Dear Dr. Turner:

It is with great pleasure that I invite your participation as a speaker at a Conference Board series of seminars on "Corporations and Substance Abuse: Challenges and Solutions."

The seminars will explore the policy, legal, medical, and cost/benefit aspects of company programs that deal with chemical dependency. We anticipate that our audience will consist of executives who bear responsibility for corporate policy regarding alcohol and drug abuse; a group of nationally recognized experts and corporate specialists will serve as presenters. The series is being organized under the auspices of the Board's Work and Family Information Center, with support from the Syntex Corporation and in meeting facilities provided by host corporations in each of the four seminar locations.

The first seminar will take place on Tuesday, March 27 in New York City, hosted by the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States. The locations, dates and host sites of the three other seminars are: Dallas--April 3--Trammell Crow Company; Chicago--April 10--IC Industries; and San Francisco--May 3--Wells Fargo Bank.

We would be delighted to have you address as many of these seminars as your schedule permits, giving the participants a national perspective on this most important public and corporate issue. Our suggested times are the luncheon session in New York and either the keynote or luncheon session at the others.

I am enclosing a draft outline of the program. Please contact me if you need further information or have any questions.

Sincerely yours,

Alan K. Kaplan
Project Director

The Work and Family Information Center

A Work and Family Information Center has been established at The Conference Board, an independent business research organization. This new service has been funded, in part, by a grant from the Carnegie Corporation of New York.

The Center is designed to meet the information needs of the business community and organizations concerned with changing work and family relationships. It will collect, analyze and disseminate data on personnel policies and practices that are beneficial to workers and their families, innovative employer partnerships with government agencies and/or community groups, major action on relevant legislative and regulatory issues, and trends in family characteristics of the work force.

While the popular concept of addressing work and family concerns conjures up problems that arise in child care, the reconciliation of work and family responsibilities is a much broader issue. More specifically, it is not only a "working parents" issue—it also involves workers, both young and old, without children, who have other types of family concerns. It is not only a "dual career" issue—it concerns working couples at all income levels. It is not only a "women's" issue—it affects workers of both sexes.

Some examples:

- An upwardly mobile, single worker who is responsible for the care of an aging relative
- A middle-aged factory worker, unemployed because of outdated skills, who is confronted with the choice of relocation or retraining in order to replace a critical loss in family income
- An older worker facing the adjustment to retirement and a radical change in lifestyle
- A single parent/executive who must miss an important meeting because a sick child cannot be left at home alone
- A working-parent couple whose combined income does not cover needed child care expenses
- A working couple unable to vacation together because of conflicting work schedules
- A disabled worker who must support a family but cannot commute to a job
- A worker whose concern for a family member with drug problems is causing poor job performance

The Center's information service, meetings and publications will be available to Conference Board Associates, government agencies, social service organizations, educational and research institutions, foundations, other groups involved with work and family issues, and the media.

Thank you for your letter of January 10, 1984 regarding the meeting on the marijuana project. Please accept my apologies for the delayed response.

Dear Carlton:

Thank you for the wonderful reception and generous amount of time you gave the American Lung Association members and me last Friday. They have worked hard to develop a marijuana project that will make a difference and, as always, you had just the right words of encouragement and support for them.

I talked to Buddy Gleaton about Nils Noya. Buddy will put together a specific list of ways in which a foundation such as this one might try to help him.

With great appreciation for all that you do,

Dear Dr. Turner:

On November 3rd I wrote to Mrs. Reagan and congratulated her on the excellent presentation she made on Channel 13 on the subject of drug and alcohol abuse.

We received the enclosed letter from one of Mrs. Reagan's assistants and since we are now hard at work formulating the program, both for the professional and the public areas, for Health Care Expo '85, I was wondering if you would be good enough to let us know if we may expect cooperation in the programming from you.

In the event that the material which originally was sent to Mrs. Reagan was not forwarded to you, I am enclosing a copy of my letter to Mrs. Reagan, her assistant's response and a copy of the brochure explaining the Expos.

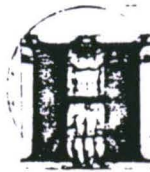

Please be assured that any cooperation which you can extend to us will be much appreciated. Looking forward to hearing from you --

Mrs. Nancy Reagan
The White House

Dear Mrs. Reagan:

My wife and I watched with intense interest your program on Channel 13 last evening. Please accept our sincere congratulations on this excellent and compelling presentation.

