Mr. John Roberts
Associate Counsel to the President
Room 106, EOB
The White House
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Mr. Roberts:

We, the editor and the guest editor for the special issue of National Forum: The Phi Kappa Phi Journal on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution, would like to share with you a copy of our report on this project. Because this issue so clearly exemplifies the kind of activity in which leadership organizations should be involved, we take great pride in the fact that the special issue, "Toward the Bicentennial of the Constitution," appeared in the fall of 1984--anticipating by more than two years the upcoming celebration of the Bicentennial of the American Constitution. What we had hoped would happen--that this issue would trigger interest in the events, ideas, and personalities which shaped that great architectonic document of American civic life--is actually happening as the many positive responses we have received to date indicate.

Because a number of organizations joined with The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi to insure the success of this endeavor, it demonstrates the value of voluntary cooperation. The impact of the collective efforts of the cooperating institutions clearly indicates that the whole project was far greater than the simple sum of any individual contributions.

We are sending this report to each of you to thank you for your support and to inform you of the many ways this project, in which you played a part, is having an impact far beyond what we had envisioned.

Sincerely,

Stephen W. White

INTRODUCTION

INTRODUCTION

In October of 1984, approximately 554,000 copies of the 1984 Fall issue of National Forum entitled "Toward the Bicentennial of the Constitution" were released from the press. This issue was cosponsored by The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi and the American Bar Association. Mead Data Central made possible the distribution of this issue to the entire membership of the American Bar Association. In addition, contributions from The Brown Foundation, Inc., The General Electric Foundation, The George Gund Foundation, the Kettering Foundation, The Mead Corporation Foundation, and The Pfizer Foundation made possible the selection of well-known authors and further distribution to a wide array of organizations. To date, the total cost of the project is approximately $224,511. (See pp. 8-11 for details of contributions and expenditures for this project.)

The wide distribution of the issue will ensure its availability to large numbers of persons planning Bicentennial programs. Approximately 479,410 copies were mailed directly to individuals and approximately 73,924 copies were shipped to various organizations for distribution by them. Of this 73,924 copies, approximately 20,000 are being distributed from Dr. Mark W. Cannon's office. Additional overcopies are being distributed from the National Forum office.

A copy of the print order and a detailed description of the distribution can be found in the distribution section of this report (See pp. 15-40). The issue was distributed to the entire membership of The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi (104,968) and the entire membership of the American Bar Association (346,388). More than 8,700 copies were sent to professors of American history, American politics, constitutional law, and political theory in American colleges and universities. Over 14,000 copies were sent to social science teachers in American secondary schools. In addition, the United States Information Agency distributed 11,000 copies to overseas leaders.

In addition to direct distribution, various articles in the issue will receive wider readership through reprints in other publications. As publisher, The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi has waived all reprint fees for material printed in the issue. However, the issue was copyrighted in order to ensure our ability to accurately report on use of the articles. If reprint fees are available, these funds are directed to the authors. To date, the most significant reprint request is from the United States Information Agency. The agency plans to place 15 of the 17 articles in the issue on its availability list offering them to its entire field of 126 countries and 205 posts. The Rio de Janeiro post has already expressed an interest in translating the material into Portuguese for use in consideration of constitutional questions. A list of the 10 reprint requests received in the last 3 months may be found on pages 42-43 of this report. It is our expectation that reprint requests will increase as the Bicentennial of the Constitution approaches.

To alert the media to the availability of the issue, 750 news packages

(including a copy of the journal, 2 news releases, and excerpts) were mailed in early December to a media list of 750 editors furnished by the Kettering Foundation. Approximately 250 additional news packages were mailed to various groups and individuals. In addition, 3 news releases have been distributed to the local media and 26 target cities by the Office of University Relations at East Tennessee State University. A list of this publicity can be found on page 45 of this report. Two supplemental news releases are also in a draft stage.

In addition, the following organizations have agreed to publish announcements of the issue's availability:

The American Political Science Association (in PS and in News for Teachers of Political Science)

The American Historical Association (in its newsletter for members)

Project '87 (in This Constitution)

American Society for Legal History (in its newsletter)

Supreme Court Historical Society (in the Supreme Court Historical Quarterly)

The American Federation of Teachers (in The American Educator)

Council for the Advancement of Citizenship (in Citizenship Education News)

American Bar Association (in ABA Journal)

Presidential Classroom for Young Americans (in its newsletter)

National Center for State Courts (in its journal)

United States Information Agency (cable to all principal overseas posts)

National Council for the Social Studies (newsletter)

Institute for Educational Affairs (newsletter)

Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge (newsletter and press release)

American Corporate Counsel Association

Several of the above organizations are also processing modest requests from the public for the issue. These are: Project '87, the Supreme Court Historical Society, Council for the Advancement of Citizenship, Presidential Classroom for Young Americans, and the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge. A list of sample announcements may be found on page 47 of this report.

