Biography

James Jenkins (1923-2002) was a naval officer, lobbyist and political assistant to Governor Ronald Reagan and President Reagan.

Jenkins served as a Navy officer for 22 years after graduating from the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy. He retired as a captain in 1966 having served as public relations officer for four secretaries of the Navy.

Jenkins served in multiple capacities as part of Ronald Reagan's gubernatorial administration in California. After his hiring, Jenkins worked mostly in Washington, DC as the chief lobbyist for the State of California, while serving as Reagan's Assistant for Public Affairs (1969-1971). He was then appointed Secretary of Health and Welfare (1974-1975).

Jenkins joined the Reagan White House staff, as the chief assistant to Counsellor Edwin Meese III in October 1981. He succeeded Robert Garrick in this position. He left the White House staff effective May 15, 1984.

Scope and Content Note

Within the collection, documentation exists of responses to Independent Counsel requests for material from the Jenkins collections. In 1987 Independent Counsel James McKay began an investigation of Franklyn (Lyn) Nofziger's post-Administration employment contacts within the White House. The investigation eventually expanded to another probe of Edwin Meese and his possible involvement with the Wedtech corporation and influence peddling. The White House Counsel's office attached self-stick notes ("Post-it Notes") to documents deemed relevant to the Independent Counsel's requests for records. We have left these notes in place to document the Independent Counsel and White House actions.

The Library renumbered the Jenkins material from oversize attachment (OA) box numbers into numerical box numbers: 1, 2, 3, etc. All folders, paperwork, and inventories have been corrected to reflect this change.

Some of Jenkins' files include material created by Robert Garrick, his predecessor as Deputy Counsellor.

The James Jenkins collection is arranged into 11 series. Series II: Cabinet and Cabinet Councils consists of eight subseries. Series IV consists of three subseries.
