $8.7 million per year, he added.

Lolli said $5 million of the $30 million continuing inventory investment is currently held in the eight principal redistribution warehouses which will now be administered by General Services. "Central management of these warehouses will enable the state to reduce the $5 million inventory to $2.5 million and cut annual operating costs by $900,000," he said.

An extension of these efficiencies to all warehousing operations through closely integrated and coordinated inventory management practices will provide the overall economies projected under the plan, he explained.

Lolli also noted that the State of California owns one and three quarter million items of accountable equipment having an Forty million aggregate value in excess of $330 million. / dollars is being spent each year to replace these goods, he said. Lolli emphasized that during the next five years the state will reduce this inventory by more than $33 million through improved standards for acquisition, utilization, and disposal.

Governor Reagan reemphasized that the continued progress the administration is making to implement such task force studies as these "once again belies the skeptical predictions of some that the recommendations would end up being relegated to the shelves of government to quietly age and gather dust."

He noted that the administration has already implemented more than 265 proposals to improve the quality and efficiency of state government operations. They were submitted by his 250-man task force of business and professional men.

The task force team, known as the Governor's Survey on Efficiency and Cost Control, made some 2,000 specific recommendations of which 832 are now undergoing evaluation and review by the administration. Another 143 will require legislative action.

The 265 proposals which have been put into effect to date are expected to result in potential annual savings to the state approximating $56.4 million. Potential one-time savings will amount to nearly $13.8 million.

Governor Ronald Reagan today issued the following statement:

"Tonight, as they have for thousands of years, Jewish people throughout the world will celebrate Passover.

"Many times in the past, Passover has been observed at great personal risk to the participants as was, indeed, the first Passover.

"The years of discrimination against, and persecution of, the Jewish people is one of the saddest chapters of human history. To penalize a people because they are, in some way, different is to make a mockery of a dream that is almost as old as man.

"This dream--that men of different religions and different races and different cultures can live together in peace--has come nearest to realization in America, and it is a source of great satisfaction to me that tonight, those of the Jewish faith who reside in California will be able to gather together in peace, to celebrate their holiday without fear.

"On behalf of all of us, I wish them a happy holiday."

Governor Ronald Reagan today issued the following statement: "I have asked Assemblyman Jack Veneman, chairman of the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee, and he has agreed, to introduce a bill today, revising the state income tax law so as to replace this year's system of tax credits, with a system that will conform very closely to the personal exemption provisions of the federal law. In short, instead of the $8 tax credit in this year's tax bill, we would--if this bill passes--go to a system by which each taxpayer would have a personal exemption of $600, as well as a $600 exemption for each dependent. We also hope, when the figures are completed, that we will be able to include in the bill a provision allowing an additional double exemption for all over 65 years of age, as is the case with the federal law.

"By rearranging the tax brackets and allowing a standard deduction of $1,000 for single taxpayers and $2,000 for married couples filing joint returns, and increasing the deduction in the case of a single parent who works to support her children, we would ease substantially the extra burden which the middle income taxpayer with a large family had to shoulder this year. The total revenue received by the state under these revisions would remain almost exactly the same as at present, but certain inequities which were encountered in the first year's experience under the tax law would be removed, and we would move much closer to a situation in which the state income tax law is similar to the federal law, thus removing much of the present nuisance that all of us encounter in trying to compute and file two separate tax returns.

"I am very hopeful that Assemblyman Veneman's bill will pass, and that we can thus spread the burden of taxation more equitably on the basis of ability to pay, while recognizing the larger expenditures required by families with more children."

Governor Ronald Reagan today asked the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs to give special consideration to three key points in connection with the proposed establishment of a Redwood National Park in Northern California.

He requested:

--That the committee agree to make the U. S. Department of Agriculture's northern Redwood Purchase Unit available for land exchange purposes in order to maintain the area's basis for stable employment.

--That some form of economic payment be made to local governments to help offset any reduced income they may suffer as a result of the removal of private land and timber from the tax rolls.

--That the question of whether state park lands are to be included in a Redwood National Park be kept optional, as specified in U. S. Senate Bill S-2515.

These points were contained in a prepared statement presented to Committee Chairman Wayne Aspinall of Colorado at the opening of public hearings today in Crescent City on the proposed creation of a Redwood National Park.

The Governor's statement concluded:

"It is my earnest hope that as a result of these and later congressional hearings, we can work together to help create a truly meaningful and magnificent Redwood National Park that can be passed on to posterity as a shining beacon of untrammeled natural beauty.

