MEMORANDUM FOR DANIEL ENGLER

FROM: MAX GREEN

SUBJECT: Message for Dr. Willy Perl

Dan, I see that this request came in late and it would be easier not to send a message. However, if you are able to pull it off, I would recommend sending a message.

What I was able to find out about William Perl:

- He set up an operation in the late 1930's and 40's that saved nearly 40,000 Jews.
- He was the moving force behind a boat lift down the Danube into the Mediterranean and into Palestine.
- He served in the US Army from the 1940's on he rose to the rank of Lt. Col. - served in army intelligence, advisor in war crimes trials, became a clinical psycologist here, worked at Walter Reed Medical Center.
- Active in Jewish causes, especially Soviet Jewry movement.
- Founder of CAMERA (publishes informational ads in New Republic, etc., debunking Arab propaganda.

Sen.

Neil Sher, director of OSI at Justice, and Rudy Boschwitz will be speaking at the dinner.

Call me at x6270 if you need further information. Thank you.

Dear Mr. Green:

Pursuant to your telephone conversation with Mr. Gerald Strober, we would very much like to invite you to join with us, again, at our upcoming annual national convention, to be held at Kutsher's Country Club in Monticello, New York, June 11-14.

We would deeply appreciate your asking President Reagan for a proclamation to the convention delegates. This will be our 78th annual convention and the theme, as we pay tribute to our sister organization, Brith Abraham, on its centennial anniversary, is "Decades of Achievement--Challenges for the Future."

Enclosed for your information is some material to refresh your memory about our organization and the work that we do.

Please let us hear from you at your earliest convenience.

Sincerely yours,

Mel Parness

Mr. Jack Lorenz Executive Director Izaak Walton League of America 1701 North Ft. Myer Dr. Arlington, Virginia 22209

Dear Jack:

I am pleased to learn that the Izaak Walton League of America has taken the initiative to respond to President Reagan's 1986 State of the Union message calling on all citizens to help develop a better sense of pride and respect toward our land and natural resources. I applaud the League's plan to hold the first International Conference on Outdoor Ethics this fall.

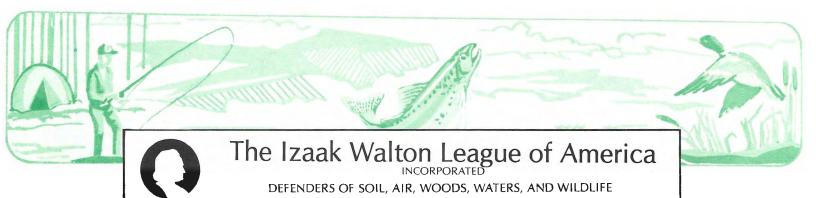

Although most Americans appreciate and wisely use our natural and cultural resources, there are many who still do not share a respect for the land. Many Americans are not aware of their responsibility to care for our public lands and to leave them better for those who follow. There are examples of vandalism in our parks, debris thrown into our oceans and lakes, careless use of cigarettes and campfires that burn thousands of acres of forest each year, and looting of archaeological legacies. Much of the abuse is a result of carelessness, some is intentional —all of it is a crime against Americans.

I am delighted that the League is working with us on the Take Pride in America campaign. We are pleased to have you participating along with the Take Pride in America partners -- 41 States and two U.S. Territories, numerous private sector groups, and nine federal agencies. Our objectives are the same: to instill in citizens a greater awareness of their responsibilities as stewards of the public lands. If we are to pass on to future generations the unimpaired legacy of rivers, lakes, mountains, plains, deserts, and historic sites, every citizen must feel personally responsible for using these lands wisely.

Again, I congratulate the League for its efforts to bring together dedicated citizens to examine our outdoor behavior standards and those of other nations and emerge with an agenda for building a new American outdoor ethic.

Sincerely,

DONALD PAUL HODEL

DRAFT PRESIDENTIAL MESSAGE

I am pleased to have this opportunity to commend the Izaak Walton League of America for its leadership in building a new outdoor ethic for our Nation.

Our wildlife and wild lands are recreational resources that belong to all Americans. Preserving these precious natural gifts is a task too great for Federal, State, and local governments to accomplish alone. Each of us bears a responsibility for conserving and managing our outdoor heritage.

