Dear Sir,

I'm Eddie Crump, age 10 and live in Oxnard Calif. I am a collector of Autograph Pictures & have made this my hobby. I have many famous people in my collection & I would like to know if you would be so kind as to send me a autograph picture of yourself. I would appreciate it very much & would be honored to have you in my collection also.

I hope I don't find you in a busy situation. I wouldn't want to interfere in any way. You are very important to this world and as a younger person thank you for watching over us and doing such a good job - Best of everything to you always

Thank you so much

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Deaver,

I am writing to ask a small favor which means a great deal to me. Will you please send me a personally autographed photograph of yourself for my collection of the most outstanding people in government? I certainly shall appreciate it, and I assure you the size of the photo or snapshot does not matter as long as you personally sign the front of it. This is so the signature will be visible when the photo is framed.

Enclosed are a self-addressed mailing label and return postage. If there is any charge for the photo, let me know the amount and I will be happy to reimburse you.

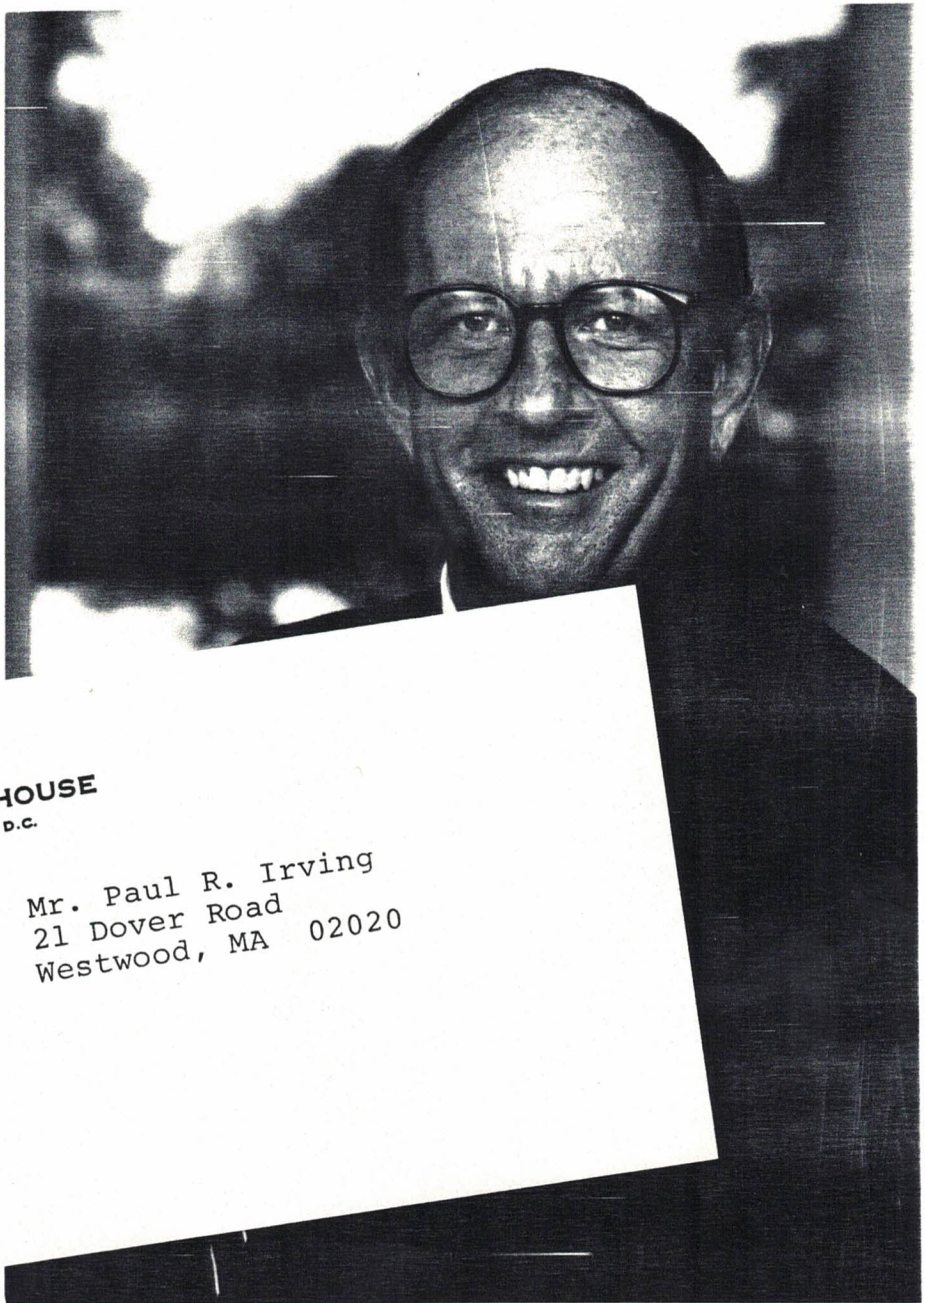

Please accept my warmest personal regards for your good health and happiness, and I sincerely wish you and yours the best of everything in life.

Respectfully yours,
Jim Wiggins

Dear Mr. Deaver,

I have wanted to write to you for some time.
You and the entire Reagan Administration have done a great job.

It is my best wish for you, President Reagan, and the entire administration to do well in 1984, especially November.

It would mean a great deal to me if you could send me your autograph! I know you are a very busy man, so I will wait as long as it takes.

With very best wish and all excuses for my penmanship, I am

Dear Mike:

What a pleasant surprise to read in the recent Carnation that you are a Delta Sig ! I thought there was something special about you and that proved it. Reading about brothers who have achieved national fame and honors is always a pleasure, so I hope you don't mind this short from a 62-yr old Delta Sig from Beta Kappa (Alabama) who is still active on the ACB and in support of the fraternity as a gesture of personal thanks for what the fraternity did for me. I think we are doing better than ever these days and the new Director and staff deserves a lot of credit for their stimulus in getting old and new chapters moving.