"I also hope that we can not only create a meaningful park, but also maintain a strong local economy and bring to a permanent end the divisive debate that has raged for the past several years between the aesthetics of conservation and the economics of industry

Governor Beggan's statement was presented to the committee by Secretary for Resources Norman B. Livermore Jr. and State Parks and Recreation Department Director William Penn Mott Jr. Livermore said, "It is our strong hope that this committee urge the House of Representatives to make it possible to purchase, by means of cash plus the Redwood Purchase Unit, sufficient superlative redwoods to enable the creation of a Redwood National Park. In our opinion, such/purchase is both possible and desirable."

Mott reiterated the desire of the state to cooperate with the federal government in developing a meaningful Redwood National Park. He called for agreement on the boundary for such a park as soon as possible so that both preservationists and lumbermen finally "know where they stand."

Governor Ronald Reagan today praised the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee for approving legislation designed to give $155 million in property tax relief to California property owners.

"I hope this progressive action is the forerunner of a bipartisan effort to return the taxpayers' money to the taxpayers," Governor Reagan said.

The bill (AB 149), carried by Assemblyman John G. Veneman, was sent to the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, where the governor said he hopes it will receive "prompt consideration to enable a quick vote by the entire Assembly."

"This legislation is one of the most important measures to come before the Legislature this year," Governor Reagan said. "It is a major step forward toward easing the burden on California's homeowners. And it carries out a pledge made by the administration and the legislature last year to give meaningful property tax relief to our citizens.

"I earnestly hope this legislation will continue to receive the bipartisan support it deserves for the benefit of all Californians and that all legislators will work together to pass this property tax savings on to their constituents," Governor Reagan said.

Governor Ronald Reagan today congratulated leaders of both parties in the Assembly who have agreed to a bipartisan effort to pass administration-backed legislation aimed at improving the state's job development and placement programs.

"Constructive and positive leadership such as this is vital and can solve many of the problems we face in California," the governor said.

Governor Reagan said he had asked Lieutenant Governor Robert H. Finch to assist the Assembly leadership and authors of the bills in the package by advising them of findings made by the Job Training and Placement Council. Finch was named by Governor Reagan to head the Council more than a year ago.

"I have repeatedly called attention to the fact that getting jobs for our thousands of unemployed citizens is one of the major tasks that confront us," the governor said.

"The bills contained in this package reflect a growing awareness that government--while taking the lead--cannot singlehandedly correct all the ills that beset our society.

"Indeed, it is gratifying to note that the legislation recognizes that the private sector--business, industry, service organizations and the individual--must contribute to this effort to assist the disadvantaged by training the unemployed and then finding jobs for them.

"These bills are the result of intensive study by the administration and their authors for many months are are a joint, cooperative effort aimed at changing conditions which in the past promised much but achieved little.

"I am particularly pleased that my proposal for reorganization of several departments has received this bipartisan support. Legislation creating a Department of Human Resources Development is the direcresult of intensive study and work by officials in the Health and Welfare Agency and my cabinet.

"I congratulate those legislators who assisted the administration in preparing this program and urge quick action on this legislation. It is the right thing to do," the governor said.

The following telegram was sent by Governor Ronald Reagan today to all members of the California Congressional Delegation and Senators Thomas H. Kuchel and George Murphy:

"Administration-backed legislation for a broad-scale revision and revitalization of California job development and placement programs has been introduced by Republican and Democratic leaders of the California Assembly. The package of bills has bipartisan support in the Assembly and has received the enthusiastic endorsement of Lieutenant Governor Robert H. Finch and the Senate Republican leader. Principal authors are Assembly Minority Leader Monagan, Speaker Unruh, and Assemblymen Veneman, Campbell and Ralph.

"Designed to meet the tremendous problems of California in unemployment as well as other areas, this legislation consists of a series of six bills which may serve as a model for other states which, like California, must train and find jobs for their citizens and thereby solve a major cause of poverty.

"For this legislation to become fully effective, the package will require changes in federal laws and regulations. The detailed legislative proposals which my administration and the legislature have drawn up will be forwarded to you within the next few days.

"I urgently solicit your support of this program. It is a positive effort which, through bipartisan cooperation, can change programs which in the past promised much but achieved little."

Governor Ronald Reagan took emergency action today to assure that California welfare recipients receive their May assistance payments on time--Nay 1.

The governor signed a proclamation authorizing a loan from the general fund to the state social welfare fund to cover the federal share of welfare payments--some $33,227,000 which will not become available to the state until May 1.

Under California law, the state controller must remit both state and federal funds to the counties no later than April 26 in order to make payments to recipients on time.

The failure of Congress to make the federal funds available to the state by today necessitated the governor's action.

Governor Reagan noted that welfare payments are made to some 295,500 aged, 12,230 blind, 126,000 disabled and 813,200 dependent children recipients in California.

