MAHAN-DUVAL, JANN: Files, 1981-1984

Media Relations, Office of: Media Coordinator

The Office of Media Relations handled all press contacts with the White House other than the actual White House press corps. It was created in the fall of 1981 from the Office of Media Liaison in the Press Office and the Television Office from the Office of Communication. The office had various names throughout the administration including: Media Liaison; Office of Media Relations and Planning; Office of Media Relations and Broadcasting; Office of Media and Broadcasting Relations). Their staff, physical location in the White House and general functions remained exactly the same during these various name changes. For ease of use and to reflect their organizational unity the Library is naming this office: Office of Media Relations.

The White House receives a multitude of requests for Presidential messages for organization meetings, tributes to particular individuals, public service announcements on behalf of various causes and charitable fundraising, and taped endorsements for political candidates. During the Reagan administration this became a highly developed function, and the President regularly sat for tapings for these requests. The Television Office/function, as part of first the Office of Communication and then the Office of Media Relations, coordinated all aspects of the multiple tapings and coordinating the scripts of these messages. In addition, the Television Office coordinated all the arrangements with outside media for taped interviews with the President, nationally televised press conferences and nationally televised addresses.

Jann Mahan was the television/radio coordinator from early 1981 to April 1984. For the first three years she worked with Mark Goode, who was a television media consultant associated with the Reagans since the gubernatorial years. The Library has been unable to positively identify a specific set of White House material for Mr. Goode. His work product is intermixed and interfiled with the Mahan collection. As a general rule, Goode did the media coordination, working with the networks and Mahan implemented the plan for specific event tapings. Mahan left the White House in November 1984 and the work was taken over by Alden Lang for the remainder of the first administration. Lang had been working with Mahan-Duval for about six months prior to this time. We have no specific collection for Ms. Lang.

This media function was separated as a separate administrative unit known as the Television Office for 1985-1987. Their physical location, staff and functions remained essentially the same. We have not broken this time period out as a separate collection, the office and its staff are all included in the Office of Media Relations. Elizabeth Board took over this office in early 1985 and stayed through the end of the administration. In 1987, the Television Office ceased to exist administratively and was placed under the Office of Media Relations again. For a continuation of the work done by Jann Mahan-Duval in the second administration, please see the Elizabeth
