Dear Howard:

Congratulations on your new appointment as Chief of Staff. So very pleased for you, and know you will do a superb job.

I had the pleasure of your company at the Federal Reserve Bank dinner in Atlanta. At that time, you were contemplating running for the presidency, which seemed like a fantastic plan to me.

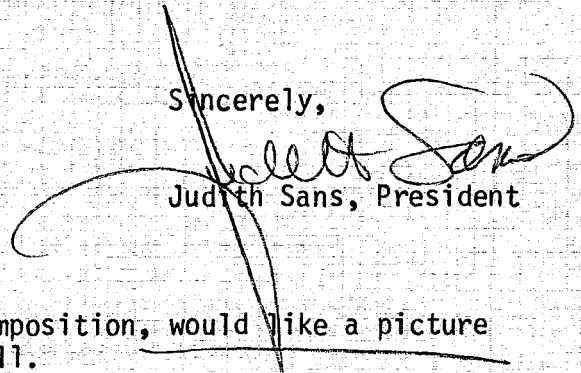

Your decision not to run for president must have been a difficult one.

As Chief of Staff, your knowledge, integrity and experience will prove invaluable in helping salvage the administration.

God give you the strength and wisdom to guide you in your arduous task.

Good luck.

Sincerely,

Judith Sans, President

Dear Mr. Baker,

Thank you for sacrificing your own political ambitions (at least for now) to serve Mr. Reagan. Your gift to your country brought tears to my eyes. I hope others realize how blessed this nation is to have people of your stature leading it.

Please serve Mr. Reagan well as he has served our country so well. He delivered our nation from a spiritual recession and now needs all of our help to get out of his. We look forward to great things from both of you.

Dear Mr. Baker:

Congratulations on your recent appointment to be Chief of Staff to the President of the United States.

In view of recent domestic and internal problems, the White House in a state of flux, I for one am very pleased that you were available and were able to accept this very crucial appointment.

President Reagan has done a superlative job in the past six years and needs a strong and steady hand in administering the complex operation called "The White House".

I'm sure with your background and experience, your knowledge and familiarity of the ins and outs of Washington, as well as your friendship with President Reagan, you will do a superlative job.

My best wishes with you and I look forward to an improvement in the organization administration and a positive thrust in the two years ahead of us.

Sincerely yours,

I am a retired, ordinary blue collar worker who doesn't know much about music - just what I enjoy listening to, much about art - just what I appreciate seeing or much about politicians - just what I read about them.

Since you have taken over as Chief of Staff at the White House I like what I have heard, seen and read about you. I suspect you will be the best in that position during my lifetime to date.

The Honorable Howard Baker

Chief of Staff

The White House

Washington, DC

Dear Mr. Baker:

My best wishes for assisting the President in his final 2 years. You were certainly my choice to get the nomination in 1988, but I am ready to support you and him any way possible in overcoming some of these immediate problems we all face.

National security people do, & feel, tend to see things in a black/white context sometimes (not to sound dogmatic here), and their zeal to "jump off a building because it will protect my country" ethic bears monitoring. This nation has proved quite resilient throughout its life. Heroic derring-do by individuals with tunnel vision has not, in my judgment been a factor. Most of the framers of the Constitution would turn in their resting places if they had so much as an inkling that one our responsible leaders attempted suicide because he thought he had failed his country. There are definite blind spots in the makeup of personality in some of these security/intelligence/spy individuals. I know you are going to succeed in the tasks you have accepted.

Sincerely,
Thomas E. McLaughlin
