Dear Mr. Deaver:

As a long time supporter of CARE, I am deeply concerned about the proposed executive order regarding the Combined Federal Campaign. The executive order would reduce CARE's income from the CFC by half; the changes in the eligibility criteria as proposed could eliminate CARE from the campaign. I am certain that these results were not intended by those who drafted the executive order and ask that it not be signed by the president as presently written. The order as written would not reflect well upon the president, whose philosophy so clearly supports the vital role of private voluntary agencies. For over thirtyfive years, CARE has had the confidence of the american people and has received substantial support from federal employees through the Combined Federal Campaign. Its hard-nosed and businesslike yet compassionate approach to meeting human needs represents some of our country's finest efforts in this direction. Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Yours truly,

George R. Bradley III

Dear Congressmen Dunn and Oxley:

Thank you for your letter inviting me to speak at your seminar on March 31st. However, I'm afraid I simply can't schedule any additional time away from the White House during that period. I do appreciate you inviting me and wish you success with your plans for the program.

I would like to suggest that you contact Miss Judy Pond, White House Speaker's Bureau, to try to arrange for a substitute.

Again, thank you for your kind invitation.

Dear Mr. Deaver:

As freshman congressmen elected with marginal mandates, we both have been targeted by the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee in the 1982 election as vulnerable House members. We were faced with many difficult decisions regarding the President's programs in the first session of this Congress; but from the outset, we both recognized the need to support many of the Administration's proposals. We must have your help if we are to see many of the President's programs come to fruition.

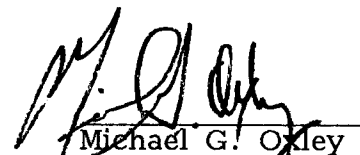

We are extremely sensitive to the concerns and needs of our constituents. Unemployment in the sixth district of Michigan and the fourth district of Ohio is running 9.8 and 15.8 percent respectively, an average of 4.5 points above the national average. Many small businesses and industries are barely surviving or are on the verge of bankruptcy. It is important to note that although many businesses supported the Reagan-Bush ticket in 1980 and saw this administration as a positive change, many now are having second thoughts about Republican ideals and philosophy on free enterprise.

Reinforcing the idea that the economy can and will be turned around in the months ahead, we are co-hosting a Business Day in Washington on March 31, 1982. It would be an honor and privilege for both of us if you would speak at our seminar.

Approximately 200 businessmen and women from both our districts will be flying to Washington to attend this seminar. We would like you to address our group on Wednesday, March 31st at 2:45 to 3:30 pm in room 345 of the Cannon House Office Building. If this time is not convenient or if you should have any questions regarding this request, please do not hesitate to contact either of us or Victoria Looney, the staff member who is coordinating this event at 225-4872.

Dear Mr. Elliott:

Thank you for your recent letter. I appreciate the concern which prompted you to write.

In his State of the Union Address, President Reagan restated his commitment to eliminate the Department of Education as a Cabinet-level agency. As this goal can only be achieved through legislation, the Administration is currently developing a proposal to be submitted to the Congress.

I am grateful to have your comments and suggestions on this matter. You can be sure that they will be brought to the attention of the appropriate members of the Administration.

Mr. Michael K. Deaver,
Asst. to the President,

Dear Mr. Deaver:

In a recent issue of The Wall Street Journal a lengthy article captioned, "Supply Side Sighs -- Business Leaders Grow Skeptical". Here is a striking paragraph, "They are concentrating spending on cost-cutting programs that promise a quick return on their investment rather than big expansions that could pay off several years from now". But what about the corporations who have not been thinking of expansion but simply replacement of machinery, equipment and even whole plants, just in order to be competitive. The current investment tax credit and the new lower depreciation rates are helpful though not much. Current prices being three or four times historic costs, their requirements for funds are staggering. Equity financing and bond financing would severely dilute their capital structure, hence is not conducive to favorable perception of their securities, which consequently could be sold only at unbearable discounts. To encourage replacements, the tax credit would have to be three or four times the present rate, with a carry-forward that would enable the corporation to make use of it in a profitable year. To recapture any possible loss to the U.S. Treasury, the corporation would be obliged to pay out in dividends not less than 60% of net income.

