Mr. Edward Meese III The White House Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Meese:

In response to your need, I am writing to express my interest in becoming your next Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court. I firmly believe that my qualifications (lawyer), disposition (Republican), and carear goals make me an ideal candidate for the currently available position. Besides, there hasn't been a Jew on the bench since Abe Fortas, a real mensch.

As indicated in the enclosed resume,* I graduated from Villanova Law School last year. I only got a C+ in Constitutional Law, but I was sick the day of the final exam. Honest.

I have been a law clerk in Philadelphia's Motions Court for a year, so I'm real good at Civil Procedure, and my Aunt Carol got arrested for drunk driving last week, so I know a lot about Criminal Law too.

My current salary is $16,500.00, but we're supposed to get a raise next month. I'd consider $22,000.00 to be an acceptable starting salary, assuming it includes a dental plan.

Admittedly, one year's experience doesn't seem like much, and 24 years old may seem a tad young. But look at it this way: When I'm 74, I'll have more experience than anyone ever had and will be a great Justice. "Ron Reagan appointed him," they'll say. Think about it!

With gratitude for your kind consideration, I remain

Forever in your pocket,

JOEL GOLD TEIN

I was appalled that this letter received any response of any kind. I strongly believe you should not respond because to do so further lends dignity to this farcical display of immaturity. This is the recommendation by which I would want to be evaluated as an employee.

With this said, however, and concededly with an uncharacteristic vindictiveness, I suggest that you write Judge Gelfand of the Court of Common Pleas, for whom a Joel Daniel Goldstein indeed works, and simply note that you "forward the attached for his information." At the same time, I recommend that you send a note of acknowledgment to Mr. Goldstein, with appropriate notation that a carbon copy of all correspondence was forwarded to Judge Gelfand. In this way, do we best contribute to the "political paraphernalia" which Mr. Goldstein contends in his resume he is so fond of collecting.

I attach drafts should you choose the latter course of activism.

Dear Ms. Wilson:

I received your letter of July 15, and attached resolution of the Caucus in support of Sandra O'Connor's nomination to the Supreme Court. I am very pleased to know that the Caucus shares our enthusiasm for Judge O'Connor. She will bring to the High Court a superior intellect, tempered by both sensitivity toward others and a sense of fundamental fairness. In addition, she has a healthy respect for the proper role of the courts in our Constitutional scheme. In sum, I believe as do you, that she is certain to be a credit to the Court in the years ahead.

Thank you for your letter. I hope you will stay in touch.

July 21, 1981 400 Stovelan are, #1814 riple., Minn. 55403 Dear Mr. Deaver, I am deeply outraged at the proposed appointment of Sandra Day O'Connor for the Supreme Court vacancy! This is a Matant betrayal of the Republican Party platform and is a state in the back to the pro-life movement. I strongly wrige that her name be withdrawn from consideration and that a full investigation be made of the deceptive information found in the memo of Kenneth Starr of the Justice Department concerning O'Connor. I received your letter of July 21, and I very much appreciate your thoughts on the Supreme Court. Contrary to your suggestion, your advice is always welcomed.

Decisions on appointments to the High Court, as you know Shep, are some of the most significant decisions that a President makes. Not surprisingly, they also are some of the most difficult. There are a myriad of factors to be considered and typically a relatively brief period in which to do so. The more observations and insights circulated in advance of the time of a nomination, the better.

The Hon. Fred F. Fielding Counsel to the President White House Washington, D.C.

Dear Fred:

Let me begin by assuring you that this is not the first in a series of pieces of unsolicited advice from me to you. Even if it were, there would be no good reason for the Reagan White House to pay any attention to the musings of a life-long Democrat (albeit one who defected to your man in 1980). But you are in such a strategic position that I cannot resist giving you my views on the Supreme Court.

First, I think Mr. Reagan made a wise redemption of his campaign promise with Mrs. O'Connor, and I hope that the right-to-life people do not make continuing fools of themselves over her nomination (although I do consider myself a right-to-lifer).

The next time around, however, I think the President is in a position to leave his mark on the Court in a different way. The Court needs not just "conservative" or "strict constructionist" Justices, although it does need them indeed. What it desperately needs is a strict constructionist who can provide intellectual leadership and strong, well-crafted underpinnings for the strict constructionist position. It needs somebody of the intellectual quality of, say, Frankfurter or Harlan. The Court has not really seen their like since their respective deaths.

