Dear Dr. VanWagenen:

It was good of you to take the time to send me recent articles about the Administration and to express your support for the President. I know that President Reagan will be as grateful for your support as I am.

Although it is not possible to comply with your request, since the item you requested is not available for public distribution, I am happy to enclose a signed photograph of the President and Mrs. Reagan.

Again, thank you for writing.

Dear Mr. Nowotny:

It was good of you to take the time to tell me of your support for President Reagan's efforts to promote volunteerism. I know that the President will be as grateful for your support as I am.

Self-sacrifice, determination, and generosity are virtues which only private charities can encourage. Though government can attempt to improve conditions for those in need, only private individuals can provide the care and concern of neighbors. Volunteerism has always been a part of the American character and it will never lose its timeliness.

Your efforts, and those of the many citizens like you, can tap the best impulses of our people to build a better society and improve the lives of all Americans.

I would like you to know that the President's letter was read before a crowd of thirteen hundred attendees at our banquet, and it received a tremendous ovation from this highly patriotic audience. Using this as a criterion the "average american" is certainly behind the President.

Thank you once again, and the invitation to visit our International Headquarters in Lancaster, California is still open.

Dear Mr. Braxton:

The President has asked me to respond to your letter and MX basing proposal of September 23.

The system you propose would appear to be unsuitable for MX basing. The Air Force and staff of the Secretary of Defense have studied the idea of a road mobile ICBM since the early 1960s and have concluded that it has major defects. These include: lack of capability against projected Soviet threats, low survivability without hours of warning, questionable transit in a crisis due to jammed roads, and severe public interface and security problems.

The suggestion that mobile transporters be camouflaged to look like commercial trucks would be difficult because of the size of ICBMs and their necessary support equipment and the special distinguishing maintenance procedures that missiles must undergo routinely. The GLCM system, which is a "state of the art" road mobile design, requires more than a dozen support vehicles for its missile launcher component. There is no way that such a system can be camouflaged.

MEMORANDUM

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

October 9, 1981

TO: FRED FIELDING
FROM: MICHAEL K. DEEVER
SUBJECT: Reese Taylor

Reese Taylor came to my office today after weeks of seeking an appointment. He proceeded to tell me that he had received mixed signals from the Administration in precisely their preference on the direction of the commission, particularly as it pertains to trucking deregulation.

I advised him that I personally had a problem with discussing the subject at all because of my prior contractual arrangement with the California Trucking Association.

I did support that the President and all of us in this Administration appointed him because we had confidence in his independent judgment on matters affecting the ICC - That it would be improper for anyone to give direction to him now and that he needn't worry about my "second guessing" from the White House on any decisions in the future.

He also mentioned he is presently getting some direction from Martin Anderson, John McClowery and Department of Transportation.

Dear Mike:

Last night in San Diego 1,000 people attended the Boy Scouts of America "Distinguished Citizen of the Year" Banquet.

Much of the applause that evening should go to the President because of his glowing statements made via videotape shown at the event. I will treasure the tape and his comments for many years to come.

Thank you for making this videotape possible and thereby helping to make our evening very successful. Both Karon and I appreciate your friendship.

We send our greetings to Carolyn and although we know you are very busy, we hope you are enjoying your crucial position and life in Washington.

We look forward to seeing you in the near future.

Thank you for your letter requesting a sheet of President Reagan's doodles. I appreciate your interest in having one and regret that this must be a disappointing reply. Dear Mr. Groff:

Thank you for your recent letter and the copy of your book, The Leeco Experiment, which you enclosed. I know that President Reagan will be as pleased as I was to hear of your support. Certainly the policies of the last four decades have left us with many difficult problems in all areas of our national life. While there is much which must be done by those active in government, there is much which government cannot or should not do. As has so often been the case in the past, true progress can only be achieved by relying on the vision and spiritual strength of the American people. Only through the initiative of private individuals working to build a better life for themselves and for their families can we hope to succeed in our efforts to make America great again. Through faith in the Almighty and in ourselves we can once again make the American dream a reality.