As an avid autograph collector who specializes in the authentic signatures of Presidential Cabinet members and the Presidential Assistants, I would greatly appreciate it if you could affix your authentic signature to the enclosed picture, taken from TIME magazine. And, if it is not too much trouble, if you can get your esteemed colleagues to also autograph the picture, it would be a fine addition to my collection.

I do realize that your free time is scarce, but I do not mind waiting for your response. I only ask that the signatures be authentic and not machine printed. Thank you very much for your consideration regarding this request.

Dear Mike:

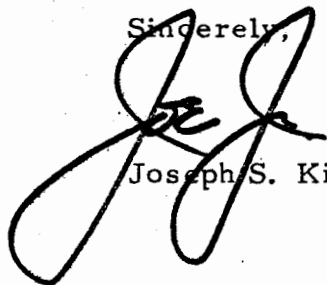

Iowa was the ideal choice of President Reagan for a direct Presidential briefing of his new decentralized entitlement programs.

When in the heartland of rural America, I feel it would be a great mistake if some time was not allowed for the President to visit with a group of farmers. Hopefully he would be accompanied by his Secretary of Agriculture.

I feel as strongly about this as I did about Sears not supporting campaigning in Iowa prior to our last caucus.

Best wishes for a successful trip. Remember the Des Moines Register will be out to "Kahl" your mission!

I had the honor of meeting Mother Teresa at Notre Dame several years ago during her first visit to the United States. I had wanted to write to her since but never obtained an address. I would like to write and make a contribution.

I am therefore writing to you with the hopes of obtaining a mailing address. Even the mailing address of her Order would be helpful.

Your assistance in this matter will be greatly appreciated.

Dear Mr. Deaver:

I ask you to read and ponder a message that I bring to you from the members of Financial Executives Institute, 12,000 top financial officers of 6,000 American business organizations, large and small. Their task day in, day out, is to help make our economic system work.

The message is this: Government, give us a chance to prove that the economic recovery program now in place, plus individual initiative and perseverance, will indeed "get this country going again."

To refresh your understanding of the dynamics of the economic program, I enclose a book entitled The Effects of Tax Policy on Capital Formation and a pamphlet entitled Pointing Taxes Toward Greater Productivity and Less Inflation.

I ask you to read the book, the principal author of which is the present Under Secretary of the Treasury for Tax and Economic Affairs. If you do nothing else, read the Preface and the Summary and Conclusions, beginning at page 179. Then note how closely the tax policies incorporated in the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981, passed by this Congress, are aligned with the conclusions of this study, done in 1977.

The study done by Dr. Ture and Mr. Sanden, which was the basis for this book, defined the nature and extent of the capital formation problem facing the United States in the decade of the 1980s and recommended tax changes to meet the savings requirements necessary to produce the needed capital. As pointed out in the study, because of the disincentives in the Internal Revenue Code prior to enactment of the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981, a real and increasing capital shortage has existed and has been inhibiting the growth of the American economy.

Mr. Michael K. Deaver

February 16, 1982

Obviously, the tax changes recommended in the study, and now enacted into law, will only become effective in solving this economic problem over a relatively long time frame. We in Financial Executives Institute have been urging such a solution since 1973, as indicated by the enclosed pamphlet which we issued in 1979.

Although it is true that capital spending in various industries is temporarily stalled because of the recession, the improved capital formation provisions under the new tax law will contribute to a sustained growth in the economy as we come out of the recession. These improvements will also provide the means for keeping inflation at or near the greatly lowered rates which have been experienced over the last few months.

We concur in President Reagan's decision not to tamper with the tax provisions enacted in 1981 and to allow the present program a chance to work. Let's not digress from efforts to meet the ultimate goal because of political expedience. Let's keep in mind that more than two decades trying to solve immediate economic problems by applying "bandaid" solutions has brought us to the predicament from which we are now trying to extricate ourselves.

The future well-being of the United States rides on courageous and determined support for these economic and fiscal policies.

Sincerely,

R.W. Moore
