MEMORANDUM

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

May 19, 1981

TO: Jennifer Fitzgerald

FROM: Elizabeth Dole

The National Tax Limitation Committee (NTLC) will be having a briefing on Thursday, May 21, between 3:15 and 4:15 in Room 450 by Bob Carleson, Special Assistant to the President for Policy Development.

This committee has been very active in support of the President's economic package. They are generating much grassroots support and will be in Washington this week to continue their work on behalf of the economic package.

Attached is a detailed description of NTLC's present and future activities and a copy of a letter describing the NTLC conference this week.

Admiral Garrick has agreed to stop by to greet them and thank them for their help and support. It would be the highlight of their trip for the Vice President to stop by either at 3:15 or at 4:10 and express his appreciation for their tireless efforts on behalf of the President's programs.

Since this date is so close will you please contact Maiselle Shortley (x 2657) in Morton Blackwell's office when you have a response or for further details.

NATIONAL TAX LIMITATION COMMITTEE

LEWIS UHLER

Organizing a number of "Citizen's Steering Committees," particularly in districts of members of the House Rules Committee or House Ways and Means Committee. These Committees will involve community leaders and elected officials in putting heat on Members of the Congress to support the economic package.

The core of these groups will often be local activists who have led previous tax limitation battles, either before state legislatures or in statewide referenda.

Groups are already in place in Washington, Oregon, Texas, and Michigan.

They have committed $350,000 in the next several months to be spent on mailings and organizational activities in behalf of the package.

One interesting element of their plan is to obtain from the Federal Election Commission the names and addresses of all the contributors of $100 or more to each of the targeted House members. Then NTLC will contact these contributors, urging them to use their best efforts to convince those who received their contributions to support the President's economic package.

Conservatives Angrily Debate Party Chairman

GOP 'Peace Mission' Becomes Stormy

By Bill Peterson

Washington Post Staff Writer

A meeting called to smooth relations between Republican National Chairman Richard Richards and New Right conservatives yesterday erupted into an angry debate over the role of independent campaign expenditures by conservative groups.

The debate, according to several participants, pitted Richards, who has been highly critical of the groups, against a who's-who of the leadership of the New Right, including Terry Dolan, chairman of the National Conservative Political Action Committee, direct mail expert Richard A. Viguerie and Paul M. Weyrich, chairman of the Committee for Survival of a Free Congress.

The two-hour breakfast was officially off the record and key New Right participants refused to comment on it. "We all had an opportunity state our respective positions," Richards said in a prepared statement. "We will attempt to formulate an agreement as to our respective positions, including how we will disagree, if at all, in the future."

Richards apparently understated the acrimony of the meeting. "There were some very strong comments made about whether money raised by political action committees should be channeled through one committee," one participant said.

Dolan reportedly was particularly adamant about defending the right of his NCPAC to undertake independent campaigns against liberal Democrats like Sens. Paul S. Sarbanes of Maryland and Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

"As they say in diplomatic circles, it was a frank and open discussion," another participant said. "Although there may have been some fiery words, nobody swung a punch. Everyone there understood Dick Richards is head of the Republican National Committee, not the conservative national committee. Most of us consider ourselves conservatives first, and Republicans second."

White House political adviser Lyn Nofziger initiated the meeting between Richards and more than 20 New Right leaders after the national GOP chairman last month said independent groups, like NCPAC, "create all kinds of mischief" and have the potential of "damaging" President Reagan.

Although his remarks sparked a public disagreement with Nofziger, Richards has refused to retreat. In a meeting with Washington Post editors and reporters Monday, the chairman said, "My quarrel is that independent expenditure groups butt in on the strategy of a campaign."

Richards conceded they may "soften up opponents early in a campaign," but he added, "The problem is they stay too long, they say the wrong things and ultimately they may be counterproductive."

Among others at yesterday's meeting at the Capitol Hill Club were Howard J. Phillips, of the Conservative Caucus; Thomas Ellis, of Sen. Jesse A. Helms' North Carolina-based Congressional Club; Phyllis Schlafly of Eagle Forum; Ronald Godwin, of Moral Majority; Robert C. Heckman of the Fund for a Conservative Majority and Robert Richardson of Gun Owners of America.

The solution to these problems ought to be a joint statement by Dolan and Richards to the effect that they agree that independent expenditures are undesirable but that the election laws restricting personal participation in elections have forced some people to resort to them. Maybe Angelo's committee will come up with some such formula in their report to Richards. I do not expect Richards to agree to such a statement. I think he has a personal animosity now to Dolan.

Regarding Richards' claim that he was being misquoted, Weyrich told me, "I'm interviewed by the press every day. If you are careful, even a hostile press conveys your meaning. If he (Richards) can't handle himself with the press, he should get out of this business."

One of the great ironies in all this is that NCPAC was the biggest contributor to Dick Richards' campaign for RNC chairman four years ago.

In the absence of prompt cooling of this, I suggest that the White House quietly inform Richards to cool it before he breaks up the winning coalition which is now performing so well on the Hill and in election contests.

cc. Lyn Nofziger poll sufficiently to determine how NCPAC affected the Symms-Church race.

Bunker Hunt raised the point that it was not appropriate to criticize the exercise of the constitutional rights of these people. He said PACs can stop candidates from joining to avoid issues.