At the present time, we are much involved with the development of Health Care Expo '85 which will be held in the new Convention Center in Washington, DC in August 1985 and will be followed by similar educational health care expositions in various parts of the U. S. Our early announcements of these events last spring have brought in several hundred inquiries from science writers, medical and health care organizations and from the health care industries.

The Program Committee has planned some presentations on drug abuse but after viewing your program last evening, I believe a major effort should be made to produce lectures, demonstrations and exhibits to forcefully deal with this dreadful situation.

In Washington, we expect in the neighborhood of 300,000 people to attend the Expo and there will also be intensive review courses for physicians and professional people, so it is expected that several thousand health professionals will also attend. We are planning to use most of the 40 meeting rooms that are available in the Center. Please see attached folder.

While watching your program, it occurred to me that you and some of those responsible for putting together this excellent television presentation would be interested in helping us to present really forceful programs for the Health Care Expos in the areas of drug and alcohol abuse.

Our Program Committee meets monthly and I would indeed appreciate hearing from you regarding this suggestion. With all good wishes --

Sincerely,

Steven K. Herlitz

Dear Eli:

Thank you for your informative letter and congratulations on your research foundation.

As you know, 1984 is an election year and as of now I do not know if I will be at The White House in 1985. Regardless, it would be an honor to give a lecture on President Reagan's drug policy to your institute. Naturally we can work on the details later.

For your information, quotes by President Reagan are enclosed. They give his views on drugs.

My family is well. Anne Marie is 9 and Elizabeth is 5. Yes, I know how you feel. The years go by fast. But look at President Reagan; he is 73 and looks 20 years younger. You and I must try to stay fit and flat.

Dear Dr. Turner;

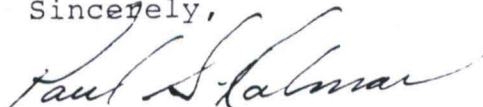

In response to the PBS broadcasts on The Chemical People, we are trying to establish a Task Force in our town of about 3,800 people. Our Task Force is made up of Law Enforcement, Clergy, Mental Health, Alcoholics Anonymous, Doctors, Nurses, School Officials and some concerned parents.

We have tentatively set up three committees, Education, Entertainment Alternatives, and Crisis Intervention. I have volunteered to serve on the Education and Crisis Intervention committees. I need to know where we can obtain a sample of the available literature on education of school age children on the hazards of drug abuse and also literature on Crisis Intervention. We also need to know if this material is available at no charge or if there is a fee involved.

I think that a Task Force of this kind should be an extremely important part of our school curriculum. We must educate our younger school age children! If you could send me a list of addresses where this type of information may be obtained, I would appreciate it.

Thank you in advance for your help and cooperation.

I have enclosed an article on how one school solved its problem. It is also necessary for the local police and the schools to work together with the community in solving its drug abuse problem. Mr. Otto Moulton has been very helpful in this area. I have attached his address for your use.

Dear Mrs. Reagan,

I teach sixth grade at Wilson Elementary School in Ottumwa, Iowa. My class has truly enjoyed participating in, The President's Drug Awareness Program. I feel you are doing a great service to the children of this Nation, sponsoring this type of program. Thank you for your effort and the appropriateness in which you went about communicating the dangers of drug abuse.

We do have a slight problem you could help us with. The program proved so successful that the thirty certificates and comics you sent us were used up fast. Would it be possible to receive an additional thirty comics and certificates.

Thank you again for sponsoring this program and taking the time to read this letter.

Sincerely,

Stan Thompson

Dear Dick:

I enjoyed meeting with you and having the opportunity of exchanging thoughts with you. Your ideas about patient compliance are on target. If you can get Americans to improve compliance by 15%, the program will be a success.

Thank you again for sharing your ideas with me.

Best wishes,

Sincerely,

Dear Carlton:

On behalf of Rich Levy and myself, I want to thank you for your time and interest yesterday. We very much enjoyed meeting you and learning more about your important and far-reaching activities in the drug abuse area.

We at NPC are most grateful for your support of our efforts to address the issue of non-compliance with prescribed drug therapy. As you talk with Mrs. Reagan, if you can assist her in making her decision to speak before our group on November 1, it would, of course, be deeply appreciated.

Once again, thank you for your time and support. We look forward to working with you in the coming months, and I look forward to my tennis match with Vice President Bush.

Kindest regards,

Dear Mark:

Thank you so much for allowing me to meet with your people to discuss the issues at hand. Per our discussions, I will follow-up regarding the O'Donnell and November meetings.