I created the President's Commission on Americans Outdoors to look ahead and predict what kinds of recreational opportunities we will need a generation from now and to identify threats to preserving those resources. The Commission found that there is an increasing lack of respect toward our land, resulting in carelessness and abuse of the outdoor resources we all share. To reverse this trend, it is imperative that we develop an outdoor ethic that will spark in evey American a sense of responsibility for the outdoors and a personal dedication to its stewardship.

I congratulate the Izaak Walton League for responding so promptly to the Commission's findings by taking the initiative to organize the First International Conference on Outdoor Ethics. Your efforts will help bring about a renewed awareness that our magnificent outdoor resources depend upon our commitment to their future. The League's actions are a fine example of the spirit of my Administration's "Take Pride in America" campaign.

Together, we can write a new chapter in shaping outdoor America and protecting it for our citizens--not from them. God bless you.

merica has become a truly urbanized society. Eighty percent of our population now live and work in cities and towns. By the end of the century nearly ninety percent of us will occupy urbanized environments, separated from the natural world and the ethical standards once associated with outdoor pursuits.

With more leisure time and affluence, urban Americans are increasingly seeking outdoor experiences, but many lack a knowledge of and concern for acceptable standards of outdoor behavior. This has resulted in a drastic increase in the overuse and abuse of America's outdoors and is causing deterioration of the outdoor experience for all Americans.

"We must work together for the common good of preserving America's rich outdoor heritage. Every citizen and every community must feel a personal responsibility to the land, its wise use and freedom from abuse. The need for a new outdoor ethic is vital if we are to pass on to future generations the superb outdoor experience we know and enjoy today."

–Jack LorenzExecutive Director

"Many Americans take the outdoors for granted. To change this, it's imperative that an outdoors ethic is developed that will spark in every American a sense of responsibility for the outdoors and a commitment to maintaining the outdoors for the future."

 Presidents' Commission on Americans Outdoors

he Izaak Walton League of America is convening the world's first International Conference on Outdoor Ethics. The world's foremost authorities on outdoor recreation will be invited to address the outdoor ethics problem. Specifically, the conference will:

Assess progress in resolving the "priority outdoor ethics problems" identified by the Izaak

Walton League's 1980 National Conference on Outdoor Ethics;

Review the findings and recommendations resulting from several state conferences on outdoor ethics held between 1980 and 1985;

Evaluate the outdoor ethics initiatives of the Izaak Walton League,

International Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies, state fish and wildlife agencies, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, other non-profit and governmental agencies, and private industry;

Review the outdoor ethics problem in several foreign nations, including Canada, Sweden, Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Australia and New Zealand and exchange information and successful program ideas with their representatives;

Discuss and recommend a program of corrective actions for enhancing ethical behavior in America and other nations.

THE PROGRAM

he International Conference on Outdoor Ethics will be the first major response to the recommendation of the President's Commission on Americans Outdoors calling for a new outdoor ethic in America. The conference is strongly endorsed by Secretary of the Interior, Donald Hodel, as a prime example of citizen action in concert with the Secretary's "Take Pride in America" campaign.

The setting for the conference will be the Lodge of the Four Seasons on the beautiful Lake of the Ozarks, Missouri. Highlights of the conference include:

Sunday, November 8 with a reception and dinner.

Pre- and post-conference activities, if you wish to arrive early or stay over, include superb golf courses, excellent fishing, tennis, horseback excursions, trap shooting, field trips to natural caves and lake canoe trips.

formal sessions will commence on Monday, November 9, and run through Wednesday, November 11. The format will be a workshop environment, providing for informal exchange of ideas and review of individual programs. ■ Distinguished international speakers will share their perspectives and recommendations on the outdoor ethics challenge ■ The final goal of the in their countries. conference is to develop an agenda of specific recommendations for developing permanent outdoor ethics programs throughout the U.S. and participating nations, involving the public and private sectors, grassroots organizations and the mass media. ■ Worldwide distribution of the conference proceedings will help ensure that all recommendations and strategies are given maximum exposure and have the best chance of being carried out.

TED MESSAGE FROM PRESIDENT REAGAN TO BEN-GURION
VIAL FINALE DINNER

My best wishes to all the participants in the David-

Ben-Gurion Centennial Finale Dinner and to the national and international Jewish leaders from three continents who are receiving the coveted Ben-Gurion Centennial Medal, from the State of Israel Bond Organization.

