MEMORANDUM FOR: DONALD T. REGAN
FROM: FREDERICK J. RYAN, JR. FR
SUBJECT: Symposium on Excellence in Private Sector
Initiatives - June 14, 1985

As you know, on Friday, June 14, the President is scheduled to present C-Flag awards to thirty organizations that have made outstanding contributions in the area of Private Sector Initiatives. Prior to this 11:00 am Rose Garden ceremony, a special symposium sponsored by the New York Stock Exchange is scheduled to take place in Room 450 of the Executive Office Building.

The Stock Exchange ^{which} has decided to make private sector initiatives a top priority for their members and will be involved in a year-long focus on corporate social responsibility.

The program is shaping up very nicely and will include presentations by leading organizations on their P.S.I. activities as well as remarks by John Phelan, Futurist John Naisbitt and Vice President Bush.

I know how tight your schedule is, but if there is any chance that you would be interested in addressing this group, we would be glad to adjust the schedule. The program begins at 8:45 am and concludes at 10:20 am.

Dear Linda:

PR '03

I wanted to take a brief moment of your time to let you know about the fantastic job Mary Jo Jacobi did, in your absence, in chairing a meeting between the President and members of the business community on the subject of deficit reduction.

First of all, the meeting was scheduled out of channels, which created a unique set of political problems in the business community. Mary Jo weighed in and rescued what could have become a break in business virtually unanimous and coordinated effort to get the Congress to come to grips with the deficit problem through cuts in spending.

Next, working behind the scenes, she diffused an effort by a number in attendance to mount a large campaign to move the deficit reduction effort forward, fully at the expense of tax reform.

Finally, she chaired a crisp, concise meeting of this diverse group and, having pre-briefed Don Regan and others on what the reports were to be, she enabled the President to preempt the requests and, frankly, bedazzle all of us in attendance. In terms of Presidential objectives for such a meeting, it was a ten - strike.

I hope all continues well for you and please do not ever hesitate to call on me if ever I can be of service.

Warmest regards,

Red Cavaney

Dear Tom -

Wanted to pass along a copy of one attached for you. Mary Jo really did a fantastic job on this one. It was one of those meetings which had the earmarkings of trouble that turned out well.

Hope all is well + continued good wishes.

FROM: Jack L. Courtemanche, Executive Director JRC
White House Conference on Small Business

REQUEST: Drop by for kick off of 1986 National White House Conference on Small Business.

PURPOSE: To reinforce the enthusiasm and promote support among this group of small business leaders for the White House Conference on Small Business.
The President's involvement would have a significant impact and would put him out front on the White House Conference effort.

BACKGROUND: The 1980 White House Conference on Small Business was the first conference which involved small business owners and involved over 25,000 participants in 60 conferences. This will be a kickoff for this Administration's only White House Conference on Small Business.

The President would announce the release of the schedule of cities and dates for the 54 conferences leading up to the 1986 Conference in Washington, D.C.

The participants are people who have supported the Administration in tax and budget battles over the last 4½ years and would provide an excellent opportunity to urge support for the tax reform package. These are the people who will provide crucial grassroots support for the legislation.

DATE AND TIME: Wednesday, June 19, 1985. Open time.

LOCATION: Room 450 OEOB

PARTICIPANTS: 150 small business and trade association leaders

OUTLINE OF EVENTS: *White House Conference on Small Business announced, including cities and dates -
Jack L. Courtemanche
*Questions and Answers on Conference - Open
*President delivers brief remarks on importance of small business and urges support for tax

MEMORANDUM FOR DONALD T. REGAN

FROM: ALFRED H. KINGON

SUBJECT: Harvard Seminar for Political Appointees

Harvard's Kennedy School of Government has developed and submitted a significantly revised curriculum for the White House seminars for Presidential appointees. It is more relevant and focuses on the problems and situations faced by political appointees in the departments and agencies.

They have done this by eliminating the business oriented cases and shortening and focusing the public sector cases.

Along with the one-day White House orientation and the complementary departmental briefings, the Harvard seminar is now a more meaningful orientation and introduction for political appointees. The combination of these three programs should help our appointees become more effective political managers.

I now recommend we contract with Harvard to run six seminars over the next twelve months, beginning in September, at a total cost of $40,600.