The final section of this report includes a list of sample letters that have been received over the last 3 months by Guest Editor Mark W. Cannon or National Forum editor Stephen W. White. The following excerpts from these letters will give you a sense of how the overwhelming majority of recipients of the Bicentennial issue felt about it:

"Because the special National Forum issue on the Bicentennial of the Constitution is an excellent source for background, ideas, and wide-ranging viewpoints of this important celebration, I would like to make the issue available to our key members and resource people. The issue is excellent and provocative--and certainly deserving of the widest possible circulation. Our office would like to help make sure that 'Toward the Bicentennial of the Constitution' reaches those members of the library community who will play important and influential roles in the 1987 Bicentennial events."

Judith F. Krug
Office for Intellectual Freedom
American Library Association
Chicago, IL

"Your special edition of the National Forum is a valuable tool for focusing attention on the need for all Americans to join in the planning of observances. To facilitate that end, I would like to obtain at least ten more complimentary copies to share with others who will certainly be inspired by your work."

John Conyers, Jr.
Congress of the United States
House of Representatives
Washington, DC

"As one who has spent most of his life grappling with the words of our 'Great Charter,' I found your piece to be brilliantly conceived, sensitively executed, and elegantly crafted." (in reference to Mark W. Cannon's article)

Irving R. Kaufman
United States Court of Appeals
Second Circuit
New York, NY

"The Bicentennial provides an excellent opportunity to rediscover the basic rights of liberty, equality, and justice that define the character of our nation. The Association has made greater public understanding of our legal system and how it works one of its priorities, and I am glad that we had the opportunity to participate in this important effort."

John C. Shepherd
President
American Bar Association

"You have every reason to be proud of that special issue; it was a humdinger."

Eugene H. Methvin, Senior Editor
Reader's Digest

"The need you perceive for 'civic education' is so fundamental that many will jump over that suggestion too quickly. Only a patient, informed, and engaging effort will overcome much of the misunderstanding and rather superficial grasp of 'the workings of law and government' which you recognize is at the heart of the 1987-89 Bicentennial. We appreciate the stimulation and engaging style of the effort you have coordinated with the National Forum and thank you for it."

Donald F. X. Finn
Executive Director

"It is a remarkably successful blend of good writing, good scholarship, and genuine leadership."

". . . you have already done very effectively what we try to do--condense and beautify academic thought."

Steven Lagerfeld
Associate Editor
The Wilson Quarterly
Washington, DC

"Every essay is worthy of its subject; every contribution is a thoughtful and satisfying statement written in dignified and clear prose. The totality is just the sort of learned and immediate tribute to the Constitution which should be in the hands of citizens everywhere. I hope Phi Kappa Phi and the other organizations named on page 2 receive the tributes they deserve."

Philip Siegelman
Department of Political Science
San Francisco State University

For those who know that we cannot be a true nation until we are a nation of laws and are governed by enduring principles, the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution is perhaps the most significant historical event we will celebrate. The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi has been proud to be a part of this endeavor. It most clearly exemplifies the motto of the Society, which is "Let the love of learning rule mankind." Through this issue we hope that we will engage all of the readers of National Forum in a continuing lesson in what a number of our authors would refer to as "civic literacy." We hope that they will come to appreciate not only the Constitution's provisions but the central importance of a written, public, coherent, and stable body of law by which we may be governed and carry on our business and social activities. We hope that readers will grapple with the idea of a living Constitution; that they will appreciate the role of the Constitution, with its broad provisions for freedom of thought and inquiry, in the technological development of our society; that they will understand how delicate and how important is the idea of 'judicial review' of the laws of the land; and that, in the lively interchanges here, they will see in modern guise how the notions of checks and balances and balance of power are key to understanding the roles of the elected officials in this country. Most importantly, we hope that readers will gain an appreciation for the complexity of constitutional government and understand why the complex processes government embodies are necessary in a society that attempts to preserve the freedoms and privileges of its citizens.