David Ben-Gurion was one of the towering statesmen of our time. In seeking independence, security and peace for the people of Israel, he expressed in action an ancient biblical vision.

The men and women being honored, at the Centennial achievement in shelanting and hair Dinner have, through their pefforts on behalf of their people and the State of Israel; affirmed that vision.

To all of you my congratulations and my very good wishes. God bies you.

Dear Max:

As per our phone conversation and at the suggestion of Malcolm Hoenlein, I am writing to request a message from President Reagan to our International David Ben-Gurion Centennial Finale Dinner on Sunday evening, May 31st, in the Grand Ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York.

I am enclosing a copy of the invitation for the dinner whose Co-Chairmen are Ambassador Walter Annenberg and Jack Weiler of New York.

As you will note, the invitation lists Ambassador Annenberg, Max Fisher, Charles Bronfman and Lester Crown among last year's Ben-Gurion Centennial Medal recipients. And among those being honored at this year's dinner are Jane Sherman, Max Fisher's daughter, and Andrew Tisch of New York, son of Larry Tisch.

I might add that there is no fund-raising of any kind at the dinner itself.

I am also including suggestions which may be helpful in preparing President Reagan's message.

In advance of last year's dinner, more than $100 million in Israel Bond subscriptions were enrolled nationally and internationally. We hope to achieve the same amount of Bond subscriptions again this year prior to the May 31st dinner.

Max Green -2-May 13, 1987 I am sure I need not tell you that a message from President Reagan would be deeply appreciated by the 1986 medalists who will be present, this year's recipients, and the 1,000 Jewish leaders from three continents who are coming to New York to close our observance of the Centenary of David Ben-Gurion, the first Prime Minister of Israel. If you have any questions, I can be reached at the above phone number or at home (212) 222-2227. With our deep appreciation and best regards. Cordially,

SUBJECT: Message request

Attached is a Presidential message request for an event on June 7th. Attached is a draft message, some background information and a previous message.

May 27, 1987

It gives me great pleasure to send greetings to Herman Taube on the occasion of his being honored by the Jewish Community Center's Yiddish of Greater Washington. This public appreciation of his work is well deserved.

The Yiddish language, which you explicate and enhance in your own writings, is a precious legacy of European Jewry, the target population of Hitler's Holocaust. Moreover, you have educated your students and readers on the necessity of democracy, of freedom and liberty, to ensure that a holocaust will happen "never again".

I congratulate you for your personal courage and intergrity, and for your many achievements. Mazel Tov.

Dear Mr. Green:

I am the Administrative Assistant of the Community and Synagogue Divisions of United Jewish Appeal Federation of Greater Washington.

I wish to inform you that Mr. Herman Taube, poet-lecturer will be honored by the Jewish Community Center's Yiddish of Greater Washington and their affiliated organization on Sunday, June 7, 1987 at 7:00 p.m. for his forty years of teaching, writing and activities on behalf of Jewish education and Jewish culture in Maryland.

It would be fitting and appropriate if Mr. Taube would receive a greeting from President Reagan on this special occassion.

The following is a brief summary of his activities:

Mr. Taube is a graduate of American University and has taught Yiddish and Yiddish Literature at University of Maryland, American University, College of Jewish Studies and Midrasha High School. He also lectured on the Holocaust, Soviet Jewry and Yiddish Literature at colleges in the Greater Washington area and has received praise and awards from International Bnai Brith, Jewish War Veterans, Histadrut and Catholic University for "ecumenical efforts among Catholics and Jews in the cause of humanity".

Mr. Taube is one of the founders and member of Montgomery County Ethnic Committee. He served for the past two decades as Director of the Community-Synagogue Division at the UJAF, for which he has received many citations for exceptional service to the Greater Washington Jewish Community. A founder of the organizations of New Americans in Baltimore and Washington and a national leader in the organization of Holocaust Survivors. He stresses in his work of linking the American ideas of freedom and liberty while holding onto Jewish roots and traditions. In his novels, shorts stories and poetry he links the Jewish future to Jewish education to which he has dedicated the past forty years, since his arrival in the United States in April 1947.