I'm also a loyal Ronald Reagan supporter and so thankful for his leadership. We need four more years of him and I truly hope he decides to run again. I wish the President could be told of the confidence so many people have in him, and how we ascribe to his goals and ambitions for our country. It must be an experience working for him and I happily envy your position. You are doing a super job and I wish the very best for you and yours.

YITBOS,

J.D. (Joe) Zasa

PS: Someday when you are getting pictures autographed and it would be no imposition, please think of me. I would be thrilled to have one if possible.

Personal

this week's intriguing INDIVIDUAL

Take an electrical engineer, add a professional accordionist, garnish lightly with a college football referee and you have this week's Intriguing Individual -- Joe Zasa.

Zasa, 43, is a rather new resident of Ann Arbor who directs the marketing activities for the Bendix Systems Division.

He started playing the accordion at an early age in his native New Jersey, was regarded as a child prodigy on the instrument, and, somewhat strangely, had a simultaneous childhood ambition to become an engineer.

He earned his electrical engineering degree at the University of Alabama, where he played varsity baseball for the Crimson Tide, and worked his way through school by playing the accordion.

With a typical capacity for interesting himself in whatever subject is at hand, Zasa learned to speak Japanese while serving in that country for 18 months with the Army. At the same time he established an Army technical training school in which he taught machine shop, welding and drafting to GI's and Japanese civilians. His work brought a personal commendation from Gen. Eisenhower.

While in the Army, Joe's entertainment interests were put to use as a Special Services officer--a job that had him producing musical revues and officiating at athletic events.

*Ann Arbor, Mich.

the local Huron Valley Officials Association.

Prior to college, Zasa played the accordion professionally with Nick Lucas on radio and in nightclubs, appeared as a guest soloist in New York stage revues with such name bands as the Dorsey's and the Benny Goodman quartet and, even today, enjoys "moonlighting" with the accordion just for the fun of it.

After the war, Zasa resumed his engineering career by joining the General Electric Co., in Ft. Wayne, Ind., and, while there, he became a rabid football fan--dyed a deep Yellow and Blue. He recalls coming to Ann Arbor many times to watch Bump Elliott and Bob Hollway play for the Wolverines.

In 1957, he joined Texas Instruments in Dallas, Tex., where, as one of his side interests, he served as a Southwest Conference football official, an activity he hopes to resume with Zasa and his wife, Lucia, their son, Bob, and daughters, Donna and Joanie, live in a new home at 2400 Adare Rd.