The monthly federal share of these payments in the state includes $14,644,700 for old age security, $813,300 in aid to the blind, $10,701,300 in aid to families with dependent children, and $7,062,700 in aid to the needy disabled.

The governor said that failure to receive assistance checks on time would work a severe hardship on many thousands of welfare recipients in California.

In its first year, the Administration made significant achievements towards its declared goals. They include:

Communication Restored

Before 1967 relationships between the Department of Social Welfare and both the boards of supervisors and the welfare departments of the 58 counties were so tense that effective communication had virtually ceased. The first important step was the reestablishment of effective communication and this has been done.

Today, harmonious working relationships exist and the spirit of cooperation has enabled the State and counties to strengthen their working partnership and make progress towards simplification of welfare procedures. The base doing to the second of the second state of the strengthen is based of base and in the second state of the cost Cut Basic administrative expenses of the Department of Social Welfare were reduced 13 percent from original budget requests, a savings of $1,243,000 in the current fiscal year.

Administration Streamlined, Red Tape Slashed California was the first State to secure Federal approval for use of a simplified "declaration of need" application for Old Age Security eliminating unnecessary paperwork and repetitious interviews.

Four voluminous categorical aid program manuals were condensed into one. Not only are there 2,358 fewer pages, but the language had been simplified and the content made more understandable.

This monumental revision was a joint State-county effort. Further efforts are under way to make department communications readily accessible to the social workers.

Extension and Liberalization of Welfare Checked Sizedans 1918915

For the first time in 15 years, the Administration successfully checked the historic legislative pattern of extending and liberalizing welfare benefits at each session.

More than 6,600 disabled persons were returned to employment in the fiscal year anding last June, of which bibuts budk bns busrt from the weitare rolls at a first-year welfare savings of

A statewide Governor's fact-finding conference was convened as the first step in determining the nature and extent of welfare fraud and abuse in California. On the recommendation of the conference, the State Social Welfare Board, with the assistance of a specially appointed advisory committee, conducted five hearings in different areas of the state and took thousands of words of testimony from scores of witnesses representing every conceivable viewpoint. The Board's report and recommendations are not yet formulated.

Medi-Cal Costs Cut

A $130 million deficit in the Medi-Cal program inherited from the prior fiscal year was eliminated and tighter administrative controls placed in effect which are expected to keep the program within appropriations this current fiscal year. A rollback of physicians' fees, limitation of non-county hospital stays except in special circumstances, and closer checks on the medical necessity for nursing home care were anticipated to save more than $28 million in the current year.

The first contract for prepayment of physicians' services was signed, marking a major step forward in improving service to recipients while at the same time controlling ever-spiraling costs.

Family Planning

A new family planning policy was adopted which gave social workers the authority to initiate and conduct discussions with welfare recipients with respect to family planning. This was coupled with controls to ensure complete freedom from any pressure or coercion. A Hand Up Instead of a Handout

Greater emphasis was placed on rehabilitation as a means of restoring individual dignity and self-support. The current budget of the Department of Rehabilitation was increased $5 million--a sound investment in the future productivity of those rehabilitated.

More than 6,600 disabled persons were returned to employment in the fiscal year ending last June, of which some 1400 were removed from the welfare rolls at a first-year welfare savings of $2,750,000. The pace accelerated further in the new fiscal year and in the first seven months, the number of disabled persons returned to employment was 90 percent higher than during the same period the previous year.

The State took the lead in providing summer employment for youth, placing 600 in State jobs. The program will be enlarged this year. Directed in a large part towards young people from poverty areas, the program offers more than money. In addition to payment of wages it stresses the virtues of work and provides the selfconfidence that comes from one knowing his ability to earn his own way in a competitive economy.

Job Training and Placement Coordinated 5 1000 01510 (100000)

State agencies were given clear and specific direction to provide concerted and coordinated programs to secure training and employment for public assistance recipients. The California Job Training and Placement Council, including representatives of both government and private industry, was created to study and recommend ways to reach the hard-core unemployed with needed training and employment.

In addition, the Department of Employment, through its Human Resources Development and Concentrated Employment programs, has emphasized the development of training and placement of persons from poverty areas. Many persons served by these programs are entering the labor market for the first time.

Further Coordination Proposed

Combination of the Job Training and Placement Council, the Service Centers, and the Office of Economic Opportunity into one department of Human Resources Development is proposed as part of the Governor's plan to reorganize the executive branch of State Government. This would further coordinate and strengthen job training and placement efforts.

Governor Reagan appointed H. C. McClellan to conduct statewide a program patterned after the one he so successfully initiated in the Watts area of Los Angeles. The entire program is privately financed. His efforts, while directed toward all who lack opportunity, offer particular hope to those minorities with a disproportionate share of poverty and unemployment. Greater effort has been made to cooperate with private welfare agencies.

