IRAN -- NICARAGUA/INTERNATIONAL NEWS

REAGAN RALLIED FOR AID TILL HILL SURRENDERED
Initial White House Doubts Were Overcome

The spring of 1983 was a critical season in U.S. foreign policy. Congress was openly rebelling against President Reagan's "secret" aid to contra rebels fighting the government of Nicaragua and the President, always formidable in any political tussle, decided to abandon the silence he had kept for more than two years on the issue.

As former and current officials connected with the U.S.-contra relationship see it, Reagan eventually wore Congress down in his repeated call for substantial military assistance to the contras. He became the Administration's most effective propagandist in painting an image of Nicaragua's Sandinistas as Soviet vassals and in depicting the contra cause as a Latin reincarnation of the American Revolution.

IRAN-CONTRA PROBES WILL TOP AGENDA ON HILL

Congress will begin its new legislative year the same way it ended 1986, only more so: with intensified investigations of the Iranian arms-contra funds diversion at the top of its agenda.

Both the House and Senate are expected to take up legislation to create special investigative panels in each chamber as soon as lawmakers return to Washington on Tuesday, and final action on the authorizing measures could be completed by the end of the week.

SOVIETS BROADCAST REAGAN'S GREETING
Edited New Year's Message Follows Jamming

MOSCOW -- State-controlled Soviet radio this morning broadcast President Reagan's New Year's address to the Soviet people -- just hours after a U.S. government Voice of America broadcast of the speech was heavily censored by electronic jamming.

An edited version of Reagan's brief remarks was carried in Russian on a Radio Moscow news bulletin at 10 a.m. The Soviet broadcast, running just over seven minutes, excluded about 90 seconds of Reagan's original remarks.

Reagan's upbeat speech, which focused on his positive expectations for U.S.-Soviet relations, was jammed when it was broadcast at midnight on New Year's eve, immediately after Soviet leader Gorbachev gave a more gloomy assessment of bilateral relations in a nationally televised New Year's address.

(Gary Lee, Washington Post, A19)

ROADBLOCKS TO PEACE

The Reagan Administration will launch the new year with a splash of Middle East diplomacy. But judging by the Vatican's diplomatic minuet over Jerusalem and one former ambassador's appraisal of Israeli attitudes, the venture may not be productive.

Consider the controversy this week over John Cardinal O'Connor's itinerary. It does not bode well for the trip Assistant Secretary of State Richard Murphy will undertake later in the month to Egypt, Israel and Jordan to see if leaders in the three countries are willing to make another stab at setting up peace talks. (Barry Schweid, News Analysis, AP)

S. AFRICA WITHDRAWS REPORTED THREAT OF RETALIATION

JOHANNESBURG -- The State-run South African Broadcasting Corporation yesterday withdrew a report quoting Foreign Minister Roelof "Pik" Botha as saying that unless the United States stopped interfering with South Africa's internal politics, access to the country would become impossible for Americans.

After inquiries, the SABC withdrew the news item, saying Mr. Botha had telephoned the news department to say he had been joking.

CHINA SAYS U.S. RELATIONS ARE "STABLE"

PEKING -- Foreign Minister Wu Xueqian said Wednesday that China's relations with the United States are "basically stable," but the controversy over Taiwan remains a major obstacle to further growth.

In a review of Chinese foreign policy in 1986 released by the official Xinhua News Agency, Wu also said political ties with the Soviet Union showed "no substantial progress" during the year.

Peking has been critical of continued U.S. military assistance to Taiwan, despite Washington's insistence that it has honored all of its agreements with China on dealings with the Nationalist island. (UPI)

NATIONAL NEWS

REAGAN HEADING BACK TO WASHINGTON, FACES HOSPITALIZATION

PALM SPRINGS -- As he flies back to Washington after a weeklong California vacation, President Reagan faces a stay in the hospital and a still-simmering controversy over secret arms deals with Iran.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan would watch the Fiesta Bowl football game on television tonight and be interviewed live from the White House at halftime. Speakes said the interview would deal with sports.

Reagan Faces Challenging New Year

PALM SPRINGS -- President Reagan faces major personal challenges and the most difficult political hurdle of his Administration when he returns to Washington today after a six-day New Year's vacation.

