MEETING WITH NATIONAL ASSOCIATION REPRESENTATIVES

DATE: 14 September 82
LOCATION: East Room
TIME: 3:30 P.M.

FROM: Jay Moorhead JM
Special Assistant to the President
Private Sector Initiatives

I. Purpose

To brief selected representatives of the major trade associations about the Private Sector Initiatives Program and to encourage their involvement and support.

II. Background

This briefing session will be similar to the previous Task Force meetings for the leaders of National Organizations. Prior to your remarks, a panel discussion led by Alexander "Sandy" Trowbridge, will illustrate what some major trade associations are doing in the area of private sector initiatives. Your remarks are meant to show your personal commitment to private sector initiatives and promoting voluntarism.

III. Participants

Approximately 150 representatives of major trade associations.

Panelists: C. William Verity
Stanley B. Karson, Executive Director
Center for Corporate Public Involvement
Sandy Trowbridge, President, National Association of Manufacturers and member of the President's Task Force on Private Sector Initiatives

Panelists - con't

Hugh F. Young, Director, Public Affairs

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICERS OF MAJOR TRADE
ASSOCIATIONS, SEPTEMBER 14, 1982

Seeing so many association leaders here today threw me for a moment -- I thought I was supposed to lobby you on a budget bill. But it really is a pleasure to welcome you here and, to tell you the truth, I am going to do a little lobbying after all, and that's on behalf of our private sector initiatives program.

I heard a story the other day about a third grade teacher who was explaining the importance of good penmanship to her class. She told the students, "If you can't write your name, when you grow up you'll have to pay for everything with cash."

Well, we all know there are certain things you can't buy with cash, or even credit, and that is involvement, the kind that historians describe as the American spirit. You've been hearing about that spirit and involvement in the briefing today, and I would like to expand just a little.

I know that voluntarism didn't start with this Administration. Americans have been helping their neighbors ever since the country was settled. It's a grand tradition that unfortunately hasn't gotten the attention it's deserved in recent years. What we're trying to do is make sure these good deeds receive their fair recognition, hoping this in turn will spur others to participate. That's why I asked Bill Verity to chair the private sector initiatives task force, and let me tell you, he's been keeping me busy. We've had six major meetings here at the White House. I've talked to the Nation's Governors asking them to form statewide task forces, and over 40 States now have done so. I've asked the Cabinet to encourage voluntarism and to promote public/private partnerships in their departments. I've met with independent broadcasters from around the country, and now I'm glad to report that we're finally seeing more stories about the good things people are doing. To give you an idea, at least 40 TV stations around the country are running programs that show how communities are solving their problems through partnerships. I've also made visits to cities all across the country in order to spotlight private sector initiatives. Now before I wear out my arm patting Bill and myself on the back, let me say I mention all this to show you how deeply we believe in private sector initiatives. The push for private sector initiatives is as central to the Administration as cutting spending and taxes.

But what's even more important than what we're doing is what the American people are doing. Let me give you some examples of association involvement. In Las Vegas, the Independent Youth Athletic Association provided volunteer labor and equipment to light up city and county baseball fields, saving taxpayers more than $270,000 in lighting costs. Then, working with local agencies and private foundations, they built an athletic complex now valued at over $3 million.

The Old Newsboys Goodfellow Association -- sounds like something I should belong to doesn't it? -- in Toledo provides more than 2,000 food baskets and other essentials at Christmas time for school kids. In the Association's words, "Our project will last forever -- our membership's pleasures are realized when they see the smiles on the recipients' faces."

An American Medical Association Auxiliary in Flint, Michigan, operates a free spinal screening program for youth in the area. In November, more than 13,000 children were screened with the help of 300 volunteers. The list goes on and on.

You know, I wish all those who claim our greatest days are past could grasp the energy and vitality in grassroots America today. Henry Luce, the founder of Time magazine, saw this. He spent a lifetime watching and recording it. In 1962 he observed, "We're the country of the endless frontier, of the big sky, of manifest destiny, of unlimited resources, of 'Go west, young man,' of opportunity for all, of rags to riches, mass production, nothing to fear but fear itself, technical know-how, a chicken in every pot, gung-ho and can do." Well, it may sound a little corny but Luce was absolutely right, and that spirit is still out there. And you here today are in touch with it through your memberships.

