Dear Mrs. Burgos:

It was good of you to take the time to share your views with me.

This Administration is dedicated to eliminating waste and fraud in federal programs. To advance this goal, President Reagan has appointed the Council on Integrity and Efficiency. To date the Council has been instrumental in uncovering hundreds of cases where funds have been misused. Moreover, the President has endorsed legislation which would create additional Inspectors General who will have powers tailored to the specific needs of the departments they oversee.

These steps are just the beginning in one of the toughest and most important programs this Administration will undertake: the elimination of waste and fraud in government.

With regard to social security, we are determined to insure that those receiving benefits will continue to be adequately cared for while also insuring that the fund will remain financially sound so as to benefit future generations.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

Re: Regulatory Reform,
Executive Order 11246

Dear George:

When I endorsed President Reagan last September, I was privileged to spend three hours with him during his trip from San Francisco to San Jose. I gave him a five-point briefing book on specific points to make in speaking in my District, and we discussed changes he might make through Executive Order, rather than through the legislative process. One such option lies in the field of affirmative action paperwork required of government contractors.

The President expressed great interest in the Executive Order possibilities and turned to Mike Deaver and said, "Make me a list of what I can do by Executive Order." Since October 1980 my staff and I have been working with the American Electronics Association and other business groups, including the Business Roundtable and the National Chamber of Commerce, to come up with an Executive Order that would:

1. Strengthen enforcement of existing federal laws barring employment discrimination;
2. Reaffirm the Government's commitment to require affirmative action programs, but only by contractors who are below appropriate levels of hiring or promotion; and
3. Reduce materially the paperwork reporting requirements that have grown up under Executive Order 11246 and its ever-expanding regulations.

The enclosed draft repealing Executive Order 11246 is the result of this work, and I have attached my own ideas of the kind of message the President might make at the same time. You will note that the salient features of the President's action lie in:

1. transferring the best 300 of the existing 1500 person workforce to EEOC to enhance EEOC's enforcement capability;
2. cutting the remaining workforce at OFCCP to 300 (a reduction of 80%);

The Honorable George Bush
Page Two
June 5, 1981

3. limiting the OFCCP's enforcement capability to debarment (rather than conciliation, back pay, etc.);
4. directing stern enforcement of debarment;
5. adopting a position of simplifying all future regulations and reducing the need for lawyers.

The civil rights groups don't like the limitation of remedies, and business generally doesn't want to face tough enforcement of debarment.

The end result, however, is that we (1) save probably $2 billion a year to the contractors (a cost which of course is passed on to the Government), (2) cut 900 employees from the government payroll, and (3) reassure the minority community that we are committed to Civil Rights law enforcement, and are strengthening that enforcement.

Finally, there is the matter of the new OFCCP regulations (not yet approved by OMB) which are scheduled to be published before June 29 for formal comment. I think you should withdraw these proposed regulations for further consideration pending a decision on revoking Executive Order 11246.

From a practical standpoint the new regulations are highly complex and controversial and can only draw attention away from the basic economic recovery program effort we are all seeking to write into law between now and the August 1 recess.

I have asked for an appointment to discuss this briefly with you and Boyden Gray next week after you have had a chance to review the enclosures.

A copy of this letter also goes to Mike Deaver, in view of the fact that this was first discussed with him and the President last September.

All the best,

Thank you for your recent letter concerning the National Endowment for the Arts. I appreciate the candid and personal nature of your remarks and respect your sincerity.

Traditionally, Americans have been generous in their support of the arts. Yet, in the face of a failing economy, such generosity becomes increasingly difficult. Realizing the serious condition of our economy, President Reagan has made economic recovery one of his top priorities. This Administration believes that its policies will result in a stronger and more productive economy to the benefit of all those who live within it, including those responsible for contributing to the artistic achievements of our nation.

ATTENTION: Ms. Shirley Moore

Dear Mr. Deaver:

I cordially invite you to join the prominent national figures who have appeared on "AMERICAN FOCUS", the nation's largest radio interview program. (Our show was until recently known as "FOCUS ON YOUTH", the name still used by our network.) Every weekend, over 2.5 million listeners tune to more than 300 of the nation's top commercial radio stations to hear many of the finest leaders from all walks of life interviewed by a small panel of college students.

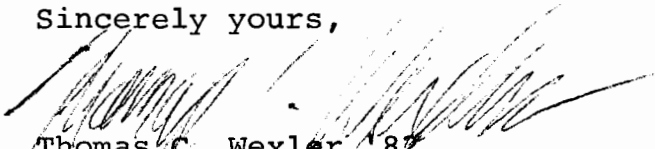

Past guests include George Bush, Alexander Haig, Robert Dole, Jimmy Carter, William F. Buckley, Jr., Jack Lemmon, Dan Rather, Jessie Jackson, and Gloria Steinem. Upcoming guests now being scheduled include Benjamin Hooks, Orrin Hatch, and Alan Alda.