If you have merely a series of conservative Justices, but none of truly stellar intellectual quality, you will probably have a continuing lack of cohesiveness as long as there is any significant number of dissenters on the Court - and that's bad because it provides precious little guidance to lower courts. More important, you also risk losing respect for the strict constructionists' philosophy itself. I am not sure that a poorly written and poorly reasoned "conservative" opinion is not far worse in the long run than a more "liberal" construction. If lawyers and lay people around the country get the idea that the opinions of the Court are dominated by reflexive and ill-reasoned prejudices, then in the long run there will be an erosion of support for those positions.

The name that comes to mind is Robert Bork, who I believe to be a conservative of this caliber intellectually. There may be others of his type around. I really feel that the next step in the reconstruction of the Court ought to be to find a "star" of that level and appoint him (or her). The President will likely have other opportunities to put people whom he knows personally on the Court, and there is nothing wrong with that in my opinion, particularly if he had laid the ground work by placing on the Court an intellectual leader of the sort I have described.

Well, that's the end of this sermon. I'm sure I have said nothing that hasn't occurred to you, the President himself, or his other advisors. I also know that you are not necessarily the sole individual responsible for the selection, and I recognize that there are numerous other political and non-political factors which enter into that choice. However, you are the only person of my personal acquaintance who is influential in these matters, and I couldn't let the opportunity pass without unburdening my own views. I really do think this is a unique opportunity to do something that desperately needs to be done, i.e., to reconstruct a widely respected, but judicially restrained, Supreme Court.

Hope all is going well, but that you are not working yourself to death.

Best regards.

Sincerely,

W. Shepherdson Abell

- 1. In a couple of conversations, Judge O'Connor has mentioned in passing that she wished she had more of an idea of specific questions that are likely to be directed to her at the hearings. I am confident that someone is helping her anticipate questions, and that someone is gathering an assortment of materials that might be of help, but I thought I should mention it. Presently she plans to leave Arizona on August 28 to drive to Washington.
- 2: Should there be a suggestion that selected members of Congress be included at the proposed reception September 23 for the Judiciary, perhaps we should talk. (Nothing indicates, however, a need to include any Congressmen at this particular reception.)

Dear Reverend McIntyre:

I was asked to respond to your Mailgram to the President of July 14, in which you request time to present your views on Judge O'Connor's nomination to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The President has forwarded to the Senate his nomination of Judge O'Connor. After the Senate returns from its August recess the Senate Judiciary Committee will finalize the schedule for its hearings. Currently, the hearings are tentatively scheduled to begin September 9. The Judiciary Committee Chairman decides who may testify before the Committee, or in other ways formally offer views, on the nomination. These are not decisions made by the President or by the White House.

I recommend, Reverend McIntyre, that you're-direct your request to Senator Strom Thurmond's office and to the attention of Mr. Duke Short, Chief Investigator for the Judiciary Committee. It is my understanding that Mr. Short staffs all such requests for Senator Thurmond.

You probably know of the Reverend Carl McIntyre (I thought it McIntire) - if not, I wanted to tell you he is very controversial and for many years wrote Presidents about one thing or another, such as the attached, but mainly about the fact that the FCC denied him a license for his religious radio station in New Jersey.

I am frank to tellyou I don't know where this should go for appropriate handling - certainly, I do not interpret it as a request to meet with the President.

Dear Reverend McIntyre:

I was asked to respond to your Mailgram to the President of July 14, in which you request time to present your views on Judge O'Connor's nomination to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The President has forwarded to the Senate his nomination of Judge O'Connor. After the Senate returns from its August recess the Senate Judiciary Committee will finalize the schedule for its hearings. Currently, the hearings are tentatively scheduled to begin September 9. The Judiciary Committee Chairman decides who may testify before the Committee, or in other ways formally offer views, on the nomination. These are not decisions made by the President or by the White House.

I recommend, Reverend McIntyre, that you re-direct your request to Senator Strom Thurmond's office and to the attention of Mr. Duke Short, Chief Investigator for the Judiciary Committee. It is my understanding that Mr. Short staffs all such requests for Senator Thurmond.

If further questions arise, please let me know.

Sincerely,

Fred F. Fielding

Dear Representative Cunningham:

I was asked to respond to your telex of July 4 to the President, in which you urge that he reconsider any decision to nominate Judge Sandra O'Connor to the Supreme Court of the United States. As you may be aware, the President now has formally forwarded Judge O'Connor's name to the Senate. We believe that her intellectual ability and sound judgement make her an excellent choice for the High Court. We hope that in time you will come to share this view.

With regards and appreciation for your taking the time to share your feelings with us,

Sincerely,

1. General Questions, e.g.,

"How often did you meet with the President?"

"What did you and the President discuss?"

"What did you tell the President about your judicial philosophy?"

"Who was present at your meetings with the President?"