Mr. Taube and his wife Susan raised five children and have nine grand-children.

In his literary activities he has done script and speach writing for some great leaders of our generation. Among them the President of the United States. (See copy enclosed.)

Your consideration in this matter will be greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Taube:

Thank you for the copies of Echoes and A Chain of Images which you presented to Dana Rohrabacher for Nancy and me. We very much appreciate sharing in your works of poetry, and the goodwill conveyed in your inscriptions is deeply heartening. It means a great deal to know that we can count on your friendship.

I also want to express my sincere thanks for the generous assistance you have given to the White House Speechwriting Department. Your help with a number of my speeches has been invaluable to me. Again, thank you.

Nancy and I send you our warm best wishes.

Dear Herman.

I was happy to learn that you will be honored at the synagogue on December 11th for your dedicated service to Israel and to the Jewish Community. Gila and I wish to join the chorus of praise and gratitude in your honor and we extend to you and your family our congratulations and best wishes.

The Jewish Community of Greater Washington is indeed blessed by having a person like you working in its behalf. You have especially made a vital contribution in three important ways:

First, you have dedicated your life to keeping alive the memory of "Kedoshim", the Holy Souls who perished during the Holocaust. You have done so by showing us not only the tragedy which befell the victims but also the glory of their accomplishments and heroism. You never allowed us to forget - not Babi Yar, not Crystallnacht, not Vilna, not Galicia, not the poets, the writers, the Hasidic Masters, the Scholars, the children, the shoemakers. Through your writings, lectures, teaching and communal involvement, you have successfully brought their message to us -"Remember, do not forget". Because of you, university students will remember; Midrasha students will remember; U.J.A.F. and Synagogue volunteers will remember. A survivor yourself, your message was always more powerful because in you we could see their strength, their hope, their joy, and their courage. By challenging us always to remember, you have inspired us with a greater sense of responsibility for the future of Israel, our people everywhere, and our world at large. You have challenged us to create a world where a holocaust could never happen again.

Secondly, you have inspired us with your dedication to Israel and the Washington Jewish Community. Writing from Jerusalem, the slogan "Am Yisrael Chai", the Jewish people is alive, creating, building has a new reality to it. On the one hand, there are many serious problems to be solved. On the other hand, this promises to be one of the most important and glorious periods in all of Jewish history. The Third Commonwealth in Jewish History is no longer a dream. It is a reality - a reality which you helped to create and are helping to sustain. All of your speeches, fund-raising activities, organizational involvements and leadership, all of those endless hours on the phone and in parlor meetings, all of those letters and constant 'nudging' have been for two fundamental purposes - to help create a vital, vibrant, living Jewish community in Washington and to help restore and reunite Am Yisrael (The People of Israel) with Eretz Yisrael (The Land of Israel). For your exemplary efforts in these causes, we are grateful.

Finally, Herman, you have inspired us through your personality, your love, and your warmth. Your love of Yiddishkeit, the Yiddish language, and of Jews and Judaism in general has been contagious. Your stories and words of encouragement have uplifted us. Your positive outlook on life, your charisma and your genuine concern for people and for Judaism have given us hope, strength and courage.

Indeed, the Washington Community is blessed with waving you in our midst and Har Tzeon-Agudath Achim is doubly blessed because you are one of our "chaverim".

Mazel Tov to you, to your wife and entire family. May you all be blessed with health and strength to continue your work in your unique way.

With Blessings for Peace from the City of Peace......Jerusalem, 12 Kislev 5745.

Shalom,

RL/kl

BOX INSERT

I first met Herman Taube when at a meeting of the synagogue division of the United Jewish Appeal in Washington six years ago. At the conclusion of a presentation by a lay leader about the campaign, an unimposing gentleman stood up to, as he put it, "speak a few words".

The moment he began to speak, I was transfixed and mesmerized, for his accent and manner of speaking were identical to the cadence and style of my beloved grandmother. The message he delivered was an impassioned plea which reminded us that tzedekah can and has saved Jewish lives, time and time again. He reminded his audience that when homeless Jews after World War II had no place to turn, they were "supported by you, by American Jews who gave them life and hope".