Dear Mr. Palmer:

Thank you for your recent letter. I appreciate the time you have taken to write.

As you may know, President Reagan has placed economic renewal at the top of his list of priorities. He understands the hardship which the twin evils of double digit inflation and unemployment have caused for so many families. You can be sure that your comments on this matter will be given serious attention from the appropriate members of this Administration.

President Reagan shares your belief that we as a Nation must reassert our commitment to those spiritual and ethical beliefs which have long been a part of our tradition and have enabled us to undertake great deeds in the past. Ultimately, the success of our programs and policies to renew America's vitality and strength will depend on the spiritual fortitude of our people. It is encouraging to know that you share this concern.

Dear Mr. Fite:

Thank you for your recent letter. It was good of you to take the time to bring your views on several vital issues to my attention.

President Reagan is committed to rebuilding our defense capabilities. He is convinced that immediate action is necessary to reduce the window of vulnerability which threatens the security of all our people. The President has proposed deploying the MX missile and building the B-1 bomber as part of a comprehensive plan to improve our defense systems. With regard to your comments concerning defensive missile systems, you will be interested to know that the President has also proposed an accelerated research program for the development of anti-ballistic missile systems.

Reducing the level of high interest rates is one of the top priorities of this Administration. Until the President's Program for Economic Recovery begins to take effect, its exact impact on interest rates cannot be predicted with certainty. However, we are confident that lower rates will result from the many positive aspects of this Administration's economic policies.

This Administration firmly supports a disciplined monetary policy. Under the authority of legislation passed by the Congress, President Reagan has appointed a commission to study the role of gold in the United States monetary system. This commission is composed of Administration officials, members of Congress, and members of the Federal Research Board. It is expected to make a final report in March of next year.

Finally, with regard to your comments on entitlement programs, you can be sure that this Administration remains committed to reducing the rate of growth of Federal spending and to attaining a balanced Federal budget.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

MICHAEL K. DEEVER

Dear Mike,

Working with you, politically, over the years, and, at the advice of Pier Gherini and Gertrude Calden, I approach you with suggestions for ameliorating short-fall in the Social Security System, and a popular grievance for the Cabinet's consideration.

Enclosed is a clipping from The News Press proposing a National Lottery to fund Social Security. Another idea is deleting Social Security payments from those whose net income is $ 50,000.00 or over.

The grievance is deep and vocal that the President might proceed with MX Missile development, which might be obsolete before functional, at overwhelming cost to dissident constituents.

Certainly, they believe in National Defense measures: the B1 Bomber, Stealth, Cruise, Neutron Bomb, AND a Draft, but are militantly opposed to the MX. The Public flak on this is heavy, as you know.

Yours, in defense of the Republican Party,

Mike received your letter today and asked me to check into the reason James Neal didn't receive a letter from President Reagan.

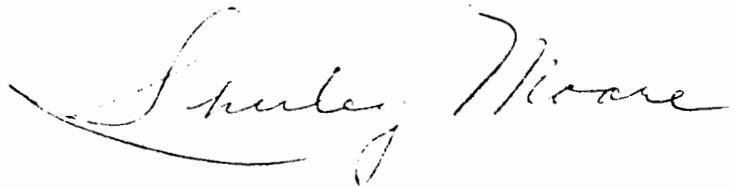

A thorough check of our files shows that the President has never received a letter from this young man, therefore, we couldn't answer it.

Please be good enough to ask him to write again - and tell him we have no record of correspondence from him. We'll be looking for another letter. You might want him to put the letter to the attention of Mike Deaver.

It was sure nice to see you, John....and we're looking forward to your next trip.

Mr. Michael Deaver, Assistant to the President
White House
Washington, D.C.

Dear Sir.....

I appreciate your taking time from a busy schedule to answer my "pro-choice stance" letter.

Like myself, I'm sure all pro-choice people are fully appreciative of President Reagan's drive for human dignity. But....if the statistics from the last census were properly interpreted by the media, a child raised in a one parent home is six times more likely to be raised at or near the poverty level than one from a two parent home. Where is the dignity....on the average....of being raised at or near that economic level? Where is the dignity of that one parent living at or near that level and raising the child, or children?

