WASHINGTON

September 7, 1983

Dear Mr. Blosser:

Thank for your recent letter with the attached information on Sokol Blosser Winery. I will keep your award winning wines in mind when there is a need to select more fine wines to serve at the White House.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue
Washington D.C.

Dear Mr. Deaver:

It has been brought to my attention that the selection of the White House wines rests with you and that your selection is limited to U.S. wines. May I suggest that you consider the Northwestern wines when making your selection?

Sokol Blosser is the largest winery in Oregon and our wines have made impressive showings at wine tastings both here and abroad. Additionally, it has been selected as the house wine at the prestigious Benson Hotel in Portland. Enclosed you will find a list of the medals Sokol Blosser wines have won.

It is also my understanding that the Presidential favorites are full-bodied, red wines and that our First Lady prefers light, white wines. Therefore, I am sending you for your evaluation a bottle of our Pinot Noir and one of our Chardonnay.

As you may well be aware, the laws governing wine labeling are much stricter in Oregon than elsewhere in the U.S., and our climate is much like the grape producing regions of France. I hope you will concur that our wines are suitable for White House state banquets. There is a wine list enclosed to familiarize you with the varieties available.

Thank you for taking the time to read my letter, and I do hope you find our wine to your liking.

Most cordially yours,

Bill Blosser
President

The Temperamental Grape

California Falls Short When It Comes to Pinot Noir

By Robert M. Parker Jr.

Special to The Washington Post

CALIFORNIA winemakers, who have had so much success with most major vinifera grapes such as cabernet sauvignon, chardonnay, sauvignon blanc, johannisberg riesling and chenin blanc, continue to fall on their faces when it comes to producing quality pinot noir.

From its beginning in California, pinot noir has had its problems regardless of the skills of the wine-maker, the age of the vines or the location of the vineyard. Because of the outlandish price charged for most French burgundies, the wine press has tended to overstate the case for pinot noir efforts in California in hopes that the consumer would turn to them as alternatives.

The bottom line, however, is that the vast majority of pinot noirs are uninteresting wines that are frequently overblown, with exaggerated smoky components, stemmy, harsh tastes, and jammy, flabby flavors that lack direction and structure. Of course, an occasional pinot noir rides above the tide of mediocrity, such as the 1977 Carneros Creek, 1976 Caymus, 1975 Hoffman Mountain Ranch or the 1976 Martin Ray. However, these wines represent only a small drop in the barrel of pinot noir.

Recently, a number of wine critics have raved about the new pinot noir releases from such small wineries as Calera and Acacia, and many consumers would no doubt expect to taste exquisite wine. Not only are these wines overrated, but they are selling at ridiculous prices of $18 to $23 per bottle. Such prices are no less outrageous than the $125 per bottle for Romanée Conti. For most California pinot noirs, consumers should remember the price is simply not proportional to the quality of the wine.

I recently tasted more than 30 current releases of California pinot noir wine on the market. The following six wines are those wines that I found of merit. Most of these pinot noirs are expensive and available only in small quantities, but all can be found at the local wine shops. The wines are listed in order of my preference.

Santa Cruz Mountain Winery 1978/1979 ($12.95). Full bodied and darkly colored, this well made pinot noir—a blend of the 1978-1979 vintages—has a surprisingly complex bouquet of smoky, fruity scents backed by spicy oak. Full, intense and tannic on the palate, this big wine has a modest kinship to a finely made French chambertin. It is an impressive pinot noir that should be given another two to three years of aging.

Sokol-Blosser 1979 "Red Hills Vineyard" ($8.99-$9.49). If any winery seems to have a vision of what pinot noir is all about and can capture the elusive qualities of this temperamental grape, it is Sokol-Blosser in Oregon. Its pinot noir captures the purity of the fruit, which is not apparent in most Californian pinot noirs. In addition, the wine has an elegant sense of balance, while combining power and authoritative varietal character. The current Sokol-

Blosser that I like is from its Red Hills vineyard; it has lovely, clean fruit that is silky and lush, and it reminds me of a well-made French volnay.

Acacia 1979 Lund Vineyard-($17.59-$17.99). Acacia pinot noirs have received some rather dazzling reviews, but I find the majority of them entirely too exaggerated and stemmy, as well as absurdly priced. If you are willing to shell out the money, the Acacia pinot noir from the Lund Vineyard will prove the most interesting of the Acacia pinot noirs. It is the darkest of the Acacia wines and has the purest bouquet, with ripe, berry-like fruit and subtle oaky, smoky elements. A full bodied-wine, it has a good deal of tannin and acidity, which seems to indicate that two to four years of bottle age will render an even more enjoyable wine. This wine, which is definitely California-style in its bigness and richness, can hardly be compared to a French burgundy, but it is quite interesting.

