WASHINGTON

March 19, 1981

Video Tape and Film Session

DATE: March 20, 1981
LOCATION: First Floor Family Dining Room
TIME: 11:45 AM
FROM: Mark Goode

I. PURPOSE

To video-tape an interview with Chicago Sportscaster Jack Brickhouse; to film a message for the National Federation of Republican Women; and to video-tape an address for the White House Conference on Aging.

II. BACKGROUND

1. Jack Brickhouse has been the play-by-play announcer for the Chicago Cubs for 41 years. The interview was suggested by Congressman Bob Michel, and will be concerned with the President's days as a Cubs announcer and his thoughts on baseball today. It will be telecast on WGN-TV in Chicago on April 8, the night before the Cub's opening game of the season. Portions of it will be repeated when a large Sunday audience is anticipated later in the season.

2. A brief message for the National Federation of Republican Women will be part of an effort to encourage membership. It will be shown throughout the country, primarily to women who have previously not been active in party politics.

3. The address for the White House Conference on Aging will be used at 38 state-wide gatherings, beginning on March 22. It offers an opportunity for the President to show his interest in problems of the aging and combat fears raised over how the economic package will affect programs for older Americans.

III. PARTICIPANTS

The President and Jack Brickhouse, then the President alone.

IV. PRESS PLAN

No press coverage is scheduled. A White House photographer will be present.

MEMORANDUM

V. SEQUENCE OF EVENTS

The President will arrive in the first floor Family Dining Room at 11:45 AM. The interview with Mr. Brickhouse will take place first. Following a brief rearrangement of chairs and cameras, the message to Republican Women and Aging Conferences will be recorded. Copy for both of these will be on teleprompter. The session is scheduled to be 45 minutes in duration.

TAPED REMARKS - NATIONAL FEDERATION OF REPUBLICAN WOMEN FILMOGRAPH

I am delighted to have this opportunity to encourage you to become involved in the National Federation of Republican Women. Their members are at the very heart of our party and have contributed much to the progress we have made.

We are building a new coalition in America, a coalition of Americans from all walks of life and from every background. I have said we are beginning an era of national renewal, but it will take all of us, together, to accomplish that. The National Federation of Republican Women has done much to bring us together.

The NFRW has worked to bring more women into the political process. In its programs, women across the country are recruited and trained for campaigns and as candidates at every level. NFRW members work at the grassroots of precinct politics and participate in the shaping of national policy.

Still, there is much to be done. We are on the brink of an economic calamity at home. International tensions demand our attention. The challenges ahead require all of our energies, all of our strengths and all of our dedication. We must reach beyond ourselves, and together we will find the ability to get the job done.

I urge you to support the National Federation of Republican Women as they work to elect candidates at every level, candidates who believe in the principles that made this country great. Together, we are equal to the challenge. Together, we can bring about a rebirth of the American spirit. Thank you.

TAPED REMARKS - WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE ON AGING,
STATE CONFERENCES

I am delighted to take part in your State conference as you prepare for the White House Conference on Aging later this year.

To paraphrase Cicero, intelligence and reflection and judgment reside in older citizens, and if there had been none of them, no states could exist at all.

The elderly are a great natural resource, but they are a resource too often left largely untapped. We must find ways to encourage their contributions of knowledge, wisdom and talent. We are a society looking to renew itself. Who better to turn to than those who know the society we have been. Our renewal must grow out of the richness of our past.

Yet, our elderly need us, too. After having worked a lifetime to provide for their retirement, they find today's inflation has ravaged their savings. While the declining value of the dollar robs all of us, those living on fixed incomes do not have any flexibility to adapt. And unemployment rocks the foundation of Social Security, the lifeline of old age. For these people, inflation is a cruel tax which makes our economic mess hurt even more.

Older Americans have a great stake in our efforts for economic recovery.

Older Americans have a great stake in our efforts for economic recovery.

We can turn things around, and we must act now. I have submitted to Congress a detailed proposal to cut more than $48 billion from the Federal budget. The uncontrolled government spending of the past has run up a deficit of more than $940 billion, driving up interest rates, fueling inflation and undermining the stability of our economy.

Though the cuts are distributed evenly, and no one group is singled out to feel them more, we have kept, as we promised, this society's basic social safety net, protecting programs for the elderly and those who rely on government for their very existence.

I have also proposed a 10 percent tax rate cut for the next three years for everyone who pays income tax. This rate reduction goes hand in hand with the spending cuts and is designed to encourage the kind of investment that will provide jobs, rebuild industry and recreate incentive.

The program for economic recovery also includes a plan to reduce overregulation and stabilize our money supply.

We must take these four, important steps to get our economy moving again. Unless we do so, the plight of older Americans as well as all our citizens will continue to get worse.

You, and tens of thousands of people like you, are gathering in State conferences to analyze and discuss these and other issues affecting the elderly. Because of your participation in this program, your voices will be heard in Washington and around the country. You are taking part in shaping our national policies. We are all grateful for your help.

Let us rely on our heritage of genius and courage and freedom. We will lend our efforts to the task of ensuring that we use the great resource that the elderly are. Together, we will make a better life for all, and return our country to the economic strength we once knew. Thank you.

SUGGESTED TALKING POINTS FOR MEETING WITH LEGISLATIVE LEADERS
NATIONAL CONFERENCE OF STATE LEGISLATORS

March 20, 1981

- I've been looking over your statement on Federalism Reform and I can only say "amen" to your description of what ails our Nation.
- You mention that the Federal system has become "overloaded" and you note the "widespread conviction that Federal programs are . . . unaccountable to the public."
- Our program for economic recovery is designed to remedy these problems -- to put the Federal financial house in order and provide some real assistance to those of you who serve in State governments.
- You are well aware that if we cut back Federal spending and cut tax rates, we will stimulate productivity and cut the inflation rate. Thereby, we can do more for the finances of State and local government than any package of Federal programs ever could.
- We don't just want to return control of Federal programs to the States; we also want to stop the national government from preempting the Nation's tax base.

- So I want to make it clear that the reductions we've called for in the budget are part of a longer term program designed to stop inflation, reward enterprise and initiative and put America back on the road to prosperity.

- Those of you who have had a chance to visit the Jefferson Memorial may have noticed that the eyes in the statue are looking right into this house. I think all of us would do well to feel the eyes of Jefferson upon us as we work for limited government and the renewal of federalism.

- Jefferson put it very well -- when he described:
". . . a wise and frugal Government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another, which shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned. This is the sum of good government"

- State legislatures are our basic institutions of representative government. Their members are the key actors in the continuing drama of American federalism. Together in a partnership we can succeed in restoring the balance to our Federal system.

- I intend to establish a coordinating task force on federalism which will be coordinated through the Intergovernmental Affairs Office in the White House. Rich Williamson will serve as the contact officer.

- One area of concern that many of you have expressed is flexibility. Please be assured that we are sensitive to the need for flexibility if our goals are to be achieved. Only by working together can we accomplish a true return of programs and power to the States where they rightfully belong.

- At this time, we are drafting block grants in many areas; a concept you have supported. Your knowledge of the needs in your State can assist us in making the program better serve the people.

- You have in many instances identified regulatory abuse. I encourage you to share your experience and wisdom with the Vice President's Task Force.

- I would like to recognize Representative Hodes, president of NCSL, for comments.

AFTER HODE'S REMARKS,

- I would like to now recognize Senator Doyen, President-elect.