Where is the dignity in being a pregnant high school girl in a small town? There is no particular dignity in being "forced" into an early marriage that statistically is highly likely to fail. Nor is there any particular dignity in being a dropout from the educational system and having to take the first dead-end job available. Nor is there any particular dignity in having to live, even in part, on welfare.

I submit, Mr. Deaver, that there is not much of a case to be made for human dignity in right-to-life legislation.

Right-to-life is very definitely a minority cause. Poll after reputable poll confirm this. Only 9% of the world's population still live in countries absolutely forbidding abortions. Even 97% Catholic Italy voted 2-1 to keep the abortion rights they were granted in 1978. For right or for wrong, for better or for worse, this is one of the facets of a changing world.

Well....that sort of legislation can, and has been before, bulled thru Congress and signed into law and forced upon the majority of us. But I hope such will not be the case this time. The older I get, the more faith I have in the collective opinion of the majority....and I speak as one who has held some dandy minority opinions in my time.

Yours truly,

John H. Barton

Dear Mr. Jacobs:

Thank you so much for your letter inviting me to be your guest speaker at the National Energy Foundation's Kick-off event on November 17th.

Unfortunately, my schedule with the President leaves me practically no time at all to accept appointments outside the White House. However, I have taken the liberty of forwarding your request to Mr. James Rosebush of my staff, for his consideration.

Again, thank you for inviting me.

Sincerely,

MICHAEL K. DEEVER

Dear Mike:

I am sending along with this note a copy of our just-completed videotape on the President's team at the White House entitled "The Reagan White House". Viewing time for the film runs 42:36 minutes. We are really very pleased with the way it has turned out, thanks in large part to the splendid cooperation you and others on the President's staff gave to our television people.

What you will see on this tape is what we will be sending to our posts around the world, with two exceptions: Since you were not in the White House at the time of filming this segment, we will be adding footage of you to that of Ed Meese and Jim Baker at the very start of the tape so that we will have all three of the closest advisers together up front; and we will excise a shot of a waiter serving breakfast to you three. Beyond that, we have only to add subtitles in major foreign languages and this tape is ready for distribution. I would appreciate your speedy review of the VTR so that we can get it into distribution.

I hope you will agree that this is such a solid, attractive look at the way the President's top team works that it deserves a premiere showing to some people around town who are eager to be helpful to us. Perhaps you can give us a few ideas for such a premiere.

Best wishes.

Dear Mike:

Thought you might like to see the Union story on Elizabeth Dole. She did a good job and fielded some tough questions in great shape.

We saw Mary Lou at the Comstock Club and she said that you had the flu. With all the problems you have back there would think the flu might be something you did not need. Hope you have fully recovered and that you did not try to return to work too soon.

We have been going to too many funerals lately. Tim Kennedy's was a real sad one and I really felt sorry for Tony. Sister, mother and brother within the year leaves Tony as the last of the Kennedy family and he was really hurting. Just got word too that Bea Hendren passed away this morning so there will be another funeral this week.

To brighten this up a bit--did you hear about the snake that had been blind for a number of years? He heard of a doc that performed the implant operation so went in for one. It was highly successful and he came out with 20/20 vision. He told a friend how great it was to be able to see after all of those years but said it was one helluva shock to find out that for the last three years he had been shackled up with a piece of garden hose.

Was with Ric Friday night and yesterday morning at the Blackjack duck club. He is in good shape but on rather a strict diet. We didn't have much luck with ducks but it was a great outing and we had a good time.

I don't have to tell you that our Senate race is a shambles and that the Demos really gave it to us on reapportionment. Do hope the referendum can prevail and that we can get a more reasonable plan. Curb seems determined to bust his pick but the Duke is a good candidate so maybe we can salvage something.

I think you are doing great back there. With few exceptions people I have talked to strongly support the President. Sincerely hope you can win the AWACS fight. Keep up your good work but take care of yourself too.

Gerry joins in sending our best to you and Caroline.

