TALKING POINTS FOR THE PRESIDENT FOR BETTER
HEARING AND SPEECH MONTH VISITORS

--Americans with hearing and speech problems are lucky to have Greg Hill and Nanette Fabray represent them for Better Hearing and Speech Month. Because of the outstanding contributions Nanette has and is making to the needs of the disabled, I was pleased to reappoint her to the National Council on the Handicapped. When Greg gets a little older, I'll appoint him to a government council also.

--Over 22 million Americans have speech or hearing disabilities. There's much that can be done about these problems, and that is why the work Greg, Nanette, the Council for Better Hearing and Speech, and its 23 sponsoring national organizations is so important. Maybe one day one of these organizations will develop a solution to Greg's problem. And it just won't be Greg, but Sally, John, Mary and thousands of others with similar disabilities will be the benefactors.

--I am pleased to help you inform the public about what your group is doing on what yet has to be done.

-- Among the recent advances made to benefit the hearing handicapped, one most closely affects my Administration. Through close captions, or subtitled television, all of my speeches since I took office have been made instantly available to those who cannot hear. I feel proud knowing that, when I address the nation, I can reach all of its citizens.

-- Just as we strive to give the mobility disabled equal access to places, we must do everything in our power to bring equality of information to the hearing impaired. We look to this country's powerful television industry to support the close captioning service and we hope for the day that all programs will be acceptable to hearing impaired citizens. What better time than during Better Hearing and Speech Month.
