Dear Senator Percy:

Thank you for the letter from you and your colleagues, Senators Thurmond, Cohen, Tower, and Denton, regarding potential acts of domestic terrorism. The concerns you expressed are shared by the President and this Administration which has, for two years, placed counterterrorism high on its agenda.

In response to these shared concerns, I have directed that an Interagency Group commence a review of these matters. As requested in the letter from you and your colleagues, William Strauss, Staff Director of the Senate Subcommittee on Energy, Nuclear Proliferation and Governmental Processes, will be kept apprised of our efforts. We also will keep Senator Denton's Subcommittee on Security and Terrorism of the Judiciary Committee posted as we progress.

The National Security Council Staff point of contact for counterterrorism is Oliver North (395-2000). Your interest and concern in this matter are appreciated.

Sincerely,

William P. Clark

The Honorable William Clark Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs The White House Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. Clark:

Recent events -- such as the bomb/extortion threat at the Gulf petrochemical plant, and the Tylenol killings -- have raised our concern about the vulner-ability of the civilian society to sophisticated terrorist attacks. There is a reasonable likelihood that these attacks will become more frequent and serious in the years ahead.

It is time we directed some of our ablest military and civilian planners to the task of identifying potential problem areas and pursuing remedies in these problem areas. Expertise needs to be tapped to look into a broad range of potential terrorist targets -- energy, water, communications, transportation, food, and public health, for example. Clearly, the Strategic Petroleum Reserve and the Alaska Pipeline should be high on the priority list.

We had considered introducing a Senate resolution requiring study of this issue, but we believe the effort should proceed without a public spotlight. Therefore, we are communicating our concern by letter and asking you to undertake the following:

- Identify the most strategically important potential civilian targets for terrorism in the United States;
- (2) Project what might be the resulting short-term and long-term consequences to the U.S. economy of a successful attack at each potential target;
- (3) Identify what form a terrorist attack on each might take, and what our capacity is to repel it or limit the damage it could cause; and,
- (4) Identify steps which could be taken at each potential target to reduce (a) the risk of attack, (b) the consequence to U.S. society such an attack might cause, or (c) the time and resources required to repair, replace, or bypass any damage.

We ask that any and all working papers or final documents prepared for this inquiry be classified where appropriate, and otherwise held in the strictest confidence.

The Honorable William Clark December 10, 1982 Page 2

We would like to be involved and kept well-informed as you undertake this effort. You might want to use as your point of contact Mr. William A. Strauss, Staff Director of the Senate Subcommittee on Energy, Nuclear Proliferation and Government Processes, of the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

Please report back to us by February 15, 1983, on your progress.

NATIONAL SECURITY DECISION DIRECTIVE NUMBER 30

MANAGING TERRORIST INCIDENTS

The United States is committed, as a matter of national policy, to oppose terrorism domestically and internationally. Efficient and effective management of terrorist incidents is crucial to this commitment. Successful management of terrorist incidents requires a rapid, effective response, immediate access to institutional expertise, and extensive prior planning. Because of these requirements, the management of terrorist incidents of duration will be handled in the following manner:

- (1) Responsibilities. If the gravity of a terrorist incident situation warrants, the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs, at the direction of the Vice President, will convene the Special Situation Group (SSG) to advise the President with respect to decision options on appropriate policies and actions.
- (2) The Lead Agency. The coordination of federal response to terrorist incidents will normally be the responsibility of the Lead Agency. The Lead Agency will be that agency with the most direct operational role in dealing with the particular terrorist incident at hand. It will coordinate all operational aspects of the incident, including press and intelligence. The Lead Agency will normally be:
  - -- The State Department, for international terrorist incidents that take place outside of US territory.
  - -- The Department of Justice for terrorist incidents which take place within US territory. Unless otherwise specified by the Attorney General, the FBI will be the Lead Agency within the Department of Justice for operational response to such incidents.
  - -- The FAA for highjackings within the special jurisdiction of the United States.

DECLASSIFIED

SECRET Austhority LP/LM 2014-004

The Federal Emergency Management Agency will be responsible for planning for and managing the public health aspects of a terrorist incident and recovery from the consequences of such incidents.

SECRET Review on 10 April 1988 The Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs will resolve any uncertainty on the designation of the Lead Agency or on agency responsibilities.

(3) The Terrorist Incident Working Group. To support the Special Situation Group, a Terrorist Incident Working Group (TIWG) will be established. This group will consist of representatives from State, the DCI, DOD, FBI, FEMA and the NSC staff, with augmentation from other agencies, as required. The TIWG will be activated by the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs. It will be chaired by a senior representative from the NSC staff.

SEGRET

The purpose of the TIWG is to provide the SSG with direct operational support, to ensure interagency coordination, and to provide advice and recommendations during an incident. The Lead Agency will continue to manage the incident under the direction and coordination of the TIWG and the SSG.

- (4) The Interdepartmental Group on Terrorism. The Interdepartmental Group on Terrorism (IG/T), chaired by the Department of State, will be responsible for the development of overall US policy on terrorism, including, inter alia, policy directives, organizational issues, legislative initiatives, and interagency training programs.
  - (5) White House Operations Group. The White House Operations Group, chaired by the Director of the White House Military Office, will have responsibility for issues relating to threats or acts of terrorism directed against the President or the Vice President or senior US officials and protectees as directed by the President. The NSC staff will effect liaison between this group and the IG/T and TIWG.
  - (6) The Interagency Intelligence Committee on Terrorism. The Interagency Intelligence Committee on Terrorism, chaired by the DCI, will provide intelligence support to the SSG and the TIWG. It will focus and coordinate interagency intelligence efforts to counter terrorist threats. In anticipation of terrorist incidents, the Committee will concentrate on threat alerts, trend assessments, and required procedural improvements, such as more rapid dissemination of critical information.
  - (7) Planning and Exercises. In order to ensure effective management of terrorism incidents, prior planning and exercise activity are essential. The Interdepartmental Group on Terrorism will be the primary mechanism within the US Government for planning and policy recommendations. To ensure the development of an effective, coordinated interagency exercise program, the Chairman of the IG/T will appoint an Exercise Committee which will coordinate the development of a multi-year exercise program and review all multiple agency counterterrorism exercises. This committee will assure that the government's counterterrorism capabilities are maintained in a high state of readiness and that duplication of exercises is avoided. No multiple agency exercise at the national level may be held without the recommendation of the IG/T and the approval of the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs.

This National Security Decision Directive supersedes all previous inconsistent directives and instructions on managing terrorism incidents.

Ollie North:

I recommend revising your letters to Senators, as indicated on the attached, for three reasons:

 Putting your name in the letter to Senators will attract undue attention to us, and our "limited resources" that you well identify in your cover note to Clark. Our desire is to limit as much as possible Congressional correspondence to Clark.

- We want to appear responsive to the Congress, but not captive to them. A tonal point, but one I consider important.
- 3. We rarely mention NSDD's in letters to the Hill, because we do not want them to request these documents from us.

We have no other problems with the package.