One of the most valuable lessons we learned from this endeavor was that the more often people collaborate, and the more involved they are in that collaborative effort, the more successful the effort will be. The financial contributors are to be commended for their generous support of the project. Voluntary, collective effort has produced something far beyond what we as a staff could have accomplished had we had potentially infinite resources. This project was moved from beginning to end by people, and the people who deserve recognition are almost too numerous to mention here. However, special thanks are due to the following:

Dr. Mark W. Cannon, Guest Editor for the Bicentennial issue
Mr. Jim Glaser, Judicial Intern, U.S. Supreme Court
Mr. Richard Nagareda, Judicial Intern, U.S. Supreme Court
Mr. Steve Mintz, Judicial Intern, U.S. Supreme Court
Dr. Bradford Wilson, Research Associate, U.S. Supreme Court
Dr. Walter V. Hohenstein, President, The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi

Dr. George L. Robertson, Executive Director, The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi

The Board of Directors of The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi and the Board of Directors of the American Bar Association for endorsing this project

Mr. John C. Shepherd, President of the American Bar Association

Mr. Richard E. Wiley, Chairman of the Board of Editors of the American Bar Association Journal

Mr. Robert Peck, Director of the Commission on Public Understanding About the Law, for his editorial assistance in reading all of the manuscripts appearing in the issue

Mr. Gerald D. Rapp, Senior Vice President and General Counsel, Mead Corporation, for his assistance in raising funds

The administration of East Tennessee State University for assistance in publicizing the printing of the Bicentennial issue and for making research facilities in the library available during the proofreading and editorial stages of the production of this issue

This report is respectfully submitted. If you have any questions about the contents of this report or if you wish to request copies of any of the material listed in the report, please feel free to write or call the editorial offices of National Forum.

DESCRIPTION OF PROJECT

Description of Project

In the fall of 1983, The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi, the American Bar Association, and Mead Data Central undertook a unique project to stimulate interest in the upcoming celebration of the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution. Through a special issue of National Forum: The Phi Kappa Phi Journal, we sought to reach civic minded citizens likely to influence the planning and implementation of Bicentennial programs and festivities by national and community organizations.

We hope that the issue, entitled "Toward the Bicentennial of the Constitution," will bring about a greater appreciation of the historical and contemporary significance of our founding document. The 200th anniversary of our Constitution in 1987 provides us with an exceptional opportunity to examine fundamental questions about its creation and implications. The guest editor of the issue, Mark W. Cannon, secured commitments from a broad array of public and private persons deeply concerned with the livelihood of our Constitution; Dr. Cannon encouraged the authors to write broadly and to avoid professional jargon. The result was a collection of essays readable by citizen, student, and scholar alike. The list of contributors and their articles reads like an honor roll of respected public leaders and scholars:

Mark W. Cannon	"Why Celebrate the Constitution?"
Gordon S. Wood	"The Intellectual Origins of the American Constitution"
Richard B. Morris	"Creating and Ratifying the Constitution"
Albert P. Blaustein	"A Model in Nation Building"
Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr.	"Congress: The First 200 Years"
Ronald W. Reagan	"The Presidency: Roles and Responsibilities"
Warren E. Burger	"The Judiciary: The Origins of Judicial Review"
Walter Berns	"Do We Have a Living Constitution?"
Orrin G. Hatch	"Civic Virtue: Wellspring of Liberty"
Wade H. McCree, Jr.	"Civil Liberties and Limited Government"
A. E. Dick Howard	"The Constitution and Free Expression"
Tom Johnson	"A Publisher Reflects on Freedom of the Press"
David Mathews	"We the People...."
Betty Southard Murphy	"The Commercial Republic"
Don K. Price	"Science, Technology, and the Constitution"
Rita E. Hauser	"The Constitution and National Security"
William J. Bennett	"Celebrating the Bicentennial of the Constitution"

The special issue of National Forum has been widely disseminated through the generous support of The Brown Foundation, Inc., the General Electric Foundation, The George Gund Foundation, the Kettering Foundation, The Mead Corporation Foundation, and The Pfizer Foundation. Mead Data Central has made possible the printing and distribution of the journal to the membership of the American Bar Association.

In selecting appropriate avenues for the distribution of the issue, we wished to meet several broad objectives. Initially, we sought to stimulate interest among scholars concerned with the history, philosophy, and contemporary significance of the United States Constitution. The American Political Science Association and the American Historical Association are examples of such organizations.

Civic education is one of the most important charges that we as a society must undertake. As a second objective, we therefore sought to peak the interest of national, state, and local leaders dedicated to promoting broader public understanding of the American constitutional system. Included among these groups are the American Bar Association Commission on Public Understanding About the Law, Project '87, the Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity Organization, and the Supreme Court Historical Society. In addition, we made certain that the Bicentennial issue would reach libraries and influential members of the media.

