Dear James:

Thank you for your kind invitation. I am honored that you would think of asking Joy and me to attend the Virginia Cavaliers versus the South Carolina Gamecocks football game on October 17.

Regrettably, the heavy demands of my schedule have forced us to decline. Please know, however, that you have our best wishes for an exciting contest.

Warm regards.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Parran:

Thank you for your recent letter in which you expressed your opposition to the provision in the Senate-passed trade bill requiring advance notice to employees of plant closings and layoffs of 50 or more employees during any 90-day period.

The Administration will insist on removal of the Senate provision during the House-Senate conference on the trade bill. Contrary to the objectives of trade legislation, mandatory advance notice would make America less competitive, not more.

In his most recent letter to the Senate on this legislation, the Secretary of Labor stated that inclusion of any mandatory plant closing provisions would make it impossible for the President's senior advisors to recommend approval of a trade bill.

Thank you for sharing your views.

Dear Mr. Triche:

Thank you for your message expressing support for the President's nomination of Judge Robert H. Bork to the position of Associate Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

President Reagan believes Judge Bork to be a man of the highest integrity and qualification as well as an eloquent and powerful advocate of judicial restraint, a philosophy whose guiding principle is that it is the legislature's role to enact laws and the court's role to interpret them.

In making the nomination, the President stated:

Judge Bork is recognized as a premier Constitutional authority. His outstanding intellect and unrivaled scholarly credentials are reflected in his thoughtful examination of the broad, fundamental, legal issues of our times. . . . We're fortunate to be able to draw upon such an impressive legal mind; an experienced judge and a man who already has devoted so much of his life to public service. He'll bring credit to the Court and his colleagues, as well as to his country and the Constitution.

The American Bar Association gave Judge Bork its highest rating -- "exceptionally well qualified" -- when he was confirmed by the Senate as an Appellate Judge in 1982. President Reagan is confident that the current Senate confirmation process will be equally successful and he looks forward to Judge Bork beginning a long and distinguished career as a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Again, thank you for writing. Please accept my best wishes.

Dear Randy:

I greatly appreciated receiving your letter of August 11, 1987, which extended your personal thanks for my participation in the August 10, 1987, meeting with Citizens Network for Foreign Affairs. I share your assessment of the success of that meeting and wish to extend my personal thanks to you and the other members of Citizens Network for the important work your organization is performing in educating the public on the critical issue of America's international leadership.

As you requested, I have encouraged Arthur B. Culvahouse, Jr., to seriously consider participating in the upcoming alumni conference between the American Council of Young Political Leaders and the Committee of Youth Organizations of the U.S.S.R. in early January and late November of 1988. As I am sure you appreciate, however, A.B. does have substantial responsibilities in his position as Counsel to the President which may make it impossible for him to attend. As you acknowledged in your letter, the final decision rests with A.B. and will largely depend on his assessment of the importance and urgency of the matters he will be dealing with at the times of the vitally important work of the Citizens Network.

Dear Mr. Hosie:

Thank you for your messages expressing the concern of the Sun-Diamond Growers of California about the U.S.-EC dispute over EC pasta imports and the possibility of EC retaliation against U.S. walnut exporters. I am pleased to say that we have reached an agreement which will end this dispute and avoid a destructive trade war.

Under the terms of the agreement, which takes effect October 1, the EC's export subsidy on pasta will no longer apply to fifty percent of the EC's exports to the United States. Furthermore, the duty refund will be reduced by 27-1/2 percent on the remaining 50 percent and is expected to be reduced further in the months ahead. The agreement will be monitored closely to ensure that the EC abides by its terms. The EC has agreed not to introduce new subsidies for pasta exported to the U.S. and not to operate its existing subsidy system in a way that would violate the agreement.

This issue was an extremely difficult one to settle and required compromises on both sides. Negotiations were long and complicated. In the end, however, the United States achieved a settlement that, I believe, will benefit American pasta-makers.

I am relieved that a confrontation over this issue was avoided at the last minute, but I am sure you will agree that we should not have to go to the brink of a trade war every time a trade dispute arises. This case exemplifies not only why we need stronger international rules to settle trade disputes, but also the dangers of the proposed legislation that would require the United States to retaliate on a legislatively mandated, inflexible schedule. Had such legislation been in effect in this case, we would have found ourselves in a trade war instead of concluding the constructive, trade-liberalizing agreement we reached.

The Administration is currently participating in negotiations aimed at strengthening international trade rules, so that we will not have to resort to threats of retaliation to protect our trade rights in the future.

I hope this information is encouraging to you. You and your fellow growers have my appreciation and best wishes for the future.

Dear Mr. McNatt:

Thank you for forwarding the letters written by your American History students concerning the POW/MIA issue. It is heartening to both the President and me that they care so deeply about our missing men and their families.

When President Reagan assumed office in 1981, he directed that a priority effort be made to achieve the fullest possible accounting of our men still listed as missing in Southeast Asia. At that time, intelligence priorities were down, no negotiations had been ongoing, and the families of these men felt ignored by their own government.

Since then, great progress has been made and many families have received answers to their uncertainty. Long and intense negotiations have been conducted by the Reagan Administration for the past few years, intelligence priorities are at their highest, and more progress has been made in the past three years than at any time since the end of the war.

Early this year, President Reagan named former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, John Vessey, as his special emissary to Hanoi on this issue. He returned from Hanoi last month with new agreements that, if honored by the Vietnamese, will bring even greater progress.