We are planning our schedule for the summer, fall, and winter of 1981, and we would be most honored if you would accept our invitation. We tape our interviews on location in Washington, New York or points in between these cities; an "AMERICAN FOCUS" interview lasts just thirty minutes and can be taped at your convenience.

I have enclosed some information to give you an idea of the quality of our program and the national attention it has received.

Once again, thank you for your generous consideration.

Dear Mr. Deaver:

You have been selected by the Editorial Board of our brand-new Federal Staff Directory as a key Federal executive whose biographical brief will be of reference value to the users of this, our first edition. The FSD is scheduled for publication in August. A description of this new reference work is included in the brochure enclosed.

If you have already prepared a biographical release, we will appreciate your asking your staff to mail us a copy. Otherwise, to make it easy for you to jot down the essential facts, we are enclosing a simple questionnaire with a postpaid reply envelope. Please take a couple of minutes to fill it out today.

You were selected as a biographee solely on the basis of the reference interest our users will have in you and your job. At this point, we wish to make it very clear that sending back your filled-in questionnaire involves absolutely no financial obligation on your part.

Who will use the new Federal Staff Directory? Several thousand key executives on the Hill and in the Executive Departments ... state and local officials and agencies ... associations and labor unions ... libraries from coast to coast ... universities ... the press ... radio and TV newsmen ... embassies ... top business executives and lawyers have already subscribed to the Federal Staff Directory even before publication.

Thank you for your cooperation.

Dear Howard:

It was very nice to hear from you and to hear you are enjoying Middlesex School.

In answer to your question about Central America, the Reagan Administration strongly supports the development in Central America of stable and democratic countries friendly to the United States.

To do that means giving aid to governments under attack by forces hostile to this country who are aided and abetted by Cuba and others. We have given both military and economic aid and political support to El Salvador which is feeling the brunt of the attack. As for Nicaragua, the U.S. has ended aid to that country because it continues to send arms to the extreme leftist guerrillas in El Salvador. We would like to see Nicaragua become democratic -- and there are pro-democratic forces still functioning in that country. But the Sandinista leadership seems to have other ideas. In any case, the Reagan administration will continue its efforts along with our friends and allies to meet the challenge our adversaries have offered.

Many thanks for your thoughts and please give my very best to your parents.

Dear Mr. Deaver,

I hope you and Mrs. Deaver are enjoying your time in Washington D.C. I saw you on T.V. and was so glad you were not hurt when the President was shot.

I am currently a student at The Middlesex School in Concord, Massachusetts. In our History class we have to write to two people in Washington. I wrote Senator Hayakawa, but could not bring myself to write Senator Cranston!! I know these sort of letters are a bit of a bother but I thought you might not mind helping me. I am Richard and Jessie Huberty's son.

Could you tell me what the administrations stand is on our role in Central America? What are your views? Do you think we should continue to aid Nicaragua? I'm not sure how I feel as I am not too well informed and since I trust your views, I would like to know what they are.

Would you say hello to Mrs. Deaver for me please? I hope you and Mrs. Deaver will be visiting the Davis's this summer in Tahoe. Thank you so much for your help.

Dear Gary:

Thank you for raising the concern about the need to maintain a consistent approach in presenting the President's Program for Economic Recovery.

As you pointed out, the economic program can only be achieved through a willingness of the people in all sectors to share in the changes and reductions which are part of the President's plan. We have set a high priority on re-establishing a strong, stable American economic system, and have proposed the Program for Economic Recovery as the most effective solution to the current economic situation.

In making changes and reductions, every effort has been made to see that the proposals do not cause unnecessary hardship for any one sector. The business community, along with many other groups, will be asked to make short-term sacrifices, but only for the long-term good of all.

We hope we have been consistent in asking for all groups to bear a fair share of the burden which is essential to public acceptance of the budget reductions program. At the same time, across-the-board tax rate reductions should also help reduce the tax burden on all Americans.

Thank you again for your thoughts on this matter.

Dear President Reagan,

Auctioning off our priest at our annual fund-raising festival each year is a major part of this pleasant and successful event. The high-bid team of four couples receives a gourmet dinner cooked and hosted by our priest, Father Leo McAllister (former California Assembly Chaplain for 12 years).

Related to the "food" theme of this auction are also such outstanding "things" to auction as dinner-show tickets for two at the (Reno) MGM Grand (with a night's lodging), Caesar's Palace (Tahoe) dinner-show, dinners at the prestigious John Q's atop Sacramento's Capitol Plaza Holiday Inn, etc., which are donated by these fine firms.

Our entire parish would consider it a great privilege if we might also receive (before July 15?) one of the "sample size" jars of jelly beans, with the Presidential Seal thereon, which will add greatly to the success of our auction and festival.

Thank you for your consideration, and please do continue with your OUTSTANDING and refreshing efforts and accomplishments as President of the United States.

Best Regards and Wishes,
