Dear Mr. Hebert:

Thank you for your letter. I appreciate the time you have taken to bring your views to my attention.

The President is determined to reduce the burden of the size and cost of government on the American people. While the passage of his tax and budget reductions by the United States Congress is a step in the right direction, there is much which remains to be done. Hearing from concerned citizens such as yourself is greatly encouraging as this Administration continues to develop policies and programs. You can be sure that your comments and proposals will receive serious attention from the appropriate officials here at the White House.

Dear Dr. Pope:

Thank you for your recent message. I appreciate the time you have taken to bring your proposals regarding the Federal debt to my attention.

The amount in interest which the Federal government must pay to finance its debt is of deep concern to this Administration. The problems it presents both in terms of budgetary policy and the amount of credit available to our nation's citizens are great. This Administration is continually reviewing and developing policy alternatives to deal with this situation. We are grateful for the suggestions of people like you who have a sincere desire to improve the quality of life for all Americans.

Again, thank you for taking the time to write. You can be sure that your comments will receive serious consideration.

Dear Mrs. Oliver:

Thank you for your letter. I am sure that President Reagan shares my appreciation for your support and your kind words concerning his recovery.

President Reagan values the time which he spends with members of the Washington Press Corps both for the opportunity it affords him to become acquainted with these men and women and to communicate, through them, to the American people. Yet, the duties of his office demand that the time which he spends with the press be limited. I am grateful that you have taken the time to bring your views on this matter to my attention.

Eureka!

Start with the best - Stay with the best ... that's YOU!

Thanks to your active support and counsel the prize has been reached. I am honored (nearly speechless) and both excited and enthusiastic about heading towards the southern gates of the Pillars of Hercules. I look forward to carrying out the principles of the Reagan Administration.

BUT ... I know in my heart that I would not (nay, never) be going to that important and challenging post without your backing (or should I say steering?). I want you to know how VERY pleased I am. Further, I am VERY, VERY grateful to YOU.

YOU will of course have "B & B" at the Residence -- it will be a special pleasure to welcome YOU home to our house abroad. I am enclosing a jotting which may entice you* to come to that extraordinary kingdom.

Once again, thank you.

Dear Mr. Griffith:

Thank you for your recent message. I was delighted to hear from a fraternity brother and was pleased by your strong support for President Reagan.

As you noted in your letter, the President has made his position regarding the Air Controllers Strike very clear. While, as a former Union leader, he respects the rights of labor to organize, the President believes that the integrity of the law must be maintained. When the air controllers decided to strike, they did so in violation of both the law of the United States and their sacred oath. President Reagan is determined that such unlawful conduct shall not be countenanced.

Again, I want to thank you for your strong expressions of support for the President and for taking the time to write to me.

I wish to thank you for your letter of September 15 . Your prompt personal response to my letter and its enclosures concerning my case with the Workers' Compensation "Office" was sincerely appreciated.

The wording of your letter indicated that you read it's contents and I am waiting to hear from the San Francisco "Office" at this time. As I mentioned I have cooperated fully with their request (many times over), in regards to my places of employment, school and hobbies during my life time), An examination of my file (unavailable to me) will reveal this information which is well defined.

I also appreciate your bringing interest in this case to Mr. Hartman of the Washington, D.C. office. I received a letter from him last week.

Please know my purpose in calling my case to your attention was to hopefully help to expedite this claim to a satisfactory conclusion. You have helped and once again I do appreciate it.

Dear Mr. Deaver:

I fully realize the many immense problems that come to rest on your desk and in your mind in your capacity as the Assistant to the President. These problems and decisions must be dealt with and ultimately solved to the best of your ability and those who hold high offices around you.

Compared to these, my problem must seem small in scope but as a loyal, hard-working Republican and American citizen, proud of my country and proud of the services that I and my husband, before his death (I am a war-widow), I felt that your door would not be closed to me and certainly I could not see your office repoded in an almost cruel and inhumane manner in which some of the branches of government has, namely, The Workers' Compensation Program, branch of the U.S. Department of Labor. Mine has been a lone and tiresome journey for nine years and now find myself at the end, the end of my energies, the end of my fight for justice.

The attachment to this letter will show the latest struggle. It is self-explanatory. My primary file sits on the desk of a young recently employed young man who tells me he knows nothing about my story and finds the size of the voluminous quite humorous. The personal file is in the Workers' Compensation Office, 450 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, Ca. 94102.

Several weeks <sup>ago</sup>, I directed a letter to you and somehow it found itself on the Directors office in Washington, D.C. I received a letter from him stating that it was in answer to my correspondence to "THE WHITE HOUSE". I assumed it was the letter I had written to you. These offices of the Employment Standards Administration, Offices of Workman's Compensation is where I have received the neglect and gross impropties.

Can and will you help me Mr. Deaver, the face, your face introduced to me on television, told me that you would. The camera's eye <sup>is</sup> inescapable.

May I hear from you or your office?

With many thanks

Sincerely

(Mrs.) Edna Ruth Spiehs

Dear Madame Annenberg:

We would like to bring to your immediate attention the extremely recent decision of the National Park Service to accept the large and magnificent equestrian statue of Felix de Weldon (of Iwo Jima fame) honoring the French and American military responsible for the victory at Yorktown.

The statue, measuring 24 feet by 40 feet, will be placed adjacent to SURRENDER FIELD in the weeks between now and October 18. It will constitute a dramatic focal point at the Yorktown battlefield. It will remain there, cast in bronze at a later date, for many generations to come.

This statue should be seriously considered as the key site - for its photogenic value and its political significance - for the presidential visit at Yorktown. The three horsemen are, in fact, George Washington, Marquis de Lafayette and Count Rochambeau. The statue thus symbolizes the spirit of Yorktown which Mr. Reagan certainly wants for his talks with President Mitterrand, whose brother is a French General.

The Marquis de Chambrun (direct descendant from Lafayette) and myself will be very pleased to give you any further information, as will be the Park Service both here in Washington and at Yorktown.

In the hope that the President will be able to come and receive the statue officially we remain very sincerely yours

Dear Mr. Galbraith:

Thank you for your recent letters. It was good of you to take the time to bring your views of issues of vital importance to my attention.

During the recent Ottawa Summit, President Reagan voiced his concern over the possible construction of a natural gas pipeline from the Soviet Union to Western Europe. The President made his objections to this project known to our allies in Europe and is now working with officials at the Department of State to develop alternate means by which our friends in Europe may satisfy their energy needs.

As you may know, the President has decided to go forward with the development of the neutron bomb. He believes that it forms an important element in our overall defense strategy. I know that the President will be as pleased as I was to hear of your support for his decision.
