The Honorable
Senator Howard Baker, Whitehouse Chief of Staff
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave NW
Washington, DC 20500

Beloved Senator Baker,

Please permit me the privilege an honor of saying congratulations on thy appointment to the post of Whitehouse Chief of Staff. I can only pray for thee, that the LORD will pour out upon thee all the wisdom and blessings of heaven in thy sacred duty and great task for the LORD and our Great Country. And do so as an ordinary John Doe this once.

Please pardon my not only old fashioned thinking and writing which is more at ancient. I grew up that way in the monastic like seclusion of North Carolina's Blue Ridge country. No, I'm not a saint nor a hook just an old time folks type. I often review all the so called revised hellinistic schools of thought such as Freudianism, ect. just to make sure I'm not missing something or getting out of line. I even started college and higher educational pursuits with the intent of going into psychiatry and psychiatric medicine, but dumped it as a hoax and decided to stay with the LORD, thus turning to a true pure behavioural science, SOCIAL-CULTURAL ANTHROPOLOGY, which has no horns or ab horns, righteous or unrighteous, or any kind of chip on the shoulder routines. S/C Anthro is the purest of humanitarian schools of thought which is almost religious like for it, in true religious finest form.

Our Commander in Chief President Ronald Reagan, if I may say so, would fair best by standing with those who truly love him. I once signed a pledge of loyalty to our Commander in my own blood, a very ancient way of making a covenant of devotion and loyalty; it may seem grotesque, I heard of a Senator once who visited "Grandma"

The Honorable Howard Baker

Dear Mr. Baker:

Obviously I know little about forming a letter, but to me that isn't of the utmost importance. First, right on to 40 years ago my brother Smith and I of Kp Hills Industries, Pine Knot, Ky. built a cherry dining room table for you and your lovely wife and delivered it to you in Huttsville. I was very impressed then and have followed your career all these years

I'll have to admit I was very disappointed when President Reagan asked you to be Chief of Staff because I wanted you to be our next President. Still hope you can be someday. I now live in Florida, brother Smith is still in Pine Knot. I get back there about once a year. It's highly unlikely that our paths will ever cross again or that you even remember us but I want you to know we have the utmost faith in you and that you have our support and prayers.

Howard, you've done us proud so far,

"SO, DO US PROUD AGAIN."

Good Luck, we're proud of you.

Respectfully

Dear Senator Baker:

Since I understand you are a "camera bug," I thought you might get a kick out of this shot taken when you were in San Luis Obispo County a few months ago to speak at the San Luis Bay Inn. When you were named Chief of Staff, my husband and I advised managing editor Jeff Fairbanks (SLO Telegram-Tribune where my husband worked 30 years as Sports Ed before retiring in 1980) that we had a picture of a "local" woman giving her endorsement of the appointment. Jeff agreed and reporter Carol Roberts came up with this cute (we think) story. All of the people we talked to DID agree that you could handle the situation and we look forward to the time when you decide to run for the presidency. Oh yes, the Leslie Ramsey given credit for the picture is our Assemblyman Eric Seastrand's representative with her office here in San Luis Obispo. We know that you will do a wonderful job as Chief of Staff and our prayers are with you. And, of course, with President Reagan.

Best regards,

SLO woman boosts Baker; says he has GOP's respect

Howard Baker, the president's new chief of staff, has a big booster in San Luis Obispo's Louise Nettleship.

"His sacrifice of the presidential bid has gained him a mountain of respect from Republicans," said Nettleship, who speaks with a Southern accent not unlike Baker's.

She headed the Republican Women's Federation in 1980 and has been a member of the party since the 1940s, when her husband, Johnny, became sports editor of the Telegram-Tribune.

Back then, they lived in Paso Robles and came down the grade to meetings of the Young Republicans.

"We young Republicans are old Republicans now, but we're still just as interested in good government," she said.

Her own poll of old county pals showed overwhelming support for Baker in his new job, Nettleship said. She feels a special bond with Baker. His longtime interest in politics, like hers, is common in the South.

She grew up in Perryville, Ark., where politics and religion were important. "My family entertained preachers and politicians alike," said Nettleship. "I felt their rhetoric was the same, just involved different subjects."

She liked listening. When she was old enough to vote, she wanted to be part of the process, said the former local Republican leader.

Talking about Baker, who "really impressed me" a year ago at San Luis Bay Inn, reminded Nettleship of her own family's most successful politician and the blooper that blew him out of office.

That was her first cousin, the late Paul Van Dalsem, who served many years as the Arkansas representative from Perry County. He lost an election about 10 years ago by telling the wrong story to the wrong people, she said.

All of the candidates had been entertaining a group of university women with their jokes. "Paul's was about the women in Perry County who were not permitted to get too interested in politics. When they did, their husbands would keep them barefoot and pregnant," his story went.

The women didn't think it was funny and helped defeat him in the next election. The story also made the wire services and Walter Cronkite repeated it on television, said Nettleship.

Next time around, her cousin dropped the story from his repertoire and won, she said.

The longtime activist is proud of Baker.

It would have been tough on Republicans, Nettleship said, if he had continued to move toward the presidency — going against George Bush and Jack Kemp for the nomination.

"And, of course, we're also very happy that Nancy is pleased with the appointment," she said.

Clean Sweepdown, Fore And Aft

If anyone were capable of sluicing through the Augean stables which the West Wing of the White House presented to him, Howard Baker did well to consent in playing Hercules. This time, the President did well to pick the former Senate Majority leader to restore credibility, probity and, at last, a sense of purpose to his flawed administration. After the Tower Commission pulled no punches in its report, laying the major blame for the Iran-Contra scandal right at the president's feet, there was little else he could do. Clearly, this was not the time or place for appointing another crony such as Deaver, Meese, Laxalt, or a "Judge" Clark as Chief of Staff.