Mark, your concern that the word "drug" is being negatively associated with drug abuse may present an opportunity. Why can we not have medicines? It would take time, but it would also solve the negative association.

We will continue our campaign against drug abuse, but we are also doing our best to distinguish between drugs prescribed by physicians and those acquired as "over the counter" products for specific medical needs. Please do keep in touch.

Best regards,

Sincerely,

Dear Ignacio and Family:

Enclosed are several items, including photos taken in Colombia during July 1983, which may be of interest. A manuscript, "Getting Off the Hook" by Dr. Meg Patterson should appeal to Luz Marina.

Three comic books which have been very successful with our youth are enclosed as is a compilation of quotes by President Reagan. You will find the quotes interesting and they do reflect his opinion and position. The President's drug awareness program is moving rapidly. He is solidly behind our overall efforts to stop drug abuse here and abroad. Of course, the pro-drug groups have labelled me Public Enemy #1.

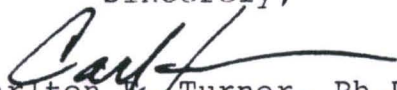

As you know, I have been working with Colombian television teams. It is hard for us to know what, if any, effect these programs are having in Colombia, but we will keep trying to help. Maybe I will even get back to Colombia in 1984.

The cups and Colombian coffee which you gave me have been a big hit. One Colombian delegation was very surprised to get Colombian coffee in Colombian cups. We are grateful.

Independence Day 1983, was an experience. The food and conversation were superb. You are wonderful people. I really look forward to the day I can visit you and bring my family. They need to put the faces and voices with the names and be exposed to your wonderful hospitality and country.

Please give my regards to all my friends in Colombia and forgive me for not writing more frequently. I miss you and think of you often. Best wishes and regards to all.

VOICES FROM ACROSS THE USA/Is suicide among teen-agers a serious problem in the United States?

WILLIAM DIVINE, 39
Real estate consultant
Boston, Mass.

The press exploits the sensationalism of teen suicide, rather than looking at the causes of it. The parents of the child who commits suicide are already internally distraught. The last thing they want is to see it in the newspaper. Suicide shouldn't be sensationalized. Left unexploited, the problem might be lessened.

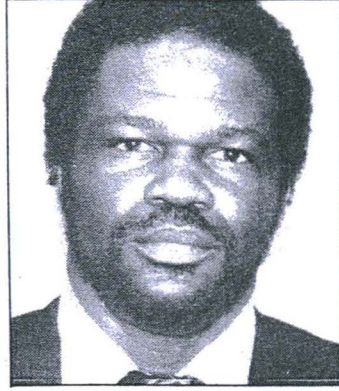

JONI STANDISH, 23
Hair stylist
Elmira, N.Y.

In my grade school, there was a boy who was beaten quite often by his parents. He was poor and very unhappy. He didn't have any friends because he didn't have any clothes, and the kids were cruel to him. He lived on a farm with his parents, and one day he hung himself from a tree. I still think about that.

ANDY WHISLER, 19
Unemployed
Fremont, Ohio

One of my brother's best friends killed himself. He was very close to our family, and his death was hard on everybody. Teen-agers can resolve their problems without going to that final extreme. Nothing can get so bad that you have to end your life. There are warning signs for us to look for, but they can help themselves, too.

ROBERT HAWKINS, 39
Letter carrier
Memphis, Tenn.

I saw a lot of suicide among teens while I was in the service — in Germany and France mostly. Most of them were drug-related. Young kids — kids who wanted to belong. Everybody wants to belong, but kids today just don't know who to belong to or why. If we want to help them, we have to make them use their minds.

BARBARA OSBORNE, 26
Student
Fullerton, Calif.

It's a sad problem. Kids get pushed into drinking and drugs and then don't know where or who to turn to. When I was in high school, I really needed someone to talk to — an adult who would listen and understand. When a teen-ager wants to talk, which isn't always often, there should be someone there to listen.

DICK McDONOUGH, 56
Retired
Tyler, Texas

I've never been close to suicide, but I still realize it's a serious problem. It's hard for me to imagine why a kid, or even an adult for that matter, would want to end their lives. What could be that bad? My son is involved in a local community assistance program, and it's very fulfilling to him. Kids can help each other.

GENE MOHRMANN, 33
Bookkeeper
New Orleans, La.

Lots of teen-agers today have strong, severe family problems. They're marrying earlier than they should, and it's not always because they want to. Closer family ties are the key to solving this problem. Getting the family unit back together will make kids strong again. Kids today are weak and undirected.