New, more effective ways of reducing public dependency and potential dependency are under study. One such effort is Project FOCUS recently launched in cooperation with Fresno City and County. This pilot program will employ the most modern management techniques to weld together all of the available resources, Federal, State, local, and private, in a concerted thrust aimed at producing self-reliant citizens.

obivory of molification of the second second

There are encouraging signs that growth of the skyrocketing Aid to the Disabled and Aid to Families with Dependent Children programs has been slowed. While total numbers are still up, the proportion of increase was less rapid than in the three years preceding 1967, in part, at least, the result of the increased emphasis on job placement, expanded efforts of rehabilitation and a closer check on eligibility.

The major welfare goal of this Administration is to help our disadvantaged and our needy to help themselves to achieve productive, meaningful lives--to learn self-sufficiency and to free themselves to the maximum extent possible from dependency on public assistance. Employment is the route to that goal.

Short Term

Currently there are an estimated 83,000 persons on state welfare rolls who are capable of training or employment. Some 12,000 of these are in training programs, another 26,000 have part-time employment. While the entire group is but a small portion of the total welfare roll, their employment would have a snowball effect since it would eliminate need for aid to their dependents. If all 83,000 were on payrolls instead of aid rolls, the number of persons on welfare could be cut by more than 300,000. This would mean a monthly welfare savings of $15 million plus providing our economy the benefit of their productivity.

More important, the children in these families would grow up in a self-supporting, independent atmosphere in which they would learn to recognize productive employment as the means to personal fulfillment.

The hope for significant reduction in public dependency lies with the 480,000 children 12 years old or less who are now supported on aid programs.

It is with this group that the cycle of recurring public dependency must be snapped. They must not grow up to view welfare as a way of life.

Conclusion

Welfare presents many difficult and complex problems. There are no instant solutions. Major improvement will come only through hard work and sustained determination. Significant progress, however, was made in the first year of this Administration and further achievements are anticipated this year. However, many of the proposals to change the direction of welfare, to stress selfsufficiency, and to streamline welfare administration, require changes in State and Federal laws. Such changes have been requested of the Legislature and the Congress.

In his message to the Legislature, the Governor recommended legislation leading to a uniform standard of assistance which would greatly simplify welfare administration and eliminate present inequities.

To keep assistance to the disabled from becoming even more inequitable, the Governor sponsored urgency legislation to increase the average maximum grant above the now established legal ceiling pending enactment of legislation to provide better home care services for the disabled under a more favorable Federal sharing formula that would reduce State cost by $4 million and eliminate the $1.6 million county contribution.

The Governor also proposed that when the taxpayer has been supporting the aged and disabled, then the taxpayer should share in the estate with the provision that no settlement would be required as long as a surviving spouse lives in the home.

Other recommendations were that computations of grants to married persons should take into account all shared items and that unnecessary disability assistance not be given to recipients living with parents whose income is substantial.

Finally, in an effort to provide an incentive for adults receiving aid for dependent children to secure employment rather than remain on welfare, the Governor proposed that the maximum family payments be equal to the earnings of a family breadwinner working for the minimum legal wage.

RELEASE: Immediate

Governor Ronald Reagan today issued the following statement

in observance of "Invest-in-America Week", April 28 - May 4:

"Californians today enjoy an unparalleled standard of living, reaping the benefits of our industry and enterprise. Through continual voluntary saving and wise investment, we have contributed to our nation's growth, security and freedom.

"Throughout the nation, communities are planning observances to emphasize the importance of each individual's role in building a sound economy. This is not merely a reminder that we should save a portion of our income for personal security; it is a call to all Americans to marshal their financial resources as a means of strengthening our country. Once again we are reminded that with our savings accounts, our investments on homes, life insurance, local business enterprises, in stocks or in bonds, each of us participates in California's and America's growth and prosperity.

"I urge my fellow Californians to consider that the importance of personal savings and investments strengthens our common economic life and to observe April 28 through May 4, 1963 as Invest-in-America Week."

For your convenience, excerpts from last week's press conference on April 23 follow in which the governor explains his position in response to a question concerning the presidency:

- Q. Governor, are you available for the presidency?
- A. I'm too old to be drafted in the army. I don't know what the answer to that is. I think any citizen in the United States is available for that office if his fellow citizens decided that he was the individual they wanted.
- Q. When you say the job seeks the man for the presidency, you mean someone has to come to you first, you'll never go after it?
- A. Well, I think once -- if your party selected you as a nominee, then you go after it, of course. You've accepted the responsibility, if they do. But I could not -- could not conceive of myself soliciting that job, standing up and saying, yes, I want --
- Q. Under any circumstances?
- A. Well, at the moment, no, I can't.
