Dear Mike:

Many many thanks for your thoughtful note of sympathy on my recent confinement in the hospital.

I was turned loose on July four and am now recuperating at home. The doctor assures me that I will be back to full strength in a matter of weeks.

Congratulations on your good work in Washington. The President looks great on all fronts. Once again good staff work makes a great difference.

I have been in the capital a few times since the Inaugural. I had a session with Ed Meese and a few meetings with Bill Clark. Sorry I did not touch base with you but would like to do so next time if it is convenient to your more than busy schedule. Washington looks more and more like Sacramento East. You have selected some very good people for the jobs to be done.

I note in the paper that you have been assigned the duties of liaison with the Olympic Committee. Will this mean you may get to the coast on occasion?

Once again, thanks for your letter. If there are any errands that I can run for you at this end of the country please inform me. Take care of yourself and save some time for the family.

With all good wishes, I remain

Dear Mr. Tirado:

Thank you for your recent message concerning immigration policy. Your knowledge and experience in this field are impressive. You can be sure that your comments and proposals will be given serious consideration as this Administration continues to develop policies and programs concerning the flow of immigrants from Mexico.

I am truly grateful for your kind comments concerning the work I have been doing here. I only hope that I will continue to uphold the faith you have placed in me.

With regard to your inquiry about a position in this Administration, you can be sure that the resume you submitted to Mr. James will be given serious consideration. Dear Mr. Deaver:

After reading your July 8th answer to my letter of June 19th, I can see the letter was too long since the high point was missed. In short, (1), I would like for the Government to stop subsidizing junk mail and, (2), I would like for the President to stop using Malcolm Forbes' yacht.

Malcolm Forbes drops two to three hundred tons of paper on the Postal Service each month for which the Postal Service is not adequately compensated in relationship to what I have to pay for a first-class letter.

I am enclosing a copy of my June 19th letter and the July 8th letter. If your assistant can't at least get the context of my complaint, I would be a lot less rankled to receive no reply at all.

Sincerely,

Larry F. Ferguson

Dear Mr. Ferguson:

I have received your message addressed to the President regarding press stories suggesting the White House is interested in securing a replacement for the Presidential yacht, the Sequoia, which had been used by seven Presidents and sold by the Carter Administration.

Actually, we have only been responding to both private and governmental sources that have urged our exploring that possibility.

At this time we have no plans to reinstate the use of a Presidential yacht.

Thank you sincerely for your comments.

My Dear Mr. President:

Your recent outing on the yacht of Malcolm Forbes recalled to my mind complaints to Congressmen and Senators in 1978 about postal rate increases.

How does your ride on Mr. Forbes' yacht tie in with postal expenditures? Well, the postal service subsidizes and encourages magazines, publications, and a world of other solicitors to use the postal service's cheap commercial rates in the solicitation of people. The postal service, as an example, permits Malcolm Forbes to dump tons of paper into the mail for which the postal service is not adequately compensated for delivering and, of course, Malcolm Forbes has a tax-deductible yacht not only because he is a successful business man but because he is to reap millions of dollars as a subsidy from the Federal Government's postal service.

You will note the enclosed two copies of my letters, one to the Editor of Forbes Magazine of October 9, 1978, asking to know his postal bill and his answer to me on October 12, 1978, which told me absolutely nothing but knew exactly what I was driving at.

One of the things that prompted this request from Forbes was not only what it costs for me to mail a simple letter, but the fact that what I remember as the September 1978 publication of FORBES weighed in excess of one pound per magazine and contained millions of dollars to FORBES in advertising revenue and with a paid circulation of 660,000 copies meant that we had over three thousand, three hundred tons of paper dumped in the postal service for delivery for which undoubtedly cost the postal service tens of thousands of dollars in excess of what they received.

As another complaint about the cheap postal service rates for junk mail at the expense of my having to pay 18¢ to mail a simple letter, I am enclosing a batch of junk mail received from answering one ad in BARRON'S magazine.

The President
June 19, 1981
Page two.

I was curious to know why DOW THEORY FORECAST would sell a trial subscription to their investment advisory service for a mere $3.00. As you will note I did not use my full name since I suspected I would be receiving substantial junk mail from the ad and it needed specific identification. By substantial I was thinking in terms of four or five pieces of advertisement. I am enclosing for your assistants' perusal about one-half the junk mail I have received from answering this one ad.

Having said this before, I say it again: If we stop subsidizing the junk mail people, the Postal Service rates for first class mail will not become so exorbitant.

Of course, I feel our President should have a yacht and I know you have disposed of the ones that presidents have had in the past and that it is much cheaper to use Forbes' yacht, so on that particular transaction the taxpayers are probably equal. The problem is all those other millions of freeloaders riding Malcolm Forbes' coat tail running our first-class postal rates out of sight. In the longrun it would be cheaper for you to keep the yacht and not use Chairman Malcolm's.

Incidentally, you will note the cost to me to send the enclosed junk mail to you is $2.95, but I seriously doubt it cost the solicitors 25% of this amount. Since it is regarded that only 2% of junk mail is answered we are obviously unnecessarily burdening the Postal Service and the first-class letter writers.

My warmest regards and thanks for the splendid job I think you and Mrs. Reagan are doing in the White House.

Sincerely,

Larry F. Ferguson

Dear Mr. Deaver:

Thank you for your response to my concern regarding the possible existing hazards from earthquakes to the President's estate in Santa Barbara.

I would like to stress my continuing concern regarding the safety of the building in the event of a strong nearby earthquake. From descriptions in the press, I surmise that the building would require some strengthening in order to make it safe and to bring it up to the current requirements of the California building codes for earthquakes. It is my understanding that at least a part of the building is a collapse hazard. A review of the building would require a one-day visit to quickly determine its structural characteristics and susceptibility to damage in an earthquake. After that, engineering calculations and design of possible strengthening features may be required. I have reviewed and strengthened hundreds of buildings in California and am very interested in helping you assure the safety of the buildings and its occupants.

Please note that earthquakes are not considered to be "unforeseeable acts of God" in California. They are well understood natural events. Whereas we do not yet know when they will occur, engineers, like myself have studied their effects in the past, and can predict their effects on all types of buildings. In other words, we cannot predict earthquakes yet, but we can predict their effects on buildings.

I travel frequently to Washington, D.C. on business and would be very interested in meeting with you, or an appropriate individual, in order to discuss what can and should be done. Please let me know if that can be arranged.

Very truly yours,

Peter I. Yanev