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. ROBERT C. MCFARLANE
THE WHITE HOUSE

Subject: Draft Remarks, List of Participants and Scenario for Conference on Religious Liberty

This memorandum transmits draft remarks, a list of participants and suggested scenario for the President's appearance at the Conference on Religious Liberty in Room 450, Old Executive Office Building, at 1:30 p.m. on Tuesday, April 16, as prescribed in your memorandum of January 16.

Prior to the President's arrival, an eight-member Russian Orthodox Choir will be singing sacred music. The choir, and Russian Orthodox Bishop Basil, will remain standing at the far end of the stage during the President's remarks. Also on stage will be Assistant Secretary of State for Human Rights and Humanitarian Affairs Elliott Abrams and representatives of the Conference's sponsoring organizations: The Institute on Religion and Democracy, the American Jewish Committee, the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, the Jacques Maritain Center of Notre Dame, and the National Association of Evangelicals.

After the President speaks for approximately 15 minutes to the 200 assembled representatives of religious organizations, clergy, and foreign guests, Assistant Secretary Abrams will introduce him to the dignitaries on stage. As the President departs, the choir will resume singing.

Television will be present, but there will be no questions from the media.

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: DROPBY AT CONFERENCE ON RELIGIOUS LIBERTY
TUESDAY, APRIL 16, 1985

Thank you very much.

I am deeply honored to address this conference. I know that a good many of you have come a long way to be here today, and I know you have given greatly of your time, energy and concern. And I can only hope, as you do, that those now suffering around the world for their beliefs will draw renewed courage from your work.

The history of religion and its impact on civilization cannot be summarized in a few days, never mind minutes. But one of the great shared characteristics of all religions is the distinction they draw between the temporal world and the spiritual world. All religions, in effect, echo the words of the gospel of St. Matthew: "Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's, and unto God the things which are God's." What this injunction teaches us is that the individual cannot be entirely subordinate to the state, that there exists a whole other realm, an almost mysterious realm of individual thought and action which is sacred, and which is totally beyond and outside of state control.

This idea has been central to the development of human rights. Only in an intellectual climate which distinguishes between the City of God and the City of Man -- and which explicitly affirms the independence of God's realm, and forbids any infringement by the state on its prerogatives -- only in such a climate could the idea of individual human rights take root, grow, and eventually flourish.

We see this climate in all democracies, and in our own political tradition. The founders of our republic rooted their democratic commitment in the belief that all men "are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights." And so they created a system of government whose avowed purpose was -- and is -- the protection of those God-given rights.

But, as all of you know only too well, there are many political regimes today that completely reject the notion that a man or a woman can have a greater loyalty to God than to the state. Marx's central insight, when he was creating his political system, was that religious belief would subvert his intentions. Under Marxism, the ruling party was to claim for itself the attributes which religious faith ascribes to God alone. Under Marxism, the state was to be the final arbiter of truth, justice, and morality. And so Marx declared religion an enemy of the people -- a drug, an opiate of the masses. And Lenin said, "Religion and communism are incompatible in theory as well as in practice We must fight religion."

All of this illustrates a truth that I believe must be re-understood: atheism is not an incidental element of communism, not just part of the package -- it is the package.

In countries which have fallen under communist rule, it is often the church which forms the most powerful barrier against a completely totalitarian system. And so, totalitarian regimes always seek either to destroy the church or, when that is impossible, to subvert it.

For the former, we have the Soviet Union, where the church was immediately attacked by the communist revolution. This was not done without considerable craftiness. The Soviets, bowing to Western "squeemishness" about the denial of liberties, often characterized their actions as merely defensive.

In 1945, Josef Stalin met with Harry Hopkins, who had been sent by Harry Truman to discuss various East/West problems. In the middle of a talk about politics, Stalin interjected the following: In 1917, he said, the Russian communist party had proclaimed the right of religious freedom as part of their political program. But, he said, the churches of Russia had declared the Soviet government anathema, and had called on church members to resist the call of the Red Army. Now what could we do, said Stalin, but declare war on the church. He assured Hopkins, however, that World War Two had ended the church-state antagonism and now freedom of religion could be granted to the Church.

Well, this, as you know, goes under the heading "The Big Lie." But it was told in a typically plaintive and put-upon manner, as if there was just no choice; try as we could to reason with those cruel and powerful priests, they just wouldn't stop attacking us and so we had to close their churches.