As the Director of the Synagogue Division of the United Jewish Appeal Federation of Washington, Taube reaches Jews throughout the community with his warmth and compassion. He is frequently called upon to give lectures around the country on the Holocaust, and is a recognized expert on the field of Yiddish literature. He has written four novels, four books of poetry, and two books of short stories, as well as writing numerous articles for the Yiddish press. He is truly a national Jewish treasure.

Taube spent WWII as a medic in Russia with the Polish army. He returned to his native Poland in January 1945 with the Polish army and was stationed in Majdanek, a former concentration camp. He notes, "I was never an inmate in one of Hitler's camps, so I do not consider myself a survivor. That word is a badge of honor that belongs to those who survived the ghettoes and the concentration camps. My wife Susan is a survivor. I am not. I am a witness, one of the shaarit hapleita, one of the remnants of the Holocaust."

After WWII, he came to Baltimore, where he lived from 1947 until 1968. While in Baltimore, he served as Director for the Baltimore Histadrudt office. His first stories after his arrival in the United States appeared in "The Baltimore Jewish Times". In 1959, BJT columnist Morris Shochet named Herman and his wife Susan, "Hero of the Week". While in Baltimore, he was a correspondent for the "Jewish Daily Forward", where his works still frequently appear.

Taube's committment to preserving Jewish life led him to found and serve as President of the Baltimore Organization of Survivors, one of the first of its kind, as well as The Yiddish Club of the Baltimore JCC. For twenty years, he coordinated the Holocaust Program of the JCC of Baltimore. Yet, despite all these activities, he did not write a single poem about the Holocaust until October 1975. He explains, "I went on a community mission of the Washington United Jewish Appeal to Europe and Israel. On the way to Israel we visited Auschwitz, and I listened to the guide there tell us tourists

4,200,000 people died here, among them Russians, Poles, Czechs, Agarians, gypsies, Greeks and also Jews.' As I listened, I was consumed with anger, and memories overtook me. I pictured in my mind my years as a medic on the Russian front and remembered how in the field I checked the dogtag of every casualty and if the dead soldier was a Jew, I wrote down his name in a private book I kept so that he would not be forgotten.

"On that day in Auschwitz, roughly 30 years after my first glimpse of Majdanek, I vowed to begin writing poetry again so as not to allow the millions of my brothers and sisters to be an afterthought, a tacked-on footnote - 'and also Jews'. Forgetting them, I thought, was like killing them again. That same day I started writing."

Although Yiddish is his native tongue, and he is an expert on Yiddish literature, he writes with equal clarity in English, in order to reach the widest Jewish readership possible. At the age of 65, (he is now 68), he earned a Master's Degree in literature and creative writing in three years from American University.

He is a true lover of Jews, and all things Jewish. Taube has worked throughout his career to reach out to include all Jews. Over the objections of many, he included Bet Mishpacha, the local gay synagogue in the Synagogue Division.

"I have grappled throughout my life and throughout my 40 years of writing and studying", he explains, "to understand the eternal questions raised by the Holocaust. While there are still no answers, we have an obligation to continue living, creating, and building a vibrant Jewish community."

His tenderness and warmth are expressed in his glowing eyes and good sense of humor. I look forward to each encounter with him, for I know it will always be a spiritual one.

Once when I saw Herman the day before Thanksgiving, he wished me a "gut yomtov". I told him I was somewhat surprised that an observant Jew not born in this country would refer to this American secular holiday as a "yomtov" (holiday). He explained to me, "The fact that I can walk down the street without fear that someone will shout at me 'dirty Jew'; that I do not have to worry that someone will pull mein beard; that I can live freely and proudly here as a Jew. Yes", he declared proudly, "it is a 'yomtov'!"

HERMAN TAUBE

Herman Taube has been active in the American Jewish Community since his arrival in the United States in 1947. His career includes newswriting in Baltimore for the JEWISH DAILY FORWARD, columnist for "The Jewish Week"; founder and president of "The New Americans Organization of Holocaust Survivors" in Baltimore, Board Member of HIAS: Assistant National Director for Organization for Histadrut and the Histadrut Director for Maryland. In 1968 he launched the Histadrut Council of Greater Washington. In 1970 he joined the staff of the United Jewish Appeal Federation of Greater Washington, where he holds the position of Director of the Community Synagogue Division, and Director for Project Renewal.