Sincerely,

Ewing

Dear Mr. Stage:

Thank you for your recent letter. It was good of you to take the time to write. I know that the President will be as pleased as I was to hear of your support for his foreign policy and defense program.

The sale of AWACS to Saudi Arabia forms an essential component of the President's comprehensive strategy in the Middle East. Profound changes have occurred in this region over the past several years. Since 1978, the world has witnessed the upheaval in Iran, the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, and the spread of Soviet influence to the Horn of Africa and to the southern periphery of the Arabian Peninsula. The outbreak of war between Iraq and Iran precipitated the use of air power to destroy vital petroleum facilities. The President believes that the sale of AWACS to Saudi Arabia will provide a vital link in the security of this troubled region.

I appreciate having the opportunity to review your comments and proposals concerning the situation in the Middle East and other national security problems. You can be sure that your suggestions will be brought to the attention of the appropriate members of this Administration for further consideration.

Dear Mr. Kennedy:

Thank you for your recent letter. I appreciate the time you have taken to write.

As I am sure you are aware, the process of reducing Federal expenditures entails far more than simply meeting projected future outlays. A careful review must be made of all current programs, assessing the propriety and effectiveness of Federal activity in any given area. I know that the President is as grateful as I am for the support which the Fireman's Fund has lent to our efforts in the past. Public support is vital to the success of the President's most recently proposed budget reductions. The support which your organization has provided for these recent reductions forms an important contribution to the President's plan to revitalize our economy.

No matter how important, reductions in Federal programs and agencies cannot be undertaken lightly. You can be sure that any action which would affect the funding of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms Arson Task Force will be taken only after the most thorough and searching review.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

Re: Committee of Publicly Owned Companies

Dear Mike:

First, I wish to express our deepest appreciation for you taking time out of your very busy schedule last Friday to meet with me and Jim O'Neill, the executive director of the Committee of Publicly Owned Companies (COPOC). Their officers already know of it.

Second, you indicated your willingness to help call broader attention within the Administration to the support of the President's tax, budget and regulatory initiatives by this Wall Street based trade association, mentioning specifically setting up a meeting with Murray Weidenbaum, a general willingness and specific meeting which are also appreciated.

Third, you mentioned that we should let you know as soon as the date for the December meeting of COPOC's board of directors in Washington was set. We will set the date (expressed as alternatives) by the end of this week, and I will get in touch with you about the alternatives, in that we see this as a way of tying in the second and third point, that is, having Chairman Weidenbaum meet with that board, as Secretary Regan did earlier this year. Your help on this would be very much appreciated, and I am sure that Dr. Weidenbaum would benefit from the exchange of ideas, especially the emphases the board members may place on certain programs and policies. I will, therefore, be back to you with these dates, in order that Dr. Weidenbaum can determine which is best on his calendar.

Again, we are particularly appreciate of your time and coordination of this, and we continue to believe it will be mutually advantageous.

Best regards,

Randal C. Teague

EQUITY CAPITAL DEPLOYMENT

The Committee of Publicly Owned Companies (COPOC) is a nationwide association of 700 chief executive officers focusing on measures to stimulate capital formation, trim overregulation and increase exports. Founded in 1973, COPOC is headquartered in the Wall Street district of New York City. The organization is governed by a fifteen-person board of directors, all chief executive officers of their respective corporations, and is represented in the Nation's capital by Vorys Sater Seymour & Pease.

In support of its legislative and regulatory objectives, COPOC relies heavily on the grassroots lobbying capabilities of its 700 members, as well as on allies in the media, the financial community and business and investor groups. For example, all these resources were employed when COPOC took the lead in persuading the U. S. Department of Labor to issue a regulation clarifying the ERISA "Prudent Man" Rule in order that pension investments need not be largely confined to blue chip and fixed-income securities. (Other recent COPOC program highlights are attached.)

COPOC members have vigorously supported the Administration's economic program: reduced Federal spending, taxes and regulation. COPOC members appreciate that this program must be given ample time to pay off fully in terms of renewed economic growth.

