Success or Excess?

The biggest victories in the Government's fitful war on poverty have been won by 1,950 young attorneys who constitute the Office of Economic Opportunity's legal services program. Their accomplishments range from winning rent-strike rights for tenants in Washington, D.C., to the expansion of welfare services nationwide. Such a record hardly seems to call for the firing of the program director, Terry Lenzner, and his deputy, Frank Jones. But that is exactly what happened (TIME, Nov. 30). Now the OEO legal services division is full of deepening suspicion that the firing was a clear sign the Administration intends to gut the program.

The central question is whether the program's most visible achievements were successes or excesses. OEO Director Donald Rumsfeld, who did the firing, apparently felt that Lenzner's activist approach failed to take account of political realities. When California legal services offices won expansion of the medical aid rolls, for instance, the state government somehow had to find an extra $200 million. Governor Ronald Reagan's complaints could be heard clearly in Washington.

Crunch. Lenzner's backers argue that legal rights are legal rights whatever the political realities. And they see other indications that the program is being emasculated. A year ago, it was decided that all new lawyers had to be cleared by the White House. More recently, Rumsfeld proposed to move basic responsibility for the program from Lenzner and the 850 local OEO law offices to regional OEO directors, who are all political appointees. Rumsfeld scrapped the plan in the face of harsh criticism by the American Bar Association among others, but replaced it with a variation that some A.B.A. officials think will have the same effect.

Last week some of Rumsfeld's political fears materialized. The Senate Finance Committee voted to forbid payment of federal salaries to any lawyer who challenges U.S. welfare policies. Rumsfeld vigorously urged the Senate to reverse the committee, saying the new rule "could seriously inhibit" the program. Also last week, Rumsfeld okayed a renewal of funding for two of the most controversial programs: $1,800,000 for California Rural Legal Assistance (CRLA) and $1,000,000 for legal aid on the Navajo Indian reservation in Arizona, New Mexico and Utah. Rumsfeld's critics are still worried. The Navajo grant was accompanied by a ruling that shifts control of the local board away from representatives of the local poor. And in California, Governor Reagan can veto the CRLA money. If he does so, the telltale crunch may come when Rumsfeld decides whether or not to override the veto.

Tiger for the Defense

In Seattle last February, 2,000 chanting youths descended on the city's federal courthouse to protest what they regarded as the unfair conduct of U.S. District Judge Julius J. Hoffman in the Chicago Seven conspiracy trial. Prepared for the worst, Seattle police had hidden riot squads in the public library across the street. When some of the protesters foolishly hurled rocks through the court windows and splattered paint on the walls, the police swooped out of their hiding place and arrested 77 demonstrators.

Local courts soon acquitted or dismissed the charges against nearly all the defendants. But the Justice Department used the incident as a reason to investigate a nascent radical group called the Seattle Liberation Front. Last spring FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover personally announced federal indictments against eight S.L.F. members. Though none of them had been arrested at the demonstration, all were charged with conspiring to damage federal property; five were also accused of crossing state lines with the intention of causing a riot. It was the Government's first use, since the Chicago trial, of the 1968 federal antiriot law, which civil libertarians insist is unconstitutional.

Simple Heart. Many lay observers have expected the mop-haired "Seattle Eight" to stage a political trial as messy as the one in Chicago. The defendants have, in fact, caused a few sporadic disruptions—clenched-fist salutes for the judge and brief scuffles outside the courtroom. But when the new trial opened in Tacoma last week, there were clear differences. For one, U.S. District Judge George Boldt, 66, seems more detached and judicious than Julius Hoffman. His authority has also been strengthened by

Dear Governor Reagan:

I understand that the CRLA funding is coming up for either veto or approval. Please use your power of veto on this funding. This group has become a dangerous organization and one that does not have the best interests of our country at heart. I would like to see funding for the OEO vetoed also.

My Dear Governor:

You are to be complimented for recent action pertaining to the funding of the California Rural League of Assistance. It is time for positive action opposing those forces that strive to discredit the social, political and economic structure of the nation and our State of California.