Calera 1979 Selleck Vineyard-($18-$22). Calera has developed a reputation for producing some of the most interesting pinot noirs from California. Like the Acacia winery, Calera offers three pinot noirs with vineyard designations. The Calera pinot noirs tend to be among the most intense pinot noirs I have tasted from California. They are dark, with plenty of fruit, tannin and acidity. Of the three current offerings from the 1979 vintage, I prefer the wine from the Selleck Vineyard which is dark ruby with plenty of fruit, although its abrasive tannin seems to warrant additional bottle age. The price is absurd, but if you are inclined to taste one of the best California pinot noirs, then you will have to pay the price.

✓ Carneros Creek Winery 1979 Carneros District ($16.95). This wine may not be the same as the wonderful 1977 pinot noir from Carneros Creek, but it is an attractive wine with light to medium ruby color and a moderately intense, stemmy, fruity, slightly smoky aroma reminiscent of a lighter cotes de nuits. This wine has light tannins and medium to full body, making it a pinot noir that should be drunk soon.

✓ Chalone 1979 ($11.95). Chalone is justifiably famous for its chardonnays and pinot blancs. Occasionally, a Chalone pinot noir proves to be quite good. This medium ruby wine seems to be one of the better efforts. There is some good smoky, earthy, ripe fruit in the bouquet, which is followed by a rather full-bodied wine

Dear Mike,

It has been my ~~pleasure and privilege~~ to serve the President for the past ~~two-and-a-half years~~ as Public Affairs Director for the Commerce Department-- my sincere thanks to you for bringing about the opportunity. My thanks, too, for indirectly bringing about the changes that prompt my resignation from the position. ~~Effective September 12, 1983, I am leaving Commerce to spend at least the next several months as full-time mom to Ray's and my new daughter.~~

In leaving the Commerce position, I also become un-Hatched, so please don't hesitate to call on me if I can be of assistance to the President's re-election effort (particularly as you wrestle with the so-called gender gap). You can contact me by telephone at 338-4776 or by mail at 3020 R Street NW #2, Washington, DC 20007. I look forward to seeing you again in the future, but in the ~~meantime my thanks and~~ ~~earnest regards.~~

The President was very impressed by the ad from the Thatcher campaign. He asked me to convey to you his feelings and thank you for sending it to him.

I also think that it is a very effective ad--direct and to the point. I think that you will be seeing ads like this late in our campaign--when print ads are most effective.

THE SUNDAY EXPRESS
5 June 1983

PUTTING A CROSS IN THE LABOUR BOX IS THE SAME AS SIGNING THIS PIECE OF PAPER.

1. I hereby give up the right to choose which school my children go to and agree to abide by any decision made by the State on my behalf.

2. I empower the Labour Party to take Britain out of Europe, even though my job may be one of the 2½ million which depend on Britain's trade with Europe.

3. I am prepared to see the Police Force placed under political control even though it could undermine their capability to keep law and order.

4. I agree that Britain should now abandon the nuclear deterrent which has preserved peace in Europe for nearly forty years. I fully understand that the Russians are ~~not~~ likely to follow suit.

5. I agree to have the value of my savings reduced immediately in accordance with Labour's wishes to devalue the pound.

6. I empower the government to borrow as much money as they wish from other countries and I agree to let my children pay the debt.

7. I fully agree to a massive expansion of nationalisation, whatever the cost to me in higher taxation.

8. I do not mind if I am forced to join a union. I do not expect to vote for the leaders of that union and do not mind if I am not consulted by secret ballot before being told to strike.

9. I sign away the right to buy my own council house.

10. I do not mind paying higher rates.

11. I am prepared to allow my pension and to be used by the government to invest in any scheme that they see fit whether or not this shows a good enough return on my investment.

12. I understand that Labour's plans could mean that prices will double once more, as they did under the last Labour government.

13. I realise that the tax cuts from which I will have benefited under a Conservative government may be withdrawn at once.

14. I waive my right to choose any form of private medicine for my family.

15. I understand that if I sign this now I will not be able to change my mind for at least five years.

SIGNED.

Dear Michael:

During the course of a visit with the Chief Executive Officer of Federated Development Company in Houston, ~~I had the occasion to meet his Administrative Assistant, Stephanie S. Murphy,~~ who informed me that she is a very strong supporter of the President and worked very hard in his campaign during the last election.

Federated Development is the parent company of MCO, which used to be known as McCulloch Oil, and is represented now in Los Angeles by Bill Roberts in their political affairs.

They are a multi-billion dollar organization, and I believe it is worthwhile to be attentive to folks within the company that are strong supporters of our interests.

I would encourage you to forward the enclosed copy of the note she gave me so that we might get an autographed picture of the President sent to her in Houston.

She has indicated a strong willingness to work again next time around. I think it would be worthwhile to cultivate this relationship and see that she has a very active opportunity, either in Texas or nationally, to participate.

I was most impressed with her and believe she has a great deal to contribute to the cause and other things as time goes on.

Trusting you can accommodate me in this manner, I remain

Sincerely yours,