His problems include his health, the budget, the probes into controversial plans to fund Nicaraguan rebels with profits from arms sales to Iran and the bitterness of those who feel they were unfairly forced off the NSC, some whose members were alleged to have originated the plans.
(Patricia Wilson, Reuter)

BUDGET WILL ASK CONTINUING RISES FOR THE MILITARY

President Reagan's new budget proposes $1.8 trillion in military spending in the next five years but would slash Federal farm aid by more than half and sharply curtail the growth of many other domestic programs over the same period.

Even though Congress, with Democrats in control of both houses, is likely to discard much of Mr. Reagan's budget, that budget seems to take account of some of the political opposition his proposals have encountered in the last six years.

Reagan Budget Raises Military, Cuts Social Spending: Times

NEW YORK -- President Reagan's new budget proposes $1.8 trillion in military spending over the next five years while sharply cutting domestic programs, the New York Times, citing confidential documents, reported today.

It noted that much of the proposes budget is likely to be discarded by Congress, both of whose houses are now controlled by opposition Democrats.

Reagan's $1 Trillion Challenge To Hit Hill Monday

President Reagan will send Congress a fiscal 1988 spending plan Monday that for the first time tops $1 trillion, while reining in a galloping federal deficit through program cuts and new revenue sources.

The President's $1.02 trillion fiscal 1988 budget will propose cutting some $25 billion from social programs -- a request the 100th Congress is not likely to grant. Mr. Reagan will recommend $25 billion in additional revenue from new user fees and the sale of federal assets, including loan portfolios.

MANUFACTURERS EXPECTED TO HAVE STRONGER YEAR

More Manufacturers are expected to share in economic growth in 1987 than last year as the proportion of declining industries is expected to shrink and exports to increase, according to a Commerce Department report on U.S. industry.

Although the gains for manufacturers will be more widespread, they will be somewhat shallower for all industries compared with earlier years of the expansion when fewer industries prospered with stronger growth, Commerce Deputy Secretary Clarence Brown said.

STUDENT AID PROPOSAL SEEKS MAJOR EXPANSION OF UNSUBSIDIZED LOANS Repayment Schedule Linked To Income

The Department of Education today released a proposal to increase dramatically a new and controversial student financial aid program that does not subsidize interest rates and links repayment schedules to a student's earnings after college.

If approved by Congress, the program of "income-contingent loans" would grow from a $5 million pilot project this year to $600 million in fiscal 1988. The program would allow students to borrow more than they are allowed under current financial aid formulas but would require them to pay the full cost of interest.

(Barbara Vobejda, Washington Post, A3)

Reagan Wants $600 Million For Student Loan Program

President Reagan will ask Congress to create a $600 million student loan program that would have graduates repay the full cost of loans on a schedule geared to their income, the Education Department said yesterday.

The proposed Income Contingent Loan System, to be included in the fiscal 1988 budget the Administration will send to Capitol Hill next week, would be a drastic expansion of a $5 million pilot program approved by Congress last year.

(UPI story, Washington Times, A2)

Administration To Propose Stretched-Out Repayment Program

Students would be able to borrow up to $50,000 for their education and take up to 30 years to repay it under a $600 million program that will be proposed in the federal budget to be presented to Congress next week.

In announcing the program at a briefing this week, Bruce Carnes, deputy undersecretary of the Department of Education, would not say what cuts would be proposed in other areas to pay for the loans.

PRESIDENT REAGAN/PERSONALITIES

President Reagan, celebrating the New Year at the Annenberg Estate near Palm Springs, Calif., noted that the 98th annual Tournament of Roses Parade was the first since the rose became the national flower.

"It is only right for us as Americans to take a great deal of pleasure in this new year," he said yesterday. "Our nation is free and at peace. Our fundamental values of faith, hard work and family remain strong."

