MEMORANDUM FOR DAVE FISCHER

FROM: M. B. OGLESBY, JR

SUBJECT: Presidential Meeting Attendance

The following individuals participated in a meeting with the President today at 11:00 a.m. in the Oval Office:

The Vice President Secretary of State George Shultz

Members of the House of Representatives

Congressman Tom Foley (D-Washington) Congressman Dick Cheney (R-Wyoming)

Staff

James Baker William Clark Kenneth M. Duberstein Jack Matlock

MEETING	WITH	HOUSE DEMOCRATIC WHIP TOM FOLEY OF
		WASHINGTON AND REPUBLICAN CONGRESSMAN
		DICK CHENEY OF WYOMING, CHAIRMAN OF THE HOUSE REPUBLICAN POLICY COMMITTEE
DATE: LOCATIO TIME:	ON:	Monday, July 25, 1983 The Oval Office 11:00 a.m. (20 Minutes)
FROM:		Kenneth M. Duberstein Far A.

I. PURPOSE

To provide an opportunity for Tom Foley and Dick Cheney to meet with the President to report on their recent trip to the Soviet Union.

II. BACKGROUND

Congressmen Foley and Cheney recently headed a bipartisan group of twenty conservative, moderate and liberal Members of the House of Representatives who traveled to the Soviet Union to meet with leaders of the Soviet Supreme.

Dick Cheney has stated that, during many of their meetings, the Soviet leaders focused discussion on the issue of U.S. deployment of intermediate-range missiles in Europe as it relates to arms control. Other topics discussed include Central America and human rights.

Both Members were active in support of procurement funds for the Peacekeeper missile. Congressman Foley was under extreme pressure from anti-MX Democrats to change the position he took in May in support of the resolution of approval for the release of basing funds. As the only official member of the Democratic leadership to support MX this past Wednesday, Foley provided sanctuary for several other Members of his party who were also under pressure to oppose MX.

Congressman Cheney gave an eloquent statement to conclude debate on MX for the Republicans.

This meeting will allow the President to personally talk with Tom Foley and Dick Cheney about their trip and learn their impressions (which will be of great importance to their colleagues in the House) of the attitude of the Soviet leadership as we pursue an arms control agreement.

TOPICS OF DISCUSSION FOR MEETING WITH CONGRESSMEN TOM FOLEY AND DICK CHENEY

- -- Thank Tom and Dick for their great help in winning the vote on MX procurement.
- -- The outcome of the House MX vote on Wednesday provides continuing inducement to the Soviets to negotiate seriously and with maximum flexibility on strategic and intermediate nuclear forces.
- -- I am interested in hearing the results of your discussions on various issues with members of the Soviet Supreme.

FROM:	Craig L. Fuller

I. PURPOSE

Berthe Star Bart

To present awards to the 1983 winners, Alvaro Ugalde and Mario Andres Boza, who have established Costa Rica as the center for environmental protection in Central America.

II. BACKGROUND

A nonprofit organization, World Wildlife Fund - U.S., is the largest source in the U.S. of private funds for international wildlife conservation. WWF essentially acts as a catalyst for conservation, supporting projects both in the U.S. and abroad. Russell Train, the first chairman of CEQ and former Administrator of EPA, serves as president.

In 1974 the late J. Paul Getty donated $50,000 for a wildlife conservation prize, patterned after the Nobel Peace Prize, to focus attention on conservation as a world priority. Since its inception, the J. Paul Getty Wildlife Conservation Prize, the largest award in the world given specifically for outstanding achievement or service for the benefit of mankind in the conservation of wildlife, has heightened global awareness of our endangered environment. The prize is now funded by Getty's son, Gordon, and remains the only one of its kind in the field of wildlife and conservation.

The prize winners for 1983 are Alvaro Ugalde, Director, National Park Service of Costa Rica, and Mario Andres Boza, Costa Rica's first Park Service Director. These two men have helped to establish Costa Rica as the center for environmental protection in Central America. The system of National Parks undertaken in Costa Rica is a model for the Americas, and this well-known fact has been the pride of that country and its Presidents for the past ten years.

V. SEQUENCE OF EVENTS

You will make remarks and present certificates to Alvaro Ugalde and Mario Andres Boza.

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: PRESENTATION OF WORLD WILDLIFE FUND AWARDS MONDAY, JULY 25, 1983

First let me welcome you all to the White House. I don't need to welcome Russell Train of the World Wildlife Fund. Russell's more at home here than I am. He's served in two Administrations. This is my first. I'm pleased we have representatives of other conservation groups here today as well. You know some people have mistakenly said I don't have much understanding of conservation issues. That's silly. Living here fenced in as we are is not much different from living on a game preserve.

