UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

THE SECRETARY

March 28, 1988

MEMORANDUM FOR JOHN C. TUCK

Executive Assistant to the Chief of Staff and Deputy Assistant to the President

SUBJECT: Drug Policy

Thank you for sending a copy of Tom Griscom's Drug Initiative Plan. I continue to believe that we can seize the initiative on this issue if we acknowledge the serious nature of the drug problem today, despite the expansion of our efforts since 1981, and if we present a credible plan to face the current problem. But if we merely defend our record and give more publicity to carrying out existing policies, the problem will worsen and political damage will increase. The Administration has two great strengths in regard to the drug issue: 1) we have a real record of achievement as a foundation for further initiatives; and 2) we can quickly put our critics on the defensive by proposing the tough measures we need, measures that most of the critics will find it difficult to embrace.

I enclose my March 21st memorandum to Tom Griscom with suggestions for two immediate steps we could take on the drug issue -- one of which concerns the DeConcini-D'Amato bill. I believe the new draft initiative you sent contains some good ideas and should be developed in more detail. I remain convinced that the problem we face is a policy problem, more than a public relations problem, and a new initiative should be explicit in its policy objectives. For the sake of clarity, I recommend presenting a new policy in terms of four areas -- production, shipment, sale, and use -- with coordinated and aggressive proposals in each area. Such a plan should be the heart of any new initiative.

In more specific terms, the education proposal on the last page of the draft initiative should be modified. We already have a program urging schools and communities to put in place comprehensive drug prevention programs. It is called "Schools Without Drugs: The Challenge", it is supported by a major public service campaign, and it has been enlisting schools nationwide since its start last fall. Washington, D.C. is about to enlist all its schools in the program, which requires parent involvement and closer cooperation between schools and local law enforcement. We could call more attention to "The Challenge" program, and consider a presidential mention of the emergency federal grant program I announced last December for schools with an immediate need for resources to combat drugs. I am enclosing information of both of these programs.

My staff also is renewing with Justice an earlier proposal for creating a joint hotline to fight drugs in schools. The plan would allow educators, parents, or other members of a community to call for help. Education and Justice, in cooperation with the chiefs of police and others would then seek to provide assistance where it is needed. We can help with both prevention and enforcement efforts, using the considerable legal and programmatic resources already in place. I see no reason why we cannot hash out the necessary arrangements for this proposal quickly, if it is approved.

I hope these suggestions are helpful and that you will let me know if you would like further information on these topics.

William J. Bennett

The Challenge

THE CHALLENGE

The objective of this campaign is to ensure that the schools our children attend are drug-free and to unite local communities—parents, students, teachers, administrators, law enforcement officials and community organizations—to stop illegal drug use in schools.

The U.S. Department of Education in conjunction with the following organizations invites your school and community to join the nationwide campaign—Schools Without Drugs: The Challenge.

- American Association of School Administrators
- American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO
- Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development
- Council of Chief State School Officers
- Families in Action/National Drug Information Center
- International Association of Chiefs of Police
- National Association of Elementary School Principals
- National Association of Secondary School Principals
- National Association of State Boards of Education
- National Education Association
- National Federation of Parents for Drug-Free Youth
- National School Boards Association
- Parents' Resource Institute for Drug Education
- U.S. Chamber of Commerce

The campaign encourages communities and schools to form or sustain a drug program based on the principles of the Department of Education's handbook, Schools Without Drugs. The campaign also encourages communities and schools to draw upon the resources of the sponsoring organizations and others to gain the skills, information and advice necessary to establish that program.

A PLAN FOR ACHIEVING SCHOOLS WITHOUT DRUGS

The campaign is based upon the proven principles contained in the Department of Education's handbook, Schools Without Drugs.

Four groups must participate:

PARENTS:

1. Teach standards of right and wrong, and demonstrate these standards through personal example.
2. Help children to resist peer pressure to use drugs by supervising their activities, knowing who their friends are, and talking with them about their interests and problems.
3. Be knowledgeable about drugs and signs of drug use. When symptoms are observed, respond promptly.

SCHOOLS:

4. Determine the extent and character of drug use and establish a means of monitoring that use regularly.
5. Establish clear and specific rules regarding drug use that include strong corrective actions.
6. Enforce established policies against drug use fairly and consistently. Implement security measures to eliminate drugs on school premises and at school functions.
7. Implement a comprehensive drug prevention curriculum for kindergarten through grade 12, teaching that drug use is wrong and harmful and supporting and strengthening resistance to drugs.

8. Reach out to the community for support and assistance in making the school's anti-drug policy and program work. Develop collaborative arrangements in which school personnel, parents, school boards, law enforcement officers, treatment organizations, and private groups (e.g., chambers of commerce) can work together to provide necessary resources.

STUDENTS:

9. Learn about the effects of drug use, the reasons why drugs are harmful, and ways to resist pressures to try drugs.
10. Use an understanding of the danger posed by drugs to help other students avoid them. Encourage other students to resist drugs, persuade those using drugs to seek help, and report those selling drugs to parents and the school principal.

COMMUNITIES:

11. Help schools fight drugs by providing them with the expertise and financial resources of community groups and agencies.
12. Involve local law enforcement agencies in all aspects of drug prevention: assessment, enforcement, and education. The police and courts should have well-established and mutually supportive relationships with the schools.

CONDUCTING THE CAMPAIGN

Your school and community are encouraged to build upon these recommendations to form policies and effective programs tailored to local needs. Once your school and community have decided to unite to prevent drug use among students, and you have committed to forming a plan, have your participating members sign this form, then mail it to the address on the bottom of this page.

The Department of Education will be working to support you. When you send in the signed section, you will receive a letter from Secretary of Education William J. Bennett and you will become a subscriber to the Department's drug newsletter. The newsletter will provide you with descriptions of model programs and with practical information on recent research in the area of preventing drug use. Several cosponsors will send you information, while all will mobilize their local members to support you in your community efforts.

As a symbol of its participation in the program, your school can purchase a 2' x 4' Schools Without Drugs: The Challenge banner (see front cover). Make your check payable to "The Challenge Banner." Please allow 45 days for delivery.

To enroll in the Schools Without Drugs: The Challenge campaign, mail the signatures, your check for the banner (if you want one) and any future correspondence to:
