GRAY, EDWIN J.: Files, 1981-1982

Office of Policy Development; Director, 1981
Office of Policy Information; Director, 1982

Edwin Gray was the Deputy Assistant to the President for Policy Development and Director of the Office of Policy Development under Martin Anderson in the first year of the administration. When Mr. Anderson left the White House in early 1982, Mr. Gray remained a Deputy Assistant, but was made director of a separate office – the Office of Policy Information. After Mr. Gray left the White House, this office was incorporated back within the Office of Policy Development.

The Cabinet Council material includes material for the Cabinet Council on Commerce and Trade (CCCT), Cabinet Council on Economic Affairs (CCEA), Cabinet Council on Food and Agriculture (CCFA), Cabinet Council on Human Resources (CCHR), and the Cabinet Council on Natural Resources and the Environment (CCNRE).

The Edwin Meese Material includes mostly speeches and speech statistics and background material provided to Counsellor to the President, Edwin Meese.

1980 Reagan/Bush Campaign material (OAs 12157-12159) consists work product and public items created during the 1980 Reagan Presidential campaign. Gray brought this material with him to the White House and appears to have had some use of the material during his time in the Office of Policy Development. In 1983, after Gray left the White House, the material was examined by the FBI in connection with the “debate gate” controversy over how the Reagan Campaign obtained the Jimmy Carter campaign strategy documents.