As your students will be able to see from the enclosed material, the problem is not in Washington, but Hanoi. The President is determined to continue this priority effort for the remainder of his term. We hope we can count on the support of a concerned American citizenry to demonstrate to Vietnam and Laos our united stand on this important issue.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

Howard H. Baker, Jr.

Dear Mrs. Miller:

Thank you for your message and for sharing with me your suggestion on how to preserve the patriotic spirit which has characterized our nation for generations. I will share your suggestion with the appropriate members of the White House staff.

Throughout its history, America has been a model to the world of what is possible if the will of the people is the primary source of guidance for a nation. Since its revolutionary founding, America has nurtured the idea of government of the people, by the people, and for the people. By recognizing and declaring the unalienable rights to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, our founders laid the groundwork for all the blessings we have enjoyed as a people.

I am always pleased to hear from the American people about the love and respect they have for this great land of ours. I appreciate your taking the time to write.

With my warm best wishes,

Sincerely,

Howard H. Baker, Jr.

Dear John:

Thank you for your letter expressing the National Federation of Independent Business's views on the omnibus banking and thrift legislation, H.R. 27.

The President recently signed this legislation, which was urgently needed to help troubled thrift institutions whose problems have contributed to a weakening of that industry. The "Competitive Equality Banking Act of 1987" contains most of the provisions included in the Administration's original plan to recapitalize the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC) and provides an acceptable level of funds to help resolve the large caseload of savings and loan insolvencies. In addition, it provides important new tools that banking and thrift regulators can use to handle troubled institutions.

Unfortunately, the legislation does not include any measures to help modernize our financial system, which continues to operate under antiquated laws that date from the 1930s. These laws, including portions of the Glass-Steagall Act, the McFadden Act, and the Douglas amendment to the Bank Holding Company Act, have become increasingly outdated as a result of the fast-changing global financial services marketplace with its explosion of new products and services designed to satisfy consumers' changing needs.

Instead, the legislation includes a number of restrictions and prohibitions that stand in the way of heightened competition, lower costs, and increased efficiency in the delivery of financial services. These restrictions include the closing of the so-called "non-bank bank" loophole (which provided consumers the substantial competitive benefits of new entrants into the financial system) and a moratorium on expanded banking services that is even more restrictive than the antiquated Glass-Steagall provisions. As you know, the Administration has consistently raised concerns about the adverse effects such restrictions may have on both the competitive position of U.S. financial firms and consumers' needs for a variety of competitively priced products and services.

I certainly share your view that everyone interested in this complex but critically important issue must work together over the coming year to develop a reasonable approach. A financial system that is composed of institutions that are profitable and risk-diversified through increased competition can only serve to promote the safety and soundness of our nation's financial system. The Administration is confident that all members of that system, including insurance agents, securities firms, realtors, banks, thrifts and others, will benefit from the increased competition that restructuring can provide.

I look forward to working together with you and other concerned parties on these issues in the future with the parallel goals of strengthening the competitive position of U.S. financial firms and providing consumers with the products and services that they desire, efficiently and at a reasonable cost.

Best regards,

Sincerely,

Howard H. Baker, Jr.

Dear Morrie:

It was good to see you this summer. I appreciate your letter regarding the President's Report on the National Security Strategy of the United States, and I apologize for the delay in my response.

I am pleased that the Council has taken an interest in collating comments on the President's Report. Like any document of this type, it is only useful if it is constantly updated and refined. The work being done by the Council to bring recommendations to the NSC staff's attention prior to publication of the 1988 National Security Strategy Report is appreciated.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

Dear Commander Welch:

Thank you for your letter of June 12, 1987. I regret the delay in sending you this reply.

Commander, I can appreciate your frustration at being unable to obtain medical care at the Naval Hospital Millington. We have been advised that the hospital is experiencing a shortage of qualified personnel and as a result they have had to curtail some of their services. My staff was also advised that the personnel at the Family Practice Center are working to resolve this staff shortage. They anticipate staff increases by January 1988.

We understand that the facility has informed you of alternative sources for medical assistance in the Memphis area which you may be able to use. One such contact is the Health Benefits Advisor in Millington at (901) 872-5824. Another is the Veterans Administration Hospital in Memphis at (901) 523-8990. I hope these alternatives can help provide any needed medical services until the Family Practice Center is back up to adequate staff levels.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Glick:

On behalf of Senator Baker, I would like to thank you for sending him the newspaper articles and copies of your thoughtful columns from the Harrisonburg Daily News-Record.

Your interest in discussing your findings on government-media relations with the Chief of Staff is appreciated. Because of the heavy demands on his schedule, however, we are unable to set up a meeting for you at this time. I hope you understand.

Again, you were good to send Senator Baker this informative material.

Dear Mr. Ahearn:

Thank you for your message requesting a meeting with the Chief of Staff to discuss the cassette tape which you sent to him.

I am sorry this must be a disappointing response, but the heavy demands of Mr. Baker's schedule make it impossible for him to comply with your request. I am returning the tape and the photograph you enclosed.

Your interest is appreciated, however, and the enclosed photograph of Mr. Baker comes to you with his best wishes.

Dear Ambassador Matsunaga:

Thank you for your very thorough review of S. 1420 including Japan's specific objections to the bill. Taken together with your previous letter, it gives us a complete picture of Japan's concerns.

As you may know, we are committed to working closely with the leadership in both the House and the Senate to produce a trade bill that is sound. Clearly, provisions that are country specific, GATT illegal, or trigger mandatory retaliation would be contrary to that goal, as you also point out.

Again, many thanks for sharing with me your detailed analysis of the bill and its impact on Japan. It is important for both our countries to be cognizant of the impact of legislation on the trading system.