He is the author of four novels, four books of poetry and numerous articles, essays and short stories.

He is the founder of Club Shalom, an organization of Washington area holocaust survivors, co-founder of Washington Holocaust Committee at the J.C. Council and advisor for Cultural and Education Affairs to the Chairman of the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Council.

Herman and Susan, a survivor of Stutthof Concentration Camp, have five children and eight grandchildren.

A graduate of American University with a M.A. in Literature-Creative Writing, he lectured on Yiddish Literature, World War II and the Holocaust at American University in Washington, at the universities and schools in the Greater Washington area, taught Yiddish at the University of Maryland, and is a faculty member, College of Jewish Studies, B.J.E. of Greater Washington. He is a member of The International Committee of the Institute of Contemporary Jewry at The Hebrew University of Jerusalem and an area Vice-President of The American Gathering of Jewish Holocaust Survivors.

Herman is a licensed teacher and taught Holocaust Studies at Midrasha Hebrew High School and JCC Consortium for Jewish Studies.

Herman Taube was a member of the Steering Committee of The World Gathering of Holocaust Survivors

The Historic
Pilgrimage in Jerusalem in June 1981. He visited Sao Paulo, Brazil, where he addressed the Latin-American Conference of the "World Jewish Congress", and Argentina where he met with the "Shaarit Hapleita" of Buenos Aires.

He led missions to Euroge and Israel and participated in seminars at Yad Vashem where he is a Board Member of the Chaim Pazner Foundation.

Herman Taube: What Makes a Jewish Artist?

BY MICHALEV

Herman Taube, published poet, novelist, lecturer, scholar, and community leader, has been writing on themes since hi his tenth birthday. His collective works, which span decades, continents and which span decades, continents and cultures, constitute an eloquent and powerful chronicle of the Jewish experience in our time. It is a record at once intensely personal and universal. And it is, as is his life, a voluble and vibrant legacy, a model of the highest standard for Jewish artists of all ages.

Many noted writers and scholars have praised Taube's four novels, four volumes of poetic notes, and two books of stories. Among these two books of stories. Among these critics are some of the most re-nowned Jewish artists and Jewish leaders in America today. Isaac Bashevis Singer, for example, after reading Taube's earlier poetry and prose, wrote to Taube that "you write with clarity and simplicity, with a sense of balance that interlocks images and reality; your style and your characters are profoundly Jewish." Award-winning novelist Arnost Lustig characterizes Taube's poems as "tough, soul-gripping stanzas blended with images, fantasies that are powerfully rational...[They] are for me a mirror of a beautiful and sensitive soul, a journey on a dark road of generations past, where light and hope always shine a few steps ahead." And Elie Wiesel, in his Foreword to Between the Shadows, the critically acclaimed collection of selected works by Taube (published this year by Dryad Press and the Jewish Folk Arta Society), writes that Tabue "transcribes a past that has disappeared, a unique Jewish world of beauty and splendor. He portrays locks images and reality; your style beauty and splendor. He portrays the sad mood as well as the spirit of hope of survivors... You imagine congregation praying, singing about a vanished world. And despite all temptations and stumbling blocks, he writes with hope for the future." Taube, 68, spoke with this reporter in his Rockville, Md. home. Though Taube speaks nine different languages, "all of them Yiddish," as he is fond of saying, the conversation was conducted in English.

HT: The war and the Holocaust had a profound and very negative effect on me. Caught in the darkness of their shadow, I stopped writing even a word of poetry. I felt as Adorno did, that "there can be no poetry after the Holocaust." My pain was too deep, too vast. The tragedy was too enormous, too overwhelming to try to fit it into words, whelming to try to fit it into words,

ML: When did you start writing poetry again?

HT: Not until 30 years later.

During all those years, I did write—articles for newspapers and journals, programs for radio, novels—but not a word of poetry until October 1975, when I went on a community mission of the Washington United Jeish Appeal to Europe and Israel. On the way to Israel we visited Auschwitz, and I listened to the guide there tell us tourists that "4,200,000 there tell us tourists that "4,200,000 people died here, among them Rus-Poles, Czechs, Hungarians, sians, Poles, Czechs, Hungarians, gypsies, Greeks and also Jews." the Holocaust?