COPOC corporations are mostly mid-sized, i.e., $30 million to $500 million in annual sales. Most are in growth sectors. With adequate financing, particularly equity, they are positioned to provide more growth, jobs and innovation than most other companies.

Many COPOC-profile companies are in a bind today. Depressed stock prices, high interest rates, unfavorable debt-equity ratios and insufficient retained earnings make capital investment especially difficult for mid-sized growth companies. As a result, more effort goes into fending off takeover threats than in planning for future growth.

The recent Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 will encourage Americans to save more. Other measures, COPOC believes, may become necessary to ensure that these additional savings are deployed to provide our Nation's growth sector with the necessary equity capital to finance their futures. That is to say, investment incentives, targeted to provide maximum equity capital deployment at a minimal cost, may be needed to complement the blanket stimulation provided by the tax bill.

Conclusions

COPOC would like to be able to reassure its members that (1) their continued support of the Administration's economic program is appreciated; (2) the Administration is mindful that many growth-type corporations are experiencing severe difficulties in raising the necessary equity capital to finance future growth, innovation and new jobs; and (3) these concerns will be addresses by the Administration at the proper time.

The Committee of Publicly Owned Companies
1979-81 Program Highlights

MARCH 1981

The SEC is forming an Advisory Committee on Communications with Beneficial Owners to recommend procedures for permitting issuers to identify the beneficial owners of stock held in street or other nominee name. COPOC has repeatedly campaigned for a revision of the proxy rules that would enable issuers, upon request, to obtain the names and addresses of consenting beneficial owners.

NOVEMBER 1980

The Schulze Bill, introduced at the suggestion of COPOC, gained over 100 bipartisan House cosponsors as well as the support of various business and investor groups. The bill, modeled on a very successful French law, would provide a tax credit of 10%, up to $1,000 to individual taxpayers or $2,000 to married couples, for new investments in securities of domestic corporations. The Senate version was introduced by Senator Bennett Johnston.

SEPTEMBER 1980

The Senate unanimously approved legislation that would permit the establishment of export trading companies to enable corporations of all sizes to have access, under one roof, to the necessary financial, technical, legal, marketing, informational and research services to expand overseas markets. COPOC serves in a coalition of corporations, business groups and labor unions working together to mobilize support for this legislation.

MAY 1980

The SEC withdrew its proposal to require publicly held corporations to include a management statement on the adequacy of internal accounting controls, verified by an independent auditor, in reports to shareholders and to the SEC. In urging comment letters opposing this proposal, COPOC stressed the great potential for unjustified legal harassment and excessive accounting costs that would result were this proposal to be implemented.

JANUARY 1980

The SEC issued a new rule permitting corporate issuers to sell up to $2 million of unregistered securities to an unlimited number of "accredited persons," including institutional investors and individuals investing at least $100,000, and up to 35 other non-accredited persons. (COPOC has made frequent suggestions to the SEC for reducing the registration, reporting and recordkeeping burdens of the securities laws.)

DECEMBER 1979

The SEC withdrew its proposal that would have eliminated the traditional right of shareholders to delegate discretionary voting authority to management by signing an unmarked proxy card. In mobilizing opposition to this proposal, COPOC pointed out that it was neither practical nor beneficial to shareowners.

JUNE 1979

COPOC published an informational bulletin to assist corporations interested in establishing Dividend Reinvestment Plans. (Previous COPOC publications related to Corporate Political Action Committees and Employee Stock Ownership Plans.)

JUNE 1979

The Department of Labor issued a regulation clarifying the ERISA "Prudent Man" rule so that pension investments need not be largely confined to blue chip and fixed-income securities. (COPOC's presentation to Congress in October 1976 and meeting with Labor Department officials in May 1977 were the first initiatives by any business group to secure this reform.)

JANUARY 1979

The SEC withdrew its proposal which would have required the labeling in proxy statements of all corporate directors and director-nominees as "management", "independent" or "affiliated nonmanagement", as defined by the SEC. (At COPOC's initiative, this proposal was criticized in a Wall Street Journal editorial and in a letter to the SEC from the chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Securities.)