The CRLA was instrumental in bringing legal action against our school district on behalf of parents who had children enrolled in the mentally retarded classes. Many charges could have easily been corrected by the State Department of Education and the State Board of Education rather than the expensive and time consuming court action.

Far more important in this case was the effects upon nine children. Once the court action was rendered, no followup was made to provide assurance that the education of these children was being planned and implemented. It would seem that the CRLA had little or no interest in the families or the children once court action was complete.

Receiving legal advice and assistance seems prudent for the disadvantaged or low income families; however, the wide variety of social court action seems unwarranted.

Again, your action against the CRLA has my endorsement. New guidelines for this O.E.O. program must be revised.

Sincerely,

Wendell Broom

I would like to impress upon you the need to veto funding of the California Rural Legal Association. This association has repeatedly come to the aid of the questionable and revolutionary part of our society; therefore, I cannot stress strongly enough the need to eliminate the funding of such an organization.

I would also suggest that you also veto any state monies going toward the funding of the Office of Equal Opportunities for the same reason.

His Excellency, the Governor of California

Sir:

Your Veto of CRLA
Allied Federal Programs,

I am pleased that you have rejected the 1971 federal grant. This is yet another program by which responsible citizens are sold for their own money, to provide springboards for charlatans to wade in it, while ridiculing and destroying those who provide it.

At this time, I should like to mention another mass of such opportunities, now used by propagandists to promote, rather than to inhibit drug "abuse" (what a term!). To the surprise of many present, a local representative of the Monterey police force stated at a meeting that outsiders come here with precut (my word) solutions for problems they do not understand. He then told us that Monterey is an open port, practically unpoliced, through which narcotics flow. Knowing this, the Federal Government lets the problem develop so that more of our money can be wasted in financing the fringe that aspires to being on top, with expense accounts and salaries larger than those of the populace they mulct, associating with such as Timothy Hobson (Alger Hiss's step-son) in programs which, for instance, refer to marijuana as a harmless substance. Its greatest use hazard is presented to audiences as being caught with it, by authorities--in which case, on the third apprehension, one would be safer to shoot the arresting officers, since he most likely would "get off" more lightly for murder! (Yes. A local, hired counselor at Carmel High School said exactly that, to a roomful, in Brey Hall, there.) (His name is John Frykman, who claims the title of "doctor", honorarily bestowed upon him by a little-known group.)

affiliated
We now are represented by extreme leftwing "senators" in Washington, and by a non-doctor Riles, and the Communist records of all of them were sedulously concealed by the media, prior to this last election, in spite of efforts to expose them. It is most discouraging to some who imagined that Republicans would, if elected, appoint known Conservatives to turn the Country to the right.

Dear Sir: Ems

I hope you put the brakes on the C.R.L.A.

They seem to be crackpot Lawyers for radicals.

Thank you.

Dear Sir:

This letter is written in support of your veto of the CRIA program in the State of California.

The program for this county seems to be more concerned with social and racial issues than representing the poor people in court.

There seems to be evidence that much time was spent by the CRIA office in the Ceasar Chavez labor dispute.

I am also in favor of doing away with the tenure law for the State of California teachers. I do hope legislation will be forthcoming to achieve this goal.

Yours very truly,

Cecil Thompson

Dear Governor Reagan:

I demand that you veto the funding for the CRLA. As a taxpayer of this country and of this state, I wish to express my disgust of the activities of this group.

Please also veto all funding for the OEO, for the same reason.

Yours truly,

Mrs. Sharon Van Voltenburg

Dear Governor:

I have just learned that the Bill for Rural Legal Assistance in California is on your desk to be signed.

I, herewith, register
my unalterable opposition to this bill. Why should we pay the crops to sue the government & line the pockets of those who are determined to undermine our legitimate interests?

It is with sincere concern that I beg of you to refuse to sign this bill.

Always your admirer,
& your dedicated supporter,

Esther Maus Williams.