Finally, with an eye toward the future vitality of the Constitution, we sought to reach students and teachers across the country. To this end, we contacted organizations that sponsor special programs for highly selective groups of young people--the future leaders of our nation. In many cases, we chose organizations that specialize in the training of teachers. Distribution to groups such as the Freedoms Foundation of Valley Forge, the National Council for the Social Studies, the Center for Civic Education, and Presidential Classroom for Young Americans will ensure that the special Bicentennial issue will have an impact beyond the celebrations of the coming years.

PHI KAPPA PHI NATIONAL FORUM DISTRIBUTION

A.B.A. COMMISSION ON PUBLIC UNDERSTANDING ABOUT THE LAW

No. of Copies: 2,000

Address: Robert S. Peck, Director
The Commission on Public Understanding
About the Law
American Bar Association
750 North Lake Shore Drive
Chicago, Illinois 60611

Contact: Bob Peck (312)988-5728 (Chicago)

Distribution:

1. 3 conferences sponsored by the Commission
2. State and local bar associations

Copies to directors responsible for these organizations' educational programs. Mr. Peck says that, for the most part, these people are not lawyers, and NOT Members of the ABA

3. Elementary and secondary schools teachers

These would reach approximately 600 teachers through state and local bar associations.

AMERICAN HISTORICAL ASSOCIATION

No. of copies: 450

Address: Mr. Samuel Gammon
American Historical Association

Distribution:

1. National Endowment for the Humanities Project

"Our current two-year program supported by the NEH for 1984 and 1985 is designed to improve instruction and the history and principles of American political thought. It involves the training during the summer of 60 leaders from 20 school districts in the nation. These leaders are then responsible for providing training during the school year to a minimum of 500 teachers. Your publication would be used in this training program and in the follow-up programs planned by the District. On the conservative side, I would estimate we could use 600 copies in this program."

2. Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention

"... this is a cooperative project of five national organizations involved in law-related education. This coming year the project will provide in-service training for approximately 3,500 educators. This would be an excellent opportunity to use in the distribution of the publication."

3. Department of Education Project

"The project is providing assistance to a network of nine state level programs which in turn are affiliated with local school districts in their states. Distribution of 150 copies of the publication to each state totaling 1,350 in all would be useful for a start."

Distribution:

Project '87 is a joint venture of the American Historical Association and the American Political Science Association served by an advisory board by jurists, public officials, and educators. The Honorary Chairman of the Board is Chief Justice Warren Burger. The major objective of Project '87 is to forge a link between the scholarly examination of constitutional issues and public discourse about, and appreciation for, these issues and their relationship to American democratic values. The design for the Project, as approved in 1978, calls for "three years of scholarly research and discussion on topics relating to the framing and ratification of the Constitution, the evolution of constitutional form through the years, the analysis of political behavior within the constitutional framework, the reputation and impact of the Constitution as a model at home and abroad, and the assessment of its prospects under modern conditions."

THE NEW FEDERALIST PAPERS

Mr. John Roberts
Associate Counsel to the President
Room 106, EOB
The White House
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Mr. Roberts:

I write at the suggestion of Dr. Mark Cannon to request permission to reprint the President's article, "The Presidency: Roles and Responsibilities," from the Fall, 1984 National Forum as part of The New Federalist Papers.

The New Federalist Papers is the bicentennial project of Public Research, Syndicated, and is supported in part by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities. The project began last January. Each month we syndicate six articles on constitutional themes to a nationwide audience. Two articles a month are sent, free of charge, to more than two thousand small, community newspapers. A weekly article is sent to some one hundred daily papers. The articles examine the various provisions of the Constitution, as well as its historical roots, its political principles, and its meaning today.

A distinguished roster of authors has contributed to the series, including Chief Justice Burger, Attorney General Smith, Civil Rights Commission Chairman Clarence Pendleton, and Eugene McCarthy. From the scholarly community, we have had articles from Henry Steele Commager, Samuel Beer, Gordon S. Wood, and many others. We hope the President will be willing to join this list.

Dr. Cannon has given his permission for us to excerpt and to syndicate selected articles from the Fall, 1984 issue of National Forum, of which he was the guest editor. The first of those articles which we will syndicate is Dr. Cannon's; it will be distributed on February 13. We will also ask Speaker O'Neill for permission to use an excerpt from his article, and we plan to use several others as well.

We would use an 800 word excerpt from the President's article; if we are given permission, we would plan to do the excerpting here and send it to you for approval. However, we are open about the precise arrangements for the editing. We offer an honorarium of $250, though I do not know what the rules are concerning such things.
