MEETING WITH BIPARTISAN CONGRESSIONAL LEADERSHIP

DATE: Thursday, September 17, 1981

LOCATION: The Oval Office

TIME: 9:30 a.m. (one hour)

FROM: Max L. Friedersdorf

I. PURPOSE

To discuss the Fall legislative schedule with the Bipartisan Leadership and indicate Presidential determination and commitment for the sale of AWACS to the Saudis and further budget cuts for '82, '83 and '84.

II. BACKGROUND

The President meets regularly with the Bipartisan Congressional Leadership to discuss the legislative agenda. The Democratic leadership in both the House and Senate value these meetings as an opportunity to communicate with the President. The Democratic leaders are likely to be critical of further budget cuts, but Senate Minority Leader Bob Byrd (D-W.VA.) remains undecided on the AWACS issue and may be persuaded by a Presidential approach based on the need for a bipartisan foreign policy. (See Attachment 1)

III. PARTICIPANTS

See Attachment 2

IV. PRESS PLAN

Announce to press; photo opportunity.

V. SEQUENCE OF EVENTS

The Leaders enter the Northwest Gate, proceed to the West Lobby and join the President in the Oval Office.

Attachment: Talking Points (See Attachment 3)

Talking Points on AWACS

-- I would like to discuss what I consider to be the key foreign policy issue we will face over the next six weeks: the sale of the air defense enhancement package to Saudi Arabia.

-- A great deal of opposition has been generated by this proposal, but it is opposition based on misunderstanding. I want to set the record straight on where I stand on the proposal.

-- The most important reason for proceeding with the sale is that it makes a substantial contribution to the security of the United States and the West. I would not support the sale were it otherwise.

-- Saudi Arabia must have the capability to defend its oil facilities from attack by regional adversaries. We have learned from the Iran-Iraq war that there is no particular sanctity for oil facilities in regional conflicts.

-- The Saudi oil facilities are concentrated and highly vulnerable to an air attack. The Saudi Air Force cannot, at the present time, provide an adequate defense.

-- The loss of certain key oil facilities would halt the flow of Saudi oil for more than a year, causing economic havoc and deep security dangers for the West. As long as we and our principal Allies remain dependent on Saudi oil, we must ensure that these facilities are adequately defended.

-- Saudi Arabia looks to us to provide for its security. We will take steps to draw Saudi Arabia closer to us.

-- Moreover, what we are doing with Saudi Arabia represents an important next step for the peace process. To move forward, Saudi Arabia, as the most influential of the moderate Arab states, must play a greater role. We are encouraging this.

-- I have just finished two days of meetings with Prime Minister Begin. We have reached important understandings concerning our future cooperation. The Prime Minister stated -- and I agree -- that we have advanced our relationship significantly. I listened to his views on this sale and he listened to mine.

-- This package will not pose any substantial threat to the security of Israel. Each of the four elements in the Saudi air defense enhancement package has been carefully tailored to ensure that makes good military sense without providing a capability which exceeds Saudi needs. The limitations of the various elements, including AWACS, and the growing superiority of the Israeli Air Force, will preclude Saudi Arabia from ever posing any credible threat to the security of Israel.

-- Stringent safeguards will be established to ensure that the equipment will not be compromised. Even so, we are confident that, even should an unforeseen compromise occur, there will be no major damage to our national security. This is because the technology involved is really quite old and not particularly sensitive.

-- This sale makes an essential contribution to our national security and to the economic health of the West. I therefore fully support the sale and intend to do whatever is necessary to ensure that it is completed.

-- Because of the importance of this sale to our national security, I urgently ask each of you to help in its passage. It is apparent that there is an awful lot of misunderstanding of this issue on the Hill. In fact, most of those who are committed against the sale have not even been briefed on the details of the proposal and our case for it.

-- Your help in presenting the facts about the sale will be of crucial importance. Dick Allen and his teams from State and Defense will provide briefings on the package. I ask that you encourage your colleagues not to commit against the sale until they have been briefed.

-- I look upon this issue as truly bipartisan in nature because of the contribution it makes to our national security interests. The security of our energy resources and our national credibility as a reliable security partner depend upon the consummation of this sale.

SUGGESTED TALKING POINTS FOR MEETING WITH BIPARTISAN CONGRESSIONAL LEADERS

- Congress and the Administration have many important issues on the agenda for this Fall, both in the economic area and foreign policy.
- The key foreign policy issue we face during the next four or five weeks is the sale of the air enhancement package to Saudi Arabia.
- The most important reason for proceeding with the sale is that it makes a substantial contribution to the security of the United States and the West. I would not support this sale were it otherwise.
- My request to Congress is that the Administration be given ample opportunity to make its case.
- I am a great believer in a bipartisan foreign policy, and I earnestly believe the Congress will support this sale when they become aware of the facts.
- I am also working on a series of additional recommendations for further spending reductions for presentation to the Congress, and will be sending them to the Hill within a few days.
- It is essential that we continue to move toward a sounder fiscal policy and a balanced budget if we are to continue reducing inflation and bring down interest rates.
- Those are some of the matters on my mind, and I would appreciate hearing comments from the Leaders.
- Mr. Speaker....