CBS's CHARLES KURALT reports it was such a bad fire they still don't know how many people died in it. (CBS-Lead)

NEW YEAR'S GREETING

KURALT: Soviet state radio offered a delayed broadcast today of President Reagan's New Year's greeting to the Russian people but not all of it. An indirect reference to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan was cut by Soviet censors. The censored Soviet version was aired without notice and before many Soviet citizens were even awake. (CBS-4)

STUDENT LOANS

KURALT: President Reagan's new federal budget will include a request for a new type of student loan program and seek $600,000,000 from other parts of the Education Department budget to pay for it. The new program will allow students to borrow up to $50,000. How quickly they pay the money back would be based on their income. (CBS-8)

"It is only right for us as Americans to take a great deal of pleasure in this new year," he said yesterday. "Our nation is free and at peace. Our fundamental values of faith, hard work and family remain strong."

CBS's CHARLES KURALT reports it was such a bad fire they still don't know how many people died in it. NEW YEAR'S GREETING

KURALT: Soviet state radio offered a delayed broadcast today of President Reagan's New Year's greeting to the Russian people but not all of it. An indirect reference to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan was cut by Soviet censors. The censored Soviet version was aired without notice and before many Soviet citizens were even awake. (CBS-4)

STUDENT LOANS

KURALT: President Reagan's new federal budget will include a request for a new type of student loan program and seek $600,000,000 from other parts of the Education Department budget to pay for it. The new program will allow students to borrow up to $50,000. How quickly they pay the money back would be based on their income. (CBS-8)

REAGAN RALLIED FOR AID TILL HILL SURRENDERED
Initial White House Doubts Were Overcome

The spring of 1983 was a critical season in U.S. foreign policy. Congress was openly rebelling against President Reagan's "secret" aid to contra rebels fighting the government of Nicaragua and the President, always formidable in any political tussle, decided to abandon the silence he had kept for more than two years on the issue.

As former and current officials connected with the U.S.-contra relationship see it, Reagan eventually wore Congress down in his repeated call for substantial military assistance to the contras. He became the Administration's most effective propagandist in painting an image of Nicaragua's Sandinistas as Soviet vassals and in depicting the contra cause as a Latin reincarnation of the American Revolution.

IRAN-CONTRA PROBES WILL TOP AGENDA ON HILL

Congress will begin its new legislative year the same way it ended 1986, only more so: with intensified investigations of the Iranian arms-contra funds diversion at the top of its agenda.

Both the House and Senate are expected to take up legislation to create special investigative panels in each chamber as soon as lawmakers return to Washington on Tuesday, and final action on the authorizing measures could be completed by the end of the week.

SOVIETS BROADCAST REAGAN'S GREETING
Edited New Year's Message Follows Jamming

MOSCOW -- State-controlled Soviet radio this morning broadcast President Reagan's New Year's address to the Soviet people -- just hours after a U.S. government Voice of America broadcast of the speech was heavily censored by electronic jamming.

An edited version of Reagan's brief remarks was carried in Russian on a Radio Moscow news bulletin at 10 a.m. The Soviet broadcast, running just over seven minutes, excluded about 90 seconds of Reagan's original remarks.

Reagan's upbeat speech, which focused on his positive expectations for U.S.-Soviet relations, was jammed when it was broadcast at midnight on New Year's eve, immediately after Soviet leader Gorbachev gave a more gloomy assessment of bilateral relations in a nationally televised New Year's address.

ROADBLOCKS TO PEACE

The Reagan Administration will launch the new year with a splash of Middle East diplomacy. But judging by the Vatican's diplomatic minuet over Jerusalem and one former ambassador's appraisal of Israeli attitudes, the venture may not be productive.

Consider the controversy this week over John Cardinal O'Connor's itinerary. It does not bode well for the trip Assistant Secretary of State Richard Murphy will undertake later in the month to Egypt, Israel and Jordan to see if leaders in the three countries are willing to make another stab at setting up peace talks. S. AFRICA WITHDRAWS REPORTED THREAT OF RETALIATION

JOHANNESBURG -- The State-run South African Broadcasting Corporation yesterday withdrew a report quoting Foreign Minister Roelof "Pik" Botha as saying that unless the United States stopped interfering with South Africa's internal politics, access to the country would become impossible for Americans.

After inquiries, the SABC withdrew the news item, saying Mr. Botha had telephoned the news department to say he had been joking.

CHINA SAYS U.S. RELATIONS ARE "STABLE"

PEKING -- Foreign Minister Wu Xueqian said Wednesday that China's relations with the United States are "basically stable," but the controversy over Taiwan remains a major obstacle to further growth.