Possible Response

"As has been reported, I met with the President both before and after his announcement of intention to mominate me; I have not met with him since formal submission of my nomination to the Senate. Some of the President's senior aides were present during portions of our meetings.

"I considered my conversations with the President to be private, much like the private meetings I was privileged to have with many Senators in the days following announcement of my nomination, and I think it would be inappropriate for me to testify about precisely what the President said to me.

or I to him. Generally, of course, I am sure the President's purpose in meeting with me was to assist in his evaluation both of my fitness and qualifications for this position and of my views on the role of the Judiciary in our Constitutional system. I can assure the Committee, however, that the President did not seek any 'commitments' or anything of the sort concerning how I might vote on particular cases that might be presented to the Supreme Court for decision.

"Beyond that, I can only reiterate that I believe it would be improper for me to discuss publicly the specifics of myconversations with the President, as he exercised his Constitutional responsibility to select a nominee to the Supreme Court. At this, the public stage of the Constitutional appointment; process, I am of course happy to respond directly to the Committee's questions, as you exercise your Constitutional responsibility to determine whether I should be confirmed." 2. Specific Questions, e.g.,

"The President said he was 'satisfied' with your views on abortion; what did you tell him on this subject?"

"Did you tell the President whether you thought

Roe v. Wade was a correct decision?"

[Similar questions on busing, affirmative action,

death penalty, exclusionary rule and similar contro versial topics, as well as past Supreme Court decisions

in these areas]

Possible Response

"As I have stated, I believe it would be improper for me to testify concerning my private conversations with the President. However, I am happy to state directly to the Committee my view on this issue.

[Proceed to substantive statement, with appropriate qualifications about not expressing an opinion on which specific decisions might be overruled or on how specific future cases would be decided.]

3. Follow-up Questions, e.g.,

"Is that what you told the President?"

"Have your views changed since you met with the President"

"Did your views change because you were meeting with the President and you knew you were being considered for the Supreme Court?"

Possible Response

"Without commenting on specific matters that the President and I may have discussed, I can state that my views did not change because I was being considered for nomination to the Supreme Court, and that I have not changed them since my meetings with the President."

Women Considered for Supreme Court Vacancy

Ms. Joan Solms, Director, Family Life League, requests that the President provide her with the names of the other women considered for the recent Supreme Court vacancy. Apparently, this is her second request for the names.

Attached for your review and signature is a response to Ms. Solms, denying the request.

WASHINGTON

Dear Ms. Solms:

I was asked to respond to your letter of August 7 to the President in which you request, on behalf of the Family Life League, the names of the women from among whom the President selected Judge Sandra O'Connor to be his nominee to the Supreme Court. Please accept my apologies for the oversight of your initial letter.

For reasons which I trust you will appreciate, Ms. Solms, the list of names submitted to the President and the process by which he narrows that list in deciding upon his nominee are matters confidential to the President and his immediate advisors, until such time as the President should choose to publicly disclose them. Thus, I am not at liberty to provide the names requested. I will say that a number of women were recommended either to the President or to the Attorney General, and that the President carefully considered a number of women for the position before deciding that Judge O'Connor was preeminently qualified by intellect and by temperament to serve on the Supreme Court. He continues to be enthusiastic about her selection, as do others of us in the Administration.

I regret that I could not provide the specific information requested, but if I can be of help with further questions, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,

Fred F. Fielding Counsel to the President

Dear Mr. Reagan:

Since we have not received a reply to our original request, we are once again writing to ask you to supply us with the names of the other women who were being considered for the position of Supreme Court Justice. We have recently heard that there was a list of five women from which you finally selected Sandra D. O'Connor as your nominee for this position. We feel that this information would be very educational for us and would help us to possibly understand your point of view when you selected Mrs. O'Connor.

Sincerely,

Joan Solms

For Immediate Release

September 21, 1981

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

I want to express my gratitude to the Senate for unanimously approving today the nomination of Judge Sandra Day O'Connor as an Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

Judge O'Connor is, as I have come to know personally, a very warm and brilliant woman who has had an outstanding career in Arizona. I know the Court and the Nation will benefit both from her lifetime of work, service and experience in the legal profession, and from her solid grasp of our Constitution, which she reveres. This truly is a happy and historic day for America.

Judge O'Connor's judicial philosophy is one of restraint. She believes, as she said in her Senate testimony, that a judge is on the bench to interpret the law, not to make it. This philosophy of judicial restraint needs representation in our courtrooms and especially on the highest court in our land.

Let me also say that Judge O'Connor's confirmation symbolizes the richness of opportunity that still abides in America -- opportunity that permits persons of any sex, age or race, from every section and every walk of life to aspire and achieve in a manner never before even dreamed about in human history.