Well, history has taught us that you can bulldoze a church but you can't extinguish all that is good in every human heart. And so, in spite of the dangers involved there are Christians throughout the communist world, and Muslims, and Jews, who continue to practice their faith. Some of them have been imprisoned for their courage.

There is the late Valery Marchenko, who died in a Soviet prison hospital a few short months ago. He was 37 years old, a scholar and a Christian who, at his most recent trial, said that all of his life he had tried to "serve goodness" which he considered to be his "Christian duty." There is Father Gleb Yakunin, who was recently sent to Siberia for 5 years of internal exile. He is another prisoner of faith. And Vladislav Rakay, recently jailed for helping to distribute bibles in Czechoslovakia. These are only a few of many.

Dr. Ernest Gordon, the President of an organization named CREED -- Christian Rescue Effort for the Emancipation of Dissidents -- noted that on a recent trip to Eastern Europe, he spoke with a priest who had spent 10 years in prison. The priest asked him to deliver a message to the West: there is a war going on; it is not nuclear but spiritual. The fallout of the atheistic explosion is everywhere. But Dr. Gordon added, "Although the fallout may be everywhere, we are reminded that God too is everywhere and not even tyrannies can keep him out."

We in the United States have protested this terrible abuse of people who are nothing less than heroes of the century. Most recently, when Congressional leaders met in Moscow with Premier Gorbachev, House Minority leader Bob Michel brought along a list of Baltic and Ukrainian prisoners of conscience. And the Council on Soviet Jewry was magnificent in making sure that the congressional delegation did not leave without extensive data on persecuted Jews in the Soviet Union.

Religious persecution, of course, is not confined to Europe. We see it in Iran, whose leaders have declared virtual war on the Bahais. We see it in Afghanistan, where the Soviets have moved against the Mujahadeen. And we see a variation on how to abuse religious freedom in the Sandinista regime of Nicaragua.

In Nicaragua, the Sandinista regime is faced with a politically active church that -- although it supported the revolution -- is now considered a major obstacle to complete totalitarian control. And so the Sandinistas are actively attempting to discredit and split the church hierarchy. One area to be watched, by the way: the Sandinistas, like all communist regimes, are injecting their ideology into the educational system and have begun widespread literacy campaigns to indoctrinate children and adults. But the Catholic Church is fighting to maintain autonomy and keep this indoctrination out of church-run schools.

This has not been resolved. Cuba solved the problem by closing all private schools, including religious schools. So did Ethiopia.

The general state of religious liberty in Nicaragua is suggested by testimony from various sources, including refugees. We recently learned of a pastor of the Evangelical Church in a Nicaraguan town who told the Freedom Fighters that the Sandinistas had threatened to send the 3,000 members of his church to relocation camps. The pastor and his church members are now hiding out in caves and temporary settlements in the countryside.

May I interject here that stories like this are the reason we are asking Congress for aid to help the Freedom Fighters, and to help the victims of the Sandinista regime.

The Sandinistas also harassed Jews. Two Nicaraguan refugees, Sarita and Oscar Kellerman, have told of the firebombing of their synagogue by the Sandinistas -- and how they wrote on the synagogue and the Kellerman's home the words, "Jews -- Out of Nicaragua."

When I think of Nicaragua these days, it occurs to me anew that you can judge any new government, any new regime, by whether or not it allows religion to flourish. If it doesn't, you can be sure it is an enemy of mankind -- for it is attempting to ban what is most beautiful in the human heart.

But we must not feel despair, because it is not appropriate to the times. We are living in a dramatic age. Throughout the world, the machinery of the state is being used as never before against religious freedom -- but at the same time, throughout the world, new groups of believers keep springing up. Points of light flash out in the darkness, and God is honored once again. Perhaps this is the greatest irony of the communist experiment: the very pressure they apply seems to create the force, friction, and heat that allow deep belief to once again burst into flame.

I believe that the most essential element of our defense of freedom is our insistence on speaking out for the cause of religious liberty. I would like to see this country rededicate itself wholeheartedly to this cause. I join you in your desire that the Protestant churches of America, the Catholic Church, and the Jewish organizations remember the members of their flock who are in prison or in jeopardy in other countries.

We are our brothers' keepers, all of us. And I hope the message will go forth, from this conference to prisoners of conscience throughout the world: "Take heart, you have not been forgotten. We, your brothers and sisters in God, have made your cause our cause, and we vow never to relent until you have regained the freedom that is your birthright as a child of God."

Thank you. God bless all of you.