HT: Yiddn, zait zich nisht meys-yesh. Jews, do not despair. Contin-ue living, creating, hold on to your roots and your hope. This is my response.

Value every moment, treasure every blessing. And support education, Jewish education. I feel strongly that we, or I should say, I have an obligation to present the have an obligation to present the testimony of martyrdom and resistance in the ghettoes, the partisan groups, and the Allied armies. From the Holocaust we must learn about physical and spiritual resistance, about our responsibility not to be silent when we face oppression, hatred or bigotry anywhere in the world. world.

I think of my friend, Eli Wiesel, and of his winning the Nobel Peace Prize just weeks ago. As a Jew and a universal man, he has shown us that despite all the suffering and persecution, he did not lose faith in God, in humanity, in the hope for peace in the world. He carries a beacon of light from this generation beacon of light from this generation to future generations of all religions and all nationalities to remember that the Holocaust did happen and that we must make sure that the evils of the past are not repeated. Elie inspires us to build bridges instead of walls. This should be our response.
ML: Yiddish is your mother

Herman Taube: You are a Jewish artist when you express the emotions tongue, yet most of your poems are English originals, not translations. How and why did you make the switch from writing in Yiddish to writing in English?

HT: For the same reason that the modern Yiddish writers like Mendele Mocher Sefarim, Y.L. Per-etz, and Sholom Aleichem switched from Hebrew to Yiddish—in order to reach the widest Jewish read-ership. Teaching the Holocaust to American Jews, I found simply that they did not understand Yiddish, that they didn't know more than a few expressions. So though I love Yiddish and continue to write and speak in Yiddish as well, I realized that my students could not fully appreciate or relate to my experi-ence, to my thoughts and my writ-ence, to my thoughts and my writings in any language but English. At the age of 62, I enrolled at American University and earned my Master's degree in literature and creative writing. It took me three years. I graduated at 65.

ML: You have written about ML: You have written about Jewish life in Europe and in Ameri-You have written about Jewish experience in several differ-ent languages. You have written Jewish experience in several different languages. You have written about Jewish themes for more than half a century. What advice would you give other Jewish artists, especially the young Jewish writer in America today?

HT: Be yourself. Look in your own backyard, dig in the blote [mud] of your shtetl and you will find there your family roots, great find there your family roots, great gems. Your grandparents and your parents will become an inspiration to you, worth writing about, sketch-to you, worth writing about, sketching, sharing.

Ask yourself what is the role of art and what is your role in it. For the Jewish writer is not just a word merchant, not just a literary figure.
He is a codifier, a chronicler, a historian. From Eliyahu Bokher and Gluckel of Hameln to Bashevis Singer, Chaim Grade, Elie Sheckter and Elie Wiesel—they are the spokesmen of their generation, the authentic chroniclers of Jewish life in their time. All of them have something in common—respect for the world around them coupled with respect for their own Jewish world, their own Jewish roots.

And what is a Jewish artist? What makes him or her Jewish? You are a Jewish artist when your art expresses the emotions and visions of our past, when your writings, music or paintings challenge us to think Jewishly, ethically, psychologically, theologically, even when your subject is universal, re-gardless of whether it is classical or viltra-modern. There is more pintele Vid [Jewish spark] in Saul Bellow than in Arthur Miller. I find more Jewishness in the writings of John Hersey and Robert St. John than in Philip Roth's books.

Sure it's true that we as Jews sometimes get caught in the cross-fire of controversy, that we are distressed by difficult divisions and conflicts in the world, even between one another in the Jewish world. But a real Jewish artist does not get But a real Jewish artist does not get discouraged, does not leave the bat-tlefield and escape inward. He does not isolate himself or join strange cults. This is not the Jewish way. I like to paraphrase Asron Zeitlin in saying, "A Jewish artist in the post-Holocaust period remains Jewish despite all despites."

ML: And what are you doing

HT: Working around the clock r UJA-Federation of Greater Washington, teaching several courses on the Holocaust and Yiddish literature, writing articles for the Yiddish press, and making the time to hammer out a novel about Soviet Jews. And of course spend-ing time with my family, with my Susan and my children and my grandchildren. This, after all, is the most important step toward improving our world.

Dear Mr. President:

On Sunday, June 14, 1987, Los Angeles will be convening the first annual west coast Salute to Israel parade commemorating Israel's 39th Anniversary.