We trust Senator Baker will wield a big broom in his job, sparing nothing in his quest to create orderly government at the top. His own sense of integrity will guide him in his new and awesome job -- the same sense of duty and loyalty that induced him to lay aside his own personal ambitions to run for the office he now serves. We believe the man from Tennessee saw a larger role than the one of merely pulling Reagan's chestnuts out of the fire -- that of adding to the prestige of the presidency itself.

We must never again fall into the trap of allowing petty men, intoxicated with a sense of power derived from proximity to the powerful, to run loose and wreak the kind of havoc which Poindexter and North apparently did for so long, with too little supervision or accountability. We trust the current Chief Executive will pay heed to the counsel of this honest man, and we call upon his successors to see to it we have all learned something from the sorry affair.

Howard Baker must have a free hand to effect a clean sweepdown. He and his staff must cast jaundiced eyes into every cranny of activity formerly performed by those left over from the scandal. His is a big and unenviable job, but he is up to it. There will be no question about his ability to sell the President's policies to the Congress. In many ways, his could be the true role of "Prime Minister", rather than the derisive connotation applied to the late and unlamented Donald Regan.

In the works, and the sooner the better, we look for the new Chief to try to effect a summit, now the Soviets have opened the door to fruitful arms control talks. We trust he will work closely with Secretaries Shultz and Weinberger -- if, indeed, these worthy servants of the Republic are not among those writing resignations. We offer a fervent hope the three of them will see to it that Gorbachev doesn't meet alone with Ronald Reagan, especially if he is carrying the key to the candy store. This in the offing will be a certain way to decompress the current tension and draw attention away from the bad news.

One last sweep, Mister Baker: please tell the President he is far from infallible. It would be as welcome as the flowers in May were he to take to the tube this week, accept all the blame, and get on with his last two years. One more session of dissembling, and he's had it!

Next Best-Seller?

Whatever the present state of mind bedeviling LCOL Oliver North, we do not foresee a lonely or poverty-stricken retirement on half-pay. With the present appetite for celebrity among breathless readers and viewers, we trust the Iran-Contra business will produce monetary rewards far beyond even his fancied dreaming during his "cowboy" days. We are as certain as night follows sunset that he is already being approached with offers for a book, with built-in movie and TV rights which will allow him to set up his very own Swiss account. It's interesting to speculate over the possible biases one could present the story with -- sky-blue patriot all the way to nefarious and opportunistic bum.

To our practised eye, we observe a man on the tight edge of life, a tense set of nervous wires which may snap long before immunity or some such release comes his way. We'd suggest the Commandant of the Marine Corps order the colonel to Bethesda for psychiatric evaluation, no matter what the outcome may be. We'd bet Ollie is close to the brink of breakdown. Witness his threatened lawsuit of Special Prosecutor Walsh, and his oblique references to Holy Writ upon questioning by the press. We believe the man is suffering from delusions of grandeur, and fear for his mental health.

He'd be ahead either way -- if the psychiatrists find him somewhat wanting, he'd have a cop-out. If they find him as normal as any other officer, he'd sell that many more books.

Show 'Em, Missourians

The Democratic Committee in the "Show Me" state has displayed uncommon good sense in selecting Betty Hearnes to serve as State chair-person. She draws deep respect for her political acumen, and has earned her undisputed place in the legislature. She will be good for the Party at a time when it absolutely must get united, to get set for its biggest chance since 1932. If loyal members believe the presidency in next year's election is a shoo-in, since the Tower Report, we suggest folks of Mrs. Hearnes' ilk serve to remove the blinders, and quickly.

Good and serious men like George Bush and Bob Dole do not believe their chances are the least diminished by the unsavory affair emanating from the White House. In fact, they will make capital of the mess by dissociating themselves and distancing their campaigns from anything resembling complicity or even knowledge of the sad situation. The Democrats have not as yet advanced any potential candidates who are nationally known, with the exception of Gary Hart. Mario Cuomo has withdrawn himself from consideration. Kennedy will not run this time. Dale Bumpers has excellent local credentials, but not as yet anything approaching national recognition. Dick Gephardt might well run for the city limits as President. Sam Nunn might well consider making his political future for at least next term by solidifying his base in the Senate.

Democrats must get together, write its planks long in advance, be on guard against the splinters who would again destroy them. It must again learn how to be the party of the people. If its coalition must include all the unsavory fringe minority factions, let it accomplish unity under the guidance of such good people as Betty Hearnes who will teach the rank-and-file how to do so without undue fanfare. Blacks, the Jewish vote, labor, homosexuals, feminists, other ethnic minority splinters are truly the party. But it must be greater than the sum of its parts. It must be a driving force to restore the country to the many, from the grasp of the affluent few. It must remember its role as guardian of the Social Contract, too many times abrogated by the Republicans. Its major wings must close together, then spread again to bear up the people.

If we are confronted with another debacle such as that visited upon us by the likes of Mondale, Ferraro, Jackson and Hart, we'd better forget all about gaining the presidency well into the next millenium.

Dear Sen. Baker,

I can't tell you how pleased this family is that you are coming to the President's aid.

Last year, I contacted your law offices offering my assistance when you decided (or if you decided) to run for President yourself. I'm very good on phones.

Since you're doing this now, selflessly pledging your help to our President, I'll never forget it and later on, maybe 6 years from now, you'll decide to run and I'll vote for you and so will my family.

Anyhow, I know everything is going to be O.K. because you're there.
