Dear Dave:

Many thanks for all the assistance you and your officers rendered on my trip to Weaverville. I returned to Washington a much wiser man. I feel that most Americans have the same impression of domestic Cannabis as a small scrawny weed that I had. Your violators are growing trees. A large part of my job will be to make people more aware of the magnitude of the problem.

Thank you for the over-flight. I now understand the difficulties your people face in their eradication efforts. The flight was invaluable.

Please thank your people for their help.

Sincerely,

Dear Harvey:

Attached you will find two (2) documents that are pertinent to Ole Miss. If I do say so myself, it should warrant more than the back page of the Oxford Eagle.

I would be happy to give an in depth interview to Debbie at public relations.

Please give my regards to all.

Dear Aubrey:

Thank you for your letter of July 16. It reached me via the Research Institute only a day or two ago.

When the position becomes official and the appropriate release has been approved, I will send you a copy.

One day last week when I was parking my car, a young man handling the parking duties asked me what part of Mississippi I was from. I told him and he related to me that he was a student at the University of Southern Mississippi. I subsequently related to him that I went to school there and had two very good friends there who had done a lot with their lives and that I was still trying. Naturally I told him about you and Shelby. If you tell Porter Fortune this, he will swear I am recruiting for you and not him and he may want to revoke my leave of absence!

Just kidding -- it's nice to hear from home folks and I look forward to getting back down to Mississippi and visiting with everyone and then getting back down to Mississippi and continuing my work.

Your friend,

Carlton E. Turner, Ph.D.