In a review of Chinese foreign policy in 1986 released by the official Xinhua News Agency, Wu also said political ties with the Soviet Union showed "no substantial progress" during the year.

Peking has been critical of continued U.S. military assistance to Taiwan, despite Washington's insistence that it has honored all of its agreements with China on dealings with the Nationalist island. (UPI)

REAGAN HEADING BACK TO WASHINGTON, FACES HOSPITALIZATION

PALM SPRINGS -- As he flies back to Washington after a weeklong California vacation, President Reagan faces a stay in the hospital and a still-simmering controversy over secret arms deals with Iran.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan would watch the Fiesta Bowl football game on television tonight and be interviewed live from the White House at halftime. Speakes said the interview would deal with sports.

Reagan Faces Challenging New Year

PALM SPRINGS -- President Reagan faces major personal challenges and the most difficult political hurdle of his Administration when he returns to Washington today after a six-day New Year's vacation.

His problems include his health, the budget, the probes into controversial plans to fund Nicaraguan rebels with profits from arms sales to Iran and the bitterness of those who feel they were unfairly forced off the NSC, some whose members were alleged to have originated the plans.

BUDGET WILL ASK CONTINUING RISES FOR THE MILITARY

President Reagan's new budget proposes $1.8 trillion in military spending in the next five years but would slash Federal farm aid by more than half and sharply curtail the growth of many other domestic programs over the same period.

Even though Congress, with Democrats in control of both houses, is likely to discard much of Mr. Reagan's budget, that budget seems to take account of some of the political opposition his proposals have encountered in the last six years.

Reagan Budget Raises Military, Cuts Social Spending: Times

NEW YORK -- President Reagan's new budget proposes $1.8 trillion in military spending over the next five years while sharply cutting domestic programs, the New York Times, citing confidential documents, reported today.

It noted that much of the proposes budget is likely to be discarded by Congress, both of whose houses are now controlled by opposition Democrats.

Reagan's $1 Trillion Challenge To Hit Hill Monday

President Reagan will send Congress a fiscal 1988 spending plan Monday that for the first time tops $1 trillion, while reining in a galloping federal deficit through program cuts and new revenue sources.

The President's $1.02 trillion fiscal 1988 budget will propose cutting some $25 billion from social programs -- a request the 100th Congress is not likely to grant. Mr. Reagan will recommend $25 billion in additional revenue from new user fees and the sale of federal assets, including loan portfolios.

MANUFACTURERS EXPECTED TO HAVE STRONGER YEAR

More Manufacturers are expected to share in economic growth in 1987 than last year as the proportion of declining industries is expected to shrink and exports to increase, according to a Commerce Department report on U.S. industry.

Although the gains for manufacturers will be more widespread, they will be somewhat shallower for all industries compared with earlier years of the expansion when fewer industries prospered with stronger growth, Commerce Deputy Secretary Clarence Brown said.

STUDENT AID PROPOSAL SEEKS MAJOR EXPANSION OF UNSUBSIDIZED LOANS Repayment Schedule Linked To Income

The Department of Education today released a proposal to increase dramatically a new and controversial student financial aid program that does not subsidize interest rates and links repayment schedules to a student's earnings after college.

If approved by Congress, the program of "income-contingent loans" would grow from a $5 million pilot project this year to $600 million in fiscal 1988. The program would allow students to borrow more than they are allowed under current financial aid formulas but would require them to pay the full cost of interest.

Reagan Wants $600 Million For Student Loan Program

President Reagan will ask Congress to create a $600 million student loan program that would have graduates repay the full cost of loans on a schedule geared to their income, the Education Department said yesterday.

The proposed Income Contingent Loan System, to be included in the fiscal 1988 budget the Administration will send to Capitol Hill next week, would be a drastic expansion of a $5 million pilot program approved by Congress last year.

(UPI story, Washington Times, A2)

Administration To Propose Stretched-Out Repayment Program

Students would be able to borrow up to $50,000 for their education and take up to 30 years to repay it under a $600 million program that will be proposed in the federal budget to be presented to Congress next week.

In announcing the program at a briefing this week, Bruce Carnes, deputy undersecretary of the Department of Education, would not say what cuts would be proposed in other areas to pay for the loans.