In addition to traditional floats, marching band competitions and festivity, we anticipate an enormous response from the world's second largest Jewish community to this first-time ever gala celebration. This event is co-sponsored by Yeshiva University, the B'nai B'rith Messenger and the Simon Wiesenthal Center.

We also have generated an enthusiastic participation from a wide variety of religious, ethnic and community organizations.

Due to your long-standing friendship and support for the State of Israel, we would be most honored if you and your wife, Nancy would serve as honorary chairs for this event.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. President:

On behalf of the Board of Trustees of the Simon Wiesenthal Center and its 351,000 American constituent families, I am privileged to invite you to be the recipient of the Center's Humanitarian Award and to be the principal speaker at our 1988 Humanitarian Laureate Banquet. This event, which attracts some two thousand community leaders annually, is scheduled to be held on January 28, 1988 at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles, California.

The Center wishes to present this prestigious award to you in recognition and appreciation for your outstanding contributions in the field of Human Rights, for your leadership in confronting international Terrorism, and for your loyal friendship to the State of Israel and the Jewish people.

Some of the most recent recipients of this distinguished honor have been French President Francois Mitterand, former prisoner of conscience Natan Sharansky, Raoul Wallenberg (presented to his sister in absentia), and Dr. Andrei Sakharov (presented in absentia to his family).

Mr. President, we are aware of your difficult and complex schedule, and if January 28 is not feasible we would welcome the suggestion of an alternate date. We hope that you will be able to accept this award and would appreciate hearing from you at your earliest opportunity.

It is with a great deal of pleasure that I join with the Jewish Community Center's Yiddish of Greater Washington in honoring you for your work and for your commitment to your fellowman.

The Yiddish language you explicate and enhance in your own writings is a precious legacy of European Jewry, targeted by the Holocaust. Moreover, you have educated your students and readers on the necessity of democracy and liberty, to ensure that a holocaust will happen "never again."

Your hard work and your dedication to your brethren have made you a pillar of strength in the Washington area community and beyond. I commend you for your life of service to others.

Dear Mr. Winkler:

I am privileged and feel very honored indeed that I have been selected to be the awardee of the "Kesser Shem Tov" at the Mattersdorf International Dinner, which will take place on June 23, 1987, 26 Sivan IY'H at El Caribe in Brooklyn, New York.

This institution was founded by my saintly and revered Rebbe, Horav Hagaon Shmuel Ehrenfeld Z´tl, known as the Mattersdorfer Rov and Rosh Yeshiva of the renowned Yeshiva and Mesivta Rabbinical Seminary Ch´san Sofer.

For almost fifty years Mattersdorf International has developed and administered educational facilities on all levels of learning, and has produced thousands of graduates who today are successful professionals, businessmen and educators.

I am deeply committed to this outstanding and worthwhile institution that is dedicated to providing the finest education for our people both here and in Israel.

A successful dinner and journal campaign is imperative for the growth of this vital institution.

I am enclosing an ad blank for the journal which will be published in conjunction with our annual dinner. Won't you please submit a generous ad and help to insure the success of this campaign. An invitation to the dinner will follow shortly.

I thank you in advance for your favorable response.

With warmest regards and best wishes for a healthy summer.

Dear Susan and Wayne:

Nancy and I are delighted to send warm congratulations on your marriage. We know it will be a special day, one which you will remember always.

With the many challenges we all face in life these days, there are few greater strengths or comforts than the love and support of a family. So it is with special joy that we celebrate this union forming your new family. May your words and your love join you together as one, and may the happiness of your wedding day be yours to share throughout your life together.

God bless you both.

Sincerely,

POWAL THAN

MEMORANDUM FOR JOAN DeCAIN

FROM:

MAX GREEN MU

Could you please send a "Congratulations on your wedding" card to the following people. We don't feel they should get a specially written message, but they do deserve a printed card.

Thank you.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Edeson (Nathan and Helene) c/o Morris Edeson 410 Hannes Street Silver Spring, Maryland 20901

They wedding is July 2nd.

Presidential Greetings

Ellen,

Sorry to be so late with this. Max has twin sons, but would like separate (identical OK) messages. If you don't have enough time, we could send it after the event since it won't be read there.