You can stimulate and activate the manufacturers, the small businessmen, the doctors and nurses, the lawyers, the realtors, the public officials and concerned citizens who are your members. They are the people who make this country go and they are the ones who can make the difference. And you might point out to them that the quality of their community is key to the well-being of their plants, stores, practices, and neighborhoods. We need you here today to get the message out that involvement is not only in the public good, but in your members' own best interests as well. We need you to encourage them to put their talents to work directly on some problems we've let sit for too long. I urge you to take on a private sector initiative and put the full resources of your organizations behind it. Show your members how it is done and what they themselves can do. I know the Task Force will give you all sorts of help and ideas to get your projects rolling. Although the Task Force is going out of business at the end of the year, we'll still have the White House private sector initiatives office, and I'll still be speaking out as I have been. And I hope that your organizations will be out there carrying the ball for us also. I guarantee you that you'll have plenty of support from here.

When I was inaugurated, I said our people have a potential for greatness and they've proven it when it counted. I believe we are in one of those periods of our history when it counts more than ever. I ask you to join us in releasing that potential and to share in the satisfaction of making America all she can be.

WASHINGTON

MEETING WITH THE CHAIRMAN AND REPRESENTATIVES
OF THE COMBINED FEDERAL CAMPAIGN

DATE: September 14, 1982
LOCATION: Oval Office
TIME: 3:50 PM (10 minutes)
FROM: Craig L. Fuller CS

I. PURPOSE

The meeting will provide an opportunity for you to present your personal gift to, and express support for, the Combined Federal Campaign.

II. BACKGROUND

Created by Executive Order, the Combined Federal Campaign of the National Capital Area is the annual solicitation of Federal employees to raise money to support voluntary agencies. This year's goal is $15.8 million and represents an increase of 15% over last year's achievement.

This meeting and the publicity derived from it sets the tone for the campaign by showing visibly your personal concern for its success. It has been a traditional event since the first campaign in the Fall of '64.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

MEETING WITH TEXTILE INDUSTRY REPRESENTATIVES
AND SELECTED SENATORS AND CONGRESSMEN

DATE: Tuesday, September 14, 1982
LOCATION: The Cabinet Room
TIME: 4:00 P.M. (15 minutes)
FROM: KENNETH M. DUBERSTEIN Ken D.

I. PURPOSE

To satisfy a Congressional request for the President to be briefed as to the views of the domestic textile industry on negotiations with China for a new textile/apparel bilateral trade agreement.

II. BACKGROUND

Jim Broyhill (R-NC), Ranking Republican Member of the House Energy and Commerce Committee, and Carroll Campbell (R-SC), a Core Group member who serves on the Appropriations Committee, are concerned about the textile trade negotiations with China. They both represent textile states and both are continually active in behalf of the Administration and its many priorities. Their interest in this matter is earnest and strong. They have recommended a bipartisan meeting with industry officials that includes the Democratic officers of the House Textile Caucus. These additional Congressmen are Ken Holland (D-SC), Chairman, and Bill Nichols (D-AL), Secretary-Treasurer. Both are CDF'ers.

Congressional leaders and the textile industry are nervous that U.S. textile negotiators are under pressure from elements within the Administration to make concessions to the Chinese for overall political and strategic reasons.

The Administration has received numerous letters urging U.S. negotiators to take a tough stance in these talks and to approach the negotiations as a typical, self-contained textile negotiation, independent from other issues. Some factions in Congress and the industry also question the Administration's resolve to maintain quotas to safeguard the domestic market if a negotiated solution is not reached.

Most of the Congressional and private sector participants at this meeting will be seeking a White House commitment to reduce the level of Chinese imports to the United States, or, at a minimum, to treat China (the fourth largest supplier of textiles to the United States) in the identical way in which we deal with the three major suppliers (Hong Kong, Korea, and Taiwan).

II. BACKGROUND (continued)

Commitments along these lines are to be avoided if the Administration is to have any hope of negotiating a mutually satisfactory solution with the Chinese.

SUGGESTED TALKING POINTS FOR MEETING WITH MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE CONGRESSIONAL TEXTILE CAUCUS
AND TEXTILE INDUSTRY REPRESENTATIVES

- I can certainly understand your concerns regarding our bilateral textile negotiations with China. I also agree with you that we can no longer absorb the same growth in imports from China that we have experienced over the last few years.
- In the first round of negotiations, I understand that the United States put forward a strong negotiating position. Let me assure you that we will continue to negotiate this bilateral agreement independent from other considerations.
- Let me add, however, that it is our strong preference to have a negotiated solution to this issue, and we will make every effort to do so. Of course, if this is not possible, we will not hesitate to take the necessary unilateral measures to safeguard our U.S. market.
- I would like to emphasize the importance that I attach to our commitment to seek to relate total imports to the rate of growth in the domestic market. Our negotiators will continue to work toward that goal.
- We are interested in your views and comments and would like to give you an opportunity at this time to express them.