Richard Viguerie said that the time has passed when conservative leaders feel bound to get permission from Republican Party officials before they take action.

Howard Phillips said that Richards was wrong to suggest that candidates and Party officers were the only ones with rights to speak out on issues.

Richards said that he had no objections to independent expenditures by single issue groups which motivate their special constituencies in ways that the campaigns could not. His objection was targeted to multi-issue PACs.

Richards said that conservative PACs have claimed they elected the President and other candidates. Dolan replied "You have a $35 million budget, but your staff can't find where I ever made such a statement. Because I didn't."

In conversation after the meeting had broken up, Richards told Dolan that the NCPAC campaign against Sen. Sarbanes was designed to get Dolan publicity. (In fact as we knew back in February, Dolan's media campaign regarding Sarbanes was designed to impact on the wavering votes on the President's economic package, giving them a taste of what they might expect if they voted wrong.)

The tenor of the meeting can be summed up in the exchange in which Richards said that independent expenditures were loose cannonballs on the deck of a ship. John Lofton replied that, in light of the fact that Richards was repeatedly attacking the groups who were fighting hardest for the President's economic package, it was Richards who was the loose cannon.

After the meeting, Weyrich, Viguerie, Phillips, and Dolan all pledged to me that they would not respond to press inquiries about the controversy or the meeting. (Dolan agreed to exchange letters with Richards.) I got these post-meeting comments:

Weyrich warned that one more attack from Richards and he would take Richards on as a project. Viguerie said that Richards has done what no other ever has: united the conservative movement. Howard Phillips said that Richards mistakenly believes that conservatives are just a faction of the GOP, forgetting that conservatives are motivated by philosophy. Schlafly asked me to imagine how Richards would have acted if we were a group of blacks whom Richards had offended.

SUMMARY:

This was a meeting of representatives from the major national Indian organizations to discuss my proposed meeting of tribal and corporate leaders to share information about success stories in which corporate and tribal leaders have collaborated to increase job opportunities on reservations.

There was general agreement that the meeting would be either July 12 or July 26. Subsequently, Lo Ann Wagner of Ken Smith's office expressed a preference for July 26

Re: Dick Richards Meeting with Conservative Organization Leaders

Yesterday morning at the Capitol Hill Club, Dick Richards met with a broad cross section of conservative leaders and White House staff. Attendees list attached.

The occasion for the meeting was Dick Richards repeatedly published criticism of conservative PACs, specifically his criticism of independent expenditures by these PACs.

Lyn chaired the meeting.

Richards said his criticism was not personally directed against any PAC or its leaders. He maintained that he opposes the practice of independent expenditures because such activity is not under the control of candidate's campaign managers or of state party chairmen. He denied that he had been quoted correctly and said that he could not be held responsible for media misquotes. He quoted figures from a Dick Wirthlin poll which showed that after the campaign in Idaho, NCPAC had 14% negative and only 10% positive in the view of Idaho voters. He quoted Dick Wirthlin and Sen. Abdnor as saying that negative campaigns were harmful.

Dolan responded, in a lively exchange back and forth, that:

1. The quotes which Richards admitted to were totally uncalled for.
2. Richards' statements did not reflect Wirthlin's views.
3. So what if NCPAC was unpopular in Idaho? Or that polls showed it was a negative campaign? The fact is that there is no indication that Symms was hurt and much documentation that Church was. Moreover, the perception that it was a negative campaign was Church's smear of Symms as a womanizer, etc.
4. Abdnor admits that NCPAC convinced him to enter the race.
5. Later in the meeting, Dolan called Wirthlin, who said that he had not studied the results of his

FROM: MORTON BLACKWELL

SUBJECT: WEEKLY SUMMARY REPORT
Week Ending Saturday, May 23, 1981

RED FLAGS:

Per my memo to EHD report on conservative groups' meeting with Chairman of RNC Dick Richards, the conservative group leaders at that meeting were uniformly disappointed with the slap they felt from RNC Chairman Richards. They had come to the meeting expecting an olive branch. If Chairman Richards renews his verbal assault on conservative independent expenditures, several major conservative organization leaders will surely mount a major effort against Richards. For now ~~most~~ most major leaders have committed to me that they will avoid inquires about this matter. Weyrich has turned away 30 requests for interviews. The media is obviously excited at the prospect of driving a wedge between elements of our winning coalition.

administration did not vigorously take sides either way in the matter of the Helms' amendment incorporated in the Hyde language in the Senate appropriations resolution. If we had tried to bludgeon people in behalf of the Hatfield position, we would have alienated many long time friends while not preventing the vote which our sometimes-friends wanted to avoid.

FROM: MORTON C. BLACKWELL

SUBJECT: WEEKLY SUMMARY REPORT
Week Ending Saturday, May 16, 1981

RED FLAGS:

Leaders of the Pro- Life groups and a broad spectrum of conservative groups are disturbed at reports from Capitol Hill that the administration is cooperating with Sen Hatfield's attempt to avoid a Senate vote on prohibition of federal funding of abortion in the pending budget continuing appropriation resolution.

KUDOS:

A wide spectrum of conservative groups are delighted at Friday's news story that the President will be pleased to support any Congressional decision to abolish the F.E.C.

CHANGES IN ISSUE FORECAST:

If the Administration goes on record as supporting the Hatfield move as outlined above, the Pro-Life leaders will publicly blast the President.