But let me say how proud I am to present the J. Paul Getty Wildlife Conservation Prize. This is the largest award given specifically for outstanding service to wildlife conservation. This honor is so distinguished it has often been likened to a Nobel Prize for conservation. $\frac{0}{9}$

And our award winners today deserve that distinction. Alvaro Ugalde [al-VA-ro oo-GAHL-day], director of the National Park Service of Costa Rica, and Mario Boza [BO-zuh], Costa Rica's first park service director, have contributed greatly to building their country's park system. You gentlemen have my warmest congratulations.

You have a genuine treasure to protect. Someone told me that Costa Rica's wildlife includes more than 850 bird species, 205 mammals, 150 amphibians, 210 reptiles, and 700 species of butterflies. Washington can't boast that kind of wildlife, although we do have 535 Members of Congress.

But I'm always using Costa Rica as a positive example for Central America. Yet it's more than that; Costa Rica is a positive example for the entire world -- a model of democracy and political stability that all nations would do well to emulate. Costa Rica's strength flows from the fact that the people choose their own leadership. Every 4 years Costa Ricans exercise their most important civic duty -- their rights at the ballot box. This is what we wish for Costa Rica's neighbors and for all nations.

This is why we're helping countries in Central America defend themselves against those that would see them under the authoritarian rule of communism. Now I didn't mean to deviate from honoring our guests today, but their nation exemplifies what democracy is all about. It's no surprise that Costa Rica, throughout several political administrations, has demonstrated great leadership in the conservation and wise management of natural resources.

I'm especially pleased that the strong conservation leadership demonstrated by Costa Rica has earned the continuing support of private, voluntary organizations in the U.S., such as the World Wildlife Fund, the Nature Conservancy, and the New York Zoological Society. I could talk to you all morning about the role private initiative can play in solving so many of the problems that face us. And I think the World Wildlife Fund-U.S. embodies to the fullest what the private sector can accomplish.

I want to recognize its sponsorship of the prize we're handing out today.

So again, congratulations to our award winners for their fine public service not only to Costa Rica, but to all of us who place importance on wildlife conservation, and thank you all for coming.

LUNCHEON WITH SENATOR HOWARD BAKER AND CONGRESSMAN BOB MICHEL

DATE: LOCATION: TIME: Monday, July 25, 1983 The Oval Office 12 Noon

FROM:

Kenneth M. Duberstein

I. PURPOSE

To assess the upcoming legislative agenda with Senate Majority Leader and House Minority Leader.

II. BACKGROUND

This meeting, in a relaxed atmosphere, provides an opportunity to review the legislative calendar for the two weeks until the August congressional recess and to get the assessment of the top GOP leadership on how they see events unfolding on the Hill during the remainder of this session of the Congress.

There are several pieces of major legislation to be considered between now and the August recess. The House approved production of the MX and the Senate -after a two week delay caused by the filibuster of Gary Hart -- will vote on it on Tuesday evening. The House is scheduled to consider IMF this week -- the Senate has already adopted it -- and we are in a very uphill battle to convince Republicans to support the IMF authorization. The House also will consider this week the Boland/Zablocki amendment which cuts off covert aid in Nicaragua -- we are working to develop a bipartisan alternative to avoid this misguided legislation.

In addition, before recess, the Senate and House will consider the conference reports on the FY83 Supplemental and on the repeal of withholding of interest and dividends (CBI is included).

Finally, we are trying to get Senate consideration of Radio Marti an Senate Judiciary Committee consideration of our Civil Rights Commission nominees prior to recess.

TALKING POINTS

- Good opportunity to review how our team is doing on the Hill and what the legislative outlook is before recess and for the remainder of this session -- any chance you'll adjourn by Thanksgiving?
- -- Feeling very upbeat -- recovery is doing extremely well. Encouraged by second quarter GNP figure, 8.7%, the C.P.I., housing starts, retail sales and initial claims for unemployment lowest in two years. Firm signs of a strong recovery.
- -- On Central America, hope the Kissinger Commission will help develop a much-needed bipartisan consensus in the Congress. Need to address short term and long range programs. In the meantime, important for Congress to give us the funding we've requested for the area and for the House to block passage of Boland/Zablocki.
- On arms control, some initial signs of progress in Geneva. House approval of MX production -- good work, Bob -- sends the right signal to the Soviets. Hope Senate will follow suit on Tuesday.
- -- On IMF, assure Bob we'll be going all-out to win authorization on the House floor this week. Crucial that this be passed.

- -- On Civil Rights Commission, hope Howard can work with Strom Thurmond to get our nominees reported as soon as possible. The are all highly qualified and deserve confirmation.
- -- Finally, as we look to the fall, want to restate my opposition to revenue increase in FY 1984 or 1985. Continue to support my standby tax proposal for FY86 but remember, contingent, in part, on getting spending cuts in the magnitude I requested in January.
- -- Now, I'd like to get your thoughts and assessments.
