PARTICIPATION DEVELOPMENT PEACE

1985...International Youth Year proclaimed by the United Nations

In 1979 the United Nations designated 1985 as International Youth Year in order to increase public awareness of the problems and aspirations of youth around the world.

International forums convened to discuss the three themes chosen for the year . . . PARTICIPATION, DEVELOPMENT, PEACE . . . will delve into the search for solutions to these problems. It will encourage active participation by youth everywhere in discussion programmes on subjects of great significance to the future of young people.

Message from the Right Honourable
EDWARD SEAGA
Prime Minister of Jamaica

The people of Jamaica are looking forward to welcoming the many hundreds of democratic young leaders from around the world who will be our guests in April next year when they assemble in Kingston for the International Youth Conference and World Youth Festival of Arts.

There is already considerable enthusiasm here in Jamaica. An international Secretariat team is well at work and contact has already been made with a wide range of democratic youth organizations throughout the world. In addition, the Festival of Arts will be a showcase for young artistes from several countries, as well as internationally acclaimed performing artistes.

Over the years, Jamaica has been host to many international conferences and we all look forward to this significant addition. Young leadership is future leadership. That is why it is essential that the democratic nations of the world combine to discuss the future in a democratic way, leading by example.

All International Youth Conference delegates and Festival artistes may be sure of a very warm Jamaican welcome in April 1985.

The symbol of the International Youth Conference is representative of the unity of participation as well as the individuality of democracy. The dominant colours of the flags from the many countries which will be represented at the Kingston conference are combined to represent peaceful accord and harmony throughout the world. This emblem was designed by the Jamaican artist Evol Graham.

International Youth Conference

KINGSTON, JAMAICA

APRIL 6-9, 1985

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

The aim of the International Youth Conference is to celebrate the International Youth Year by promoting an exchange of ideas leading to the development of lasting bonds of friendship, co-operation and understanding among the young people of the world who share a commitment to democracy.

The participants at the International Youth Conference will discuss the three International Youth Year themes—Participation, Development, Peace. From this reaffirmation of democratic principles and the consideration of their application to the achievement of global Participation, Development, Peace may also emerge specific ideas and institutions to enhance the values of young men and women throughout the world.

who will attend?

The delegates to the International Youth Conference Kingston, Jamaica will hail from scores of countries around the world. It is expected that young men and women from approximately 100 countries will attend.

Invitations will be extended by the Secretariat of the International Youth Conference to non-governmental youth groups throughout the world . . . all of which subscribe to democratic principles and support the values of a free society.

The aim of the International Youth Conference is to bring together these dynamic young people who have common interests spanning the sciences, economics, politics, labour, business and the arts. The members of this international forum represent the future decision makers and leaders of the world.

This Conference represents a historic landmark, as it is the first global meeting of democratic representatives from every region of the world. At the International Youth Conference, young men and women will meet to discuss, at every level, the challenges and opportunities embodied in the IYY themes — Participation, Development, Peace.

jamaica conference centre

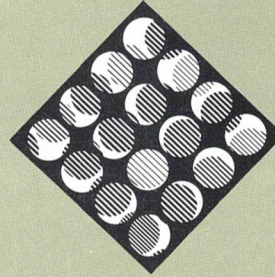

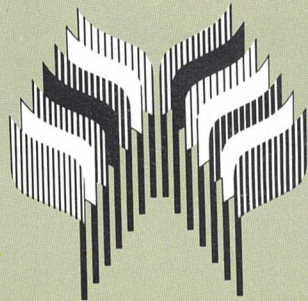

The venue for the International Youth Conference is the Jamaica Conference Centre. Opened in February 1983, it is truly one of the world's most impressive conference facilities, and has served as conference site for many international bodies.

what the future holds

The creation of this international forum in which young individuals can discuss major world questions and problems confronting democracy is important to the world's future.

In the same manner that the world's future is to be determined by its youth, the future of the International Youth Conference will be determined by those who attend and contribute.

To continue the discussions begun at the International Youth Conference, it is hoped that the conference participants will consider future forums and possibly the furthering of global institutions to promote the achievements of Kingston.

KINGSTON: Caribbean Culture Capital

Cradled at the base of the over 7,000-foot high Blue Mountains is Kingston, the Caribbean's cultural capital. The proud possessor of the world's seventh largest natural harbor, Kingston has become a center for commerce and tourism. Because it is the largest English speaking city south of Miami, it is a favorite spot both for vacationers and business people. Strategically situated between North and South America and Europe, many foreign executives come to Kingston for conventions. The city is the hub of Jamaica's commercial activity and government.

Kingston has a quality all its own, as visitors have discovered who return again and again. Here is a truly dynamic cosmopolitan atmosphere set against a backdrop of towering mountains and a peaceful seascape, with air and sea connections to the world.

ATTRACTIONS

The National Gallery of Jamaica and the Institute of Jamaica offer the visitor an exciting view of Jamaican culture, including the most complete collection of intuitive art to be found anywhere. Outstanding museums include the Archaeological, Coin and Note, Maritime and Science. Among Kingston's many theatres is one of the oldest in the Western hemisphere - the Ward Theatre. Hope Gardens, a cornucopia of dazzling color is the Island's foremost botanical garden.

Kingston is the home of the National Stadium, the focus of major national sporting events and cultural spectacles. It also boasts one of the world's most impressive conference facilities - the ultra-modern Jamaica Conference Centre, which opened last year.

Music lovers have their choice of reggae, heard at almost every street corner, or classical performances by the Jamaica Philharmonic Symphony, the National Chorale, and the Jamaica School of Music. The University of the West Indies offers many special events and exhibits. Plays created and staged by Jamaican playwrights can be seen at a number of small theatres in Kingston, throughout the year.

The mountain views of Kingston are spectacular. Within easy driving distance are historic Spanish Town and Port Royal, and many fine beaches, "mist forests," places to picnic, and Caymanas race track.

ACCOMMODATIONS

Kingston offers a broad range of hotels, from grand to modest. The high-rise Jamaica Pegasus and the Wyndham Hotel, important landmarks in the capital city, are located in the heart of the business and entertainment district. The 200-room Hotel Oceana in downtown Kingston is convenient to the cruise ship piers and shopping. The Courtleigh is a mid-sized hotel, and for those who prefer cozier accommodations, there is the intimate Sandhurst Inn.

NIGHT LIFE

Kingston is vibrant at night. For dancing, especially reggae and dance music, there are many discotheques, the most popular of which are Epiphany, the Ritz, the Turn Table, Jankanoo Lounge and Mingles. There are also weekly jazz sessions at the Pegasus.

FOOD/RESTAURANTS

A cosmopolitan city, Kingston offers a variety of top-flight dining experience from traditional Jamaican to Indian, Middle Eastern, Chinese, and international cuisines. For atmosphere, there is the Blue Mountain Inn located on the banks of the Mammee River, and Devon House's Port Royal Grog Shop, with a unique setting in a 100-year old national monument. English pub-like places include the Indies Pub, and the Surrey Tavern at the Pegasus Hotel.
