Dear Mr. and Mrs. Ambrosino:

The President was so touched by your letter and your gift that he showed them to me. I, too, was moved. It really means a lot to those of us who help the President to know that there are people such as yourselves across the country who are so supportive.

Thank you also for your kind offer to help the President's re-election campaign. Every day I become more confident that the President will seek re-election.

I'm sure that your enthusiasm and creativity will be a big boost to the President's chances in New York.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Carlson:

Thank you for sending me your gender gap action plan and the issue of Argus with Jennifer Dunn on the front page. I read them both with considerable interest.

Of the ten points in your action plan, I think perhaps the single most important point is #10-- "Women Role Models." An individual woman in the state that people can focus on helps "personify" positive images of the GOP in the public mind.

It seems to me that in Washington State you already have one excellent role model in your State Chair, Jennifer B. Dunn.

Keep up the good work!

I thought you might enjoy this article on Jennifer Dunn's work to attract more support from women.

We believe we can widen the Party's appeal to women by illustrating, in an upbeat, personal, and positive way, how Republican principles can be applied toward improving their quality of life.

Any thoughts you have on this important political issue would be welcome. Thank you.

Dear Mr. President:

Just a brief note to let you know that Mel Bradley did a fantastic job last weekend speaking before the Regional Conference of the National Black Republican Council in New York.

Mel's remarks were right on target. He was interrupted several times with applause and "amens" and received a standing ovation. Mel's message must be taken throughout the nation to a variety of black (and hispanic) groups. They are willing to listen if the message is framed in the right context -- as was Mel's speech.

This is the kind of effort that we can use to neutralize much of the attack/criticism in the media by certain "spokespersons" who claim to represent the views of all blacks, hispanics or women when they really do not. There is a large group of people in all of these population categories who are willing to listen. Tell Mel to keep up the good work.

Sincerely,

Clarence V. McKee
